Day Was 'D' Hour Was 'H' —25 Years Ago

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — The sun shines brightly out of an unbroken blue sky. A faint on-shore breeze pushes gentle wavelets on to the sloping sands inhabited by nothing more fierce than sand flies.

But the small group of men walking slowly on the beach see it only as weather for which Dwight Eisenhower would have given his right arm.

For they see it all through the wrong end of a 25-year long telescope when the German Army replaced the sand flies, when the weather was cold and blowing, when the rough sea was made to vomit in and the sands to die on and when Supreme Commander Eisenhower made the decision to go anyway.

For this is Juno. Up there is Sword and down here is Gold and Omaha and Utah. Twenty-five years ago they were part of Overlord launched by Neptune.

The day was D and the hour was H.

This package of gobbeldegook names wrapped up the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's fortress, Europe. They were dreamed up by faceless men in backrooms who plan such things and send somebody else to carry them out.

Trained for H-Hour, D-Day

Doing the carrying on Juno that day were 15,000 Canadians who had trained in Scotland and England for months with nothing more on the military agenda than what to do at H-Hour, D-Day on Juno.

Before that day, Juno was simply an anonymous stretch of sand perhaps half a mile wide at low water and complicated in some spots by rocky ledges.

In 1944 it was even more complicated at all spots by nasty German surprises aimed at explosively ripping the guts out of man or machine which came near.

Behind all this was the German army dug in, with concrete pillboxes packed with heavy and light guns to rake the beach and the approaches. No wonder Axis Sally, the sexy-voiced propagandist of the German radio, could croon a parody of "I double dare you to come over here."

One of the first men who took that dare was Tony Storrs, now a retired admiral and director of marine operations for Canada's department of transport.

But, 25 years ago, he was commanding minesweepers to clear the sea.

On the beach today he recalls: "We had to sweep 10 channels, two for each beach, all the way from Piccadilly Circus (code name for an anonymous wave in the English Channel) to the beaches.

"We never lost a ship and none that stayed within the lanes hit a mine." Storr's minesweepers, and 31st Canadian flotilla and others attached to British and American units, were popping mines to the surface with their streamed paravanes while the troops were getting their final instructions aboard the landing ships.

Some Prayed, Some Gambled

In British ports the Canadians of the Third Division, who were to go in at Juno, were on assault vessels like the Queen Emma, the Invicta and the Duke of Wellington preparing for D-day.

Some prayed, some wrote last letters home, some gambled they would't be needed on the other side.

The most conservative estimate was that one man in 10 would not cross the beaches alive and if you were the 10th, goodbye Charlie.

Then it was cancelled.

Moon and tide were right but the weather forecast wasn't. Everything was off to the sixth and the let down was terrific. With the Americans, the British, the French, the Poles, the Norwegians, and the Dutch the Canadians waited.

Seasickness made the waiting worse as the clumsy overloaded troopers and the flat-bottomed barges lurched and rolled in the chop.

More than ever, green-faced troops wanted H-hour to roll around and get it over with. At last they were off down Storr's mine-cleared channels first in two convoy lanes, then five, then ten.

Around the laden troop ships nipped the destroyer and corvette escorts. Among them Canada's Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan, Restigouche.

Others nearby were the Big Boys of the bombarding force.

Overhead went the bombers to soften up the areas beyond the beaches and the planes carrying paratrooper or towing troop-filled gliders.

To the first Allied troops to land on the armored continent the mystery of it all was how this huge armada of 200,000 men in 5,000 ships, 700 of them warships, could assemble and cover 100 miles of open water without the German's knowing about it.

Security Wasn't All That Tight

Standing on the beach today Brigadier Douglas Cunningham who commaned the 3rd Division, 9th brigade, that day had his own theory.

"It was security," he said. "Not a thing leaked and we had air power so that anything that came over the staging areas in southern England was shot down."

Canada Not Keeping Up With U.S. Production

HOUSING COSTS gave the consumer price index another nudge upwards in May, according to figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Rise was not quite as sharp as in April.

Prosperity Gap Widens Yearly

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor productivity in Canada is falling behind the United States at a rate that threatens "our entire national unity", says the Engineering Institute of Canada in a brief to the Senate science committee.

Per capita production in the U.S. now is $1,400 above Canada and will be $3,000 higher by 1979 unless radical changes are made in Canadian economic policy.

The productivity gap and higher rates of unemployment in Canada had produced an "increasing . . . social restiveness . . . and growing economic conflict between the provinces and the federal government; growing pressures on the unity of the nation."

NATIONAL OUTPUT

Because of Canada's deteriorating competitive position in national output, economic "or job-generating" objectives should take precedence over all others in government planning.

All social problems were more acute in the U.S. than in Canada because of the denser population there, and Canada should simply exploit the expertise developed by Americans in coping with these issues.

Methods of alleviating air pollution would be developed in the United States before Canada and Canadians should adopt these techniques, not waste time trying to develop their own.

LIST THIRD PRIORITY

Transportation problems should be a third priority after economic and social issues, with emphasis on transportation in northern regions.

Running heavy equipment over frozen muskeg in the North eventually produces deep, water-filled troughs in summer, the report says. These could be used by "high-speed muskeg barges" as efficient transport routes.

The brief, prepared after a two-year study by education, business and industrial leaders, says greater attention must be given to developing computer technology.

This was essential for technological progress and could become a service industry with strong export potential.

The greatest number of worthwhile technological inventions were by "backyard inventors" and greater incentives should be provided to ensure their efforts continue.

Canada should also give more attention to research into methods of weather control aimed at "warming-up" the climate. This would be of great assistance to the forestry and agricultural sectors.

A national objectives committee should be established to define goals and set priorities.

Food Stores Warned By Basford

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford warned Thursday night he will name any storekeeper found by his department's inspectors to be gouging Vancouver shoppers because of a chain-store labor dispute.

In a Commons adjournment debate, Mr. Basford also warmly endorsed a call by Leon Weinstein, president of Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd., for a consumers boycott of steaks and roasts to force down prices.

The Vancouver minister said such a boycott would be in line with recommendations of the special parliamentary committee on consumer prices, which had urged consumer pressure to keep prices in line.

But he said it could work only in a free, competitive market and this was not the case in Vancouver where about 100 chain stores are closed by a labor dispute.

He urged those stores still open to use restraint and not take advantage of the situation.

Regular inspections of stores still open were being made by 55 departmental inspectors in B.C., and Mr. Basford said he would not hesitate to name those found to be gouging consumers.

100 Bases Shelled By Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnam war exploded into heavy combat in the last 24 hours, with Viet Cong mortar and rocket attacks on more than 100 southern allied bases and towns and as many as 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops killed in ground fighting.

At least 35 Americans were reported killed and more than 100 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were said to be light, and damage from the shelling also was described as light.

There was speculation that the sharp increase in shelling was intended to influence the conference between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu on Midway Island Sunday.

A spokesman for the U.S. command commented: "It's just a little bit more pressure to perhaps cause the meeting at Midway to come up with some sort of concession. It is to let the participants at Midway and the world know they are still capable of shooting off a lot of rockets even though the majority didn't do much."

Poultry Price Slips While Beef Soaring

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index edged upward to 124.9 points in May from 124.6 in April, chiefly because of advances in the cost of housing and recreation.

The increase of two-tenths of one per cent in the month placed the index-based on 1961 prices as 100 points—4.7 per cent above the figure for May, 1968.

Food, weighted second in importance after housing in the all-items index, nudged ahead by less than one-tenth of one per cent.

BEEF SOARS

Higher prices for beef and some fresh vegetables and fruit outweighed declines for poultry, pork and other meats. Beef prices went up by 2.4 per cent in the month.

Spring clothing and shoe sales contributed to a decline of four-tenths of one per cent in the clothing index, which was 2.6 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The May increase was slightly higher than in the previous two months. The index remained at 122.6 throughout January and February, went to 123.2 in March and 124.9 in April.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiles the measurement of prices with a monthly survey of about 300 items of consumer goods and services representative of purchases by families living in cities with populations of 30,000 and more.

The base of 1961 prices as 100 points was introduced early this year. On the previous base of 1949 prices as 100, the May index was 161.4, up from 161 in April, 159.2 in March and 158.4 in January and February.

HOUSING MAIN CAUSE

The statistics bureau attributes the May increase largely to housing, which accounts for almost one-third of the all-items index, and widespread advances in the admission charged by movie houses during the month.

All other items increased slightly except clothing, which dipped because of sale prices on several items.

The housing index, which includes costs of shelter and household operation, rose four-tenths of one per cent in the month and was 5.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Prices of new houses advanced by two per cent in May and cost of repairs by 1.4 per cent as prices for building materials and labor wages increased. Rents edged up slightly, with the biggest increases in Calgary and Halifax.

HEYERDAHL'S RAFT MAKING GOOD TIME

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Thor Hyerdahl's papyrus raft Ra is making good time across the Atlantic, helped by trade winds and the Canary current, and reached a point 360 miles due west of Villa Cisneros in Spanish West Africa on Thursday, according to radio reports received here. China Reports New Fighting

HONG KONG (Reuters) — At least one Chinese border frontier guard was killed and 16 other Chinese were kidnapped in recent Sino-Soviet border incidents, the New China news agency reported today.

The agency, monitored here, was quoting a Chinese foreign ministry note delivered to the Russian embassy in Peking which also claimed "several hundred tanks, armored cars and vehicles" were used in the new incidents along the frontier between the two countries.

The foreign ministry charged that firing on Chinese positions was still continuing at the disputed Chenpao Island where bloody clashes took place in March.

In Moscow, a Soviet government said today the Sino-Soviet border situation was "absolutely quiet."

The agency quoted the statement as saying the Russians were using heavy artillery and machine-guns on the island in the Ussuri River which forms the border at that point.

The Soviet Union also was accused of sending bombers, fighters and reconnaissance planes to carry out provocations and reconnaissance over Chinese territory.

The incidents, described in the protest note, were said to have taken place in both the northern and western sectors of the Sino-Soviet border in April and May.

The statement said a serious incident also took place May 2 in the Sinkiang Uighur autonomous region in northwestern China.

A large number of Russian soldiers backed by tanks intruded into Sinkiang and penetrated Chinese territories by about four miles, it said.

BY LAND AND AIR

The Chinese note accused the Soviet Union of intruding into the Chinese territories both by land and air.

The incidents took place from the eastern section of Heilungkiang province to the western section in Sinkiang province, the protest note said.

Russian soldiers were accused of seizing weapons from the Chinese border guards and of beating up Chinese herdsmen, the note said.

Allies Battle Over Who Won War

Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — Bilingualism created problems here today at the main Canadian ceremony celebrating the 25th anniversary of the D-Day landings.

And at the same time there was some allied resistance at apparent attempts by the French to upstage what is basically an Anglo-American-Canadian show.

Language trouble came when Canadian ambassador to Paris Paul Beaulieu, chief speaker at the ceremony at the Canadian cemetery of Beny-sur-Mer, spoke almost entirely in French.

Many of the Canadian veterans—there were about 1,000 including wives—were shocked when they heard him.

FULL CREDIT

And those who spoke some French were shocked even more when he appeared to give French troops an equal credit for the landings along with the Canadian, British and Americans.

One veteran said: "He speaks 90 per cent French while only 10 per cent of those buried here are even French-Canadians."

A former senior officer who asked not to be named called the apparent reference to equal forces "disgraceful."

And a man decorated for bravery on the beaches called it "an insult."

Beaulieu said afterwards he had spoken in French because that is the language of the country and as a diplomat he used it.

THE KEY PART

His speech was 111 lines long and 18 were in English. Beaulieu called these 18 lines "the key part" and said he used English there as a gesture to the many veterans present from Canada.

In the 18 lines he said those buried in the cemetery did not die in vain and the anniversary is an occasion to remember them.

The ambassador denied giving equal credit to the French for the landings.

He had used the French word Egalement in referring to the troops of the four countries—a word which many translated as meaning "equal."

But Beaulieu said its real meaning is "including" or "as well as."

This translation would make his speech read: "These (Canadian) fighters made up a part of an allied army of five divisions including American, British and French troops."

(The five divisions were two each from Britain and America and one from Canada. A token force of French also landed with them.)

Beaulieu said it would be hardly diplomatic for an ambassador to refer to troops of the host country as only a token force and he had included them with the allied divisions without intending to mention numbers.

Meantime allied resentment at the French upstaging stems from France putting in overpowering numbers of troops in some of the joint events.

At a march past on the America Utah Beach Thursday the French marchers vastly outnumbered both the Canadians and the British.

The tiny contingent of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry stationed in Germany — about 100 men—had to march only two abreast apparently to spread themselves a bit.

The French were marching

Ladies Night at the Bath Has Its Day in Public

ISTANBUL (AP) — It was ladies' night at the Turkish bath, but the wives at the International Chamber of Commerce convention didn't know they'd be pinups in the Turkish papers.

While their businessmen husbands attended to convention business Wednesday, about a dozen wives from as many countries got a Turkish-style scrubbing in one of the fashionable baths in this metropolis.

As they lay on the big marble stone washing themselves and being scrubbed by Turkish women, they were oblivious to the women photographers covering the bath party for the local press.

The next day, photos in color and black and white appeared in the newspapers showing the naked ladies in a variety of positions.

It caused quite a stir at the convention.

"Tasteless and unconscionable invasion of privacy," is what ICC Secretary-General Walter Hill called it.

John Millington, director of Times-Life Books, said: "I can only speak from a point of sorrow that our lovely visit in Istanbul . . . should be tarnished by such an invasion of personal privacy."

Mrs. Judd Polk of New York, one of the ladies whose picture was published, wouldn't discuss it.

"No comment," she snapped.

Not all the ladies were upset.

"It's okay with me," said Mrs. Hugo Timonen of Finland. "I was at that Turkish bath with my daughter. No, we don't mind at all."

Strike Closes Kaiser Mine

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striking Teamsters and operating engineers at Fernie in southeastern British Columbia Thursday shut down the massive coal strip mine development of Kaiser Resources Ltd., which has a 10-year, $600,000,000 contract to supply coal to Japanese steel mills.

Kaiser denied union claims it was partially responsible for the strike by interfering in the dispute between drivers and members of the Operating Engineers Union employed by Fred Sowchuk Trucking Ltd., a Kaiser subcontractor.

About 650 construction workers, working around the clock to ready the coal development for mining and a first shipment in 1970, refused to cross picket lines at four access roads.

Only 32 teamsters and engineers are striking, in an attempt to negotiate a first contract.

Meanwhile, a strike by 10 operating engineers employed by Cattermole-Trethewey Contractors Ltd., Thursday stopped work on the roadbed of a section of track that will link railways to the Roberts Bank deepsea port, 20 miles south of Vancouver.

The port initially will be used to ship the Kaiser coal to Japan. Construction on the port development itself has not been affected by the strike, which the engineers say is to force a first contract.

In he two-week oil workers' strike against six oil companies, the B.C. Federation of Labor said Thursday its announced boycott of "hot" products from Imperial Oil Canada Ltd. is succeeding.

The Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union and the Pulp and Sulphite Workers Union have told some employers they will not handle Imperial products, federation secretary Ray Haynes said, and several other unions are in the process of doing the same.

NO SHORTAGE

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. said it had "adequate supplies and we expect to be able to meet our customers' demands during the strike period" and Imperial Oil issued a similar statement, claiming the federation boycott has had little effect.

Pickets at four Lower Mainland refineries and other oil company marketing divisions were ordered last week not to interfere with trucks entering or leaving refinery grounds.

The 550 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union are asking a wage boost of $1 an hour over two years on the base rate of $3.80.

Officials of the federal corporate and consumer affairs department, acting on complaints of sharply rising food prices, have assigned teams of inspectors to make daily checks at independent markets not affected by a lockout of 700 meatcutters and 2,000 store clerks in the Vancouver area.

More han 100 major chain-store supermarkets shut their doors Monday, afer negotiations between supermarkets and employees seeking a $1-an-hour increase and a four-day, 36-hour work week broke down.

Metacutters' current base rate is $3.80 an hour while grocery clerks start at $2.35. A packing house spokesman said meat available to housewives and shoppers has been cut 75 per cent while another said consumers still have access to 65 per cent of normal supplies.

four abreast in seemingly never-ending units.

After another joint march past on the British beaches this afternoon one high-ranking Canadian official said: "The French have put in at least one man for every ally on parade. They're trying to take over the show."

Coupled with this is the continual use by French speakers referring to the landing of the phrase "a great victory for France."

The French say this merely means that it was a good thing for France—without actually saying it was done by somebody else.

But some allied veterans say privately that it might just as well be called a victory "by" France.

But while such upstaging may be important to the French military brass it is not reflected by the peasants of Normandy.

The most touching moment in the beautifully-kept Canadian cemetery today was when a group of children from the nearby village of Reviers walked around the memorials and dropped small hand-picked bunches of wild flowers among the massively expensive official wreaths.

Then in a group at one side they sang O Canada in French.

Village officials said the children are encouraged to visit the cemetery and help care for it throughout the year.

During the cemetery ceremony, the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa dedicated a memorial plaque within its grounds.

Later at Courseulles the Canadian-Scottish of Victoria and the Regina Rifles held a joint ceremony to unveil adjoining plaques marking the point where they attacked the beach together on D-Day.

PARTY SPLIT ON NATO?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberal Senator Daniel Lang says a private poll shows half the Liberal party members interviewed are against a sharp cutback in Canada's NATO forces.

Senator Lang Thursday said he would not attend next week's session of the North Atlantic assembly because of his opposition to Canada's defence policy.

He cited the poll to support his claim that many Liberals shared his views.

The poll is reported to have found that only 41 per cent of Liberals interviewed were in favor of a troop cutback, while 43 per cent wanted the troop level unchanged and five per cent called for an increase. Eleven per cent, apparently, were undecided or qualified their answers.

TWO MONTHS

There was no indication how many Liberals were interviewed but party officials said the poll was conducted in a two month period and mainly in Ontario and Alberta.

Conservative defence critic J. A. Maclean, MP for Prince Edward Island's Malpeque Constituency, tried to press Defence Minister Leo Cadieux for additional information on the government NATO policy in view of the results of the poll.

Cadieux explained that the Canadian NATO contribution was now under negotiation with Canada's allies and he could give no final decision at this time.

Thomas Bell, Conservative whip and MP for Saint John, New Brunswick, asked the prime minister to comment on Senator Lang's "break" with government NATO policy. His question was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Language Czar Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives sought assurances today that the official languages commissioner won't be poking into their offices and "sticking his nose" into Parliament.

Warren Allmand (L—Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said it was unlikely that anything in an official languages bill, being studied by a special Commons committee could breach the hallowed privileges of Parliament.

Justice officials said however the commissioner will have powers over the subordinate institutions of Parliament—the library, the restaurant, the guards, perhaps even some of the staff in the Speaker's office.

They drafted several amendments to reassure Conservatives, led by Melvin McQuaid (Cardigan), that further inroads wouldn't be possible. The amendments were based on those submitted by Mr. McQuaid himself.

Mr. McQuaid asked whether the change would be enough to prevent the commissioner from entering an MP's office and examining his files.

Justice Minister John Turner said this couldn't be done. He also said that under the legislation, Parliament will be able to step in if it feels the commissiner is exceeding his mandate.

GIVEN HARD TIME

In Thursday's session, political friends made it hot for Mr. Turner as they questioned changes in the bill.

Douglas Hogarth (L—New Westminster) said the bill should guarantee the use of French as well as English in criminal proceedings, at least in areas that are to be designated bilingual districts under the bill.

He told the justice minister he should have "pressured" the western provinces into taking the bill to court and fighting it out if that's the way they want it.

Eymard Corbin (L—Madawaska-Victoria) said the bill added nothing to the rights of French-Canadians before the courts in the English-speaking provinces.

The key amendment says a subsection giving courts power to order entire proceedings in either official language will come ino effect in a given province only at the discretion of that province. Quebec is an exception, because the British North America Act requires Quebec courts to permit the use of either French or English without restriction.

Mr. Turner said that withou the amendment, Saskatchewan and possibly other provinces would have challenged the bill in court.

David Anderson (L—Esquimalt-Saanich) agreed with Mr. Hogarth that because of this amendment, the clause may never be applied in some provinces.

Russians Urge Pact Not Battle

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda today hit out at Arab extremists who call for changing the Middle East map and said they threaten progressive Arab government.

A long article by commentator V. Rumyansev was clearly intended to tell Arabs that Moscow would continue to support publicly their stand only if they continued advocating a solution of the Middle East crisis by political means and did not plan a new major war against Israel.

One of the frankest articles to appear here for some time on the Middle East question, it also in effect warned Israel that, if it did not make a deal with Nasser and like-minded leaders, it could be faced with a much worse position.

CANADA WATCHING LESSON OF IRELAND

TORONTO (CP)—An analogy between French Quebec and the Republic of Ireland was drawn today by a Montreal businessman in attempting to explain to English Canada the nationalistic mood he said prevails in his province.

The inference was that those in Quebec who advocate separatism are on the wrong path.

Sidney T. Fisher, vice-president of Radio Engineering Products, delivering the convocation address at the University of Toronto after receiving an honorary degree of doctor of laws, said:

"The positions are similar: Non-French Canada, Quebec and the non-French Quebec minority, in one case, the United Kingdom, Eire and Ulster on the other. There are similar differences in racial stock and religion, and a similar insistence on the preservation of the minority language. . . .

"So in Ireland we can see the effects of separatism after having been in effect a generation or two. Initially, the Irish made language the all-important element; religion has obviously been important, but in a more subtle and less overt way. . . .

ENTERPRISE RETURNS

"After many years, the effort to maintain the language (in Ireland) is largely unsuccessful; the small Erse (language) island in a great non-Erse sea is being abandoned. Foreign capital and commercial enterprise are flooding back into the country. . . .

"The analogy is far from exact, of course. The proportion of Irish to the U.K. was, say, one-tenth, that of people of French origin in Canada one-third. Religion plays a much smaller part in current Quebec aspirations. Ireland was under foreign domination for 700 years, Quebec 200 years. . . ."

A text of Mr. Fisher's address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

In an interview earlier, he said there is no danger of separatism because "the separatists are badly divided and the religionists, who in the past could be blamed for fostering the movement, have become wise."

In the French portion of his speech, he said:

"The French-English dialogue in Canada must not be carried on by either side, above all by the English side, in compliance with the old union negotiator's maxim, 'claim everything, concede nothing, and if defeated allege fraud'. . . ."

15 MINUTES DEVOTED To WELFARE PROBLEMS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Federation of Mayors of Municipalities devoted 15 minutes to the problems of welfare Thursday, finally passing a resolution that municipalities be allowed to force recipients to work for their welfare cheques.

Alderman Julia Kiniski, of Edmonton, supported the motion, saying "beggars can't be choosy".

"People on welfare lose their self-respect and turn out to be lazy," she said. "If we make them take jobs they can feel proud."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The sunny very warm weather will continue over the interior of B.C. today and Saturday, although isolated thunderstorms are likely in the East Kootenays late today. Extensive fog and low cloud blankets the outer coast again today with some patches in Georgia Strait this morning. A series of weather disturbances will move eastward through Oregon today and Saturday giving rain over the northwestern states but only patchy cloud will reach north of the border.

The Weather and You

When the weather is hot, you get tired sooner. The reason is that your pulse must beat faster because your heart has to move a greater volume of blood through your body so as to dissipate more heat through your skin.

Now you can see why you feel so tired at the end of a working day if you have spent the day out in the sun or in an office or a car that isn't air-conditioned. You come home worn-out and you need a shower and a cool, tall drink to help the fatigue ooze away.

If you spent the day in air-conditioned comfort, you feel more like taking your wife out after supper. In some cities even the buses are air-conditioned, and commuters say they don't know how they could ever go back to steady, hot bus rides. It is good for you to be in refrigerated places in hot weather. Your pulse beats more slowly and that may help you to live just a little longer.

Retail Goods Rise In Price 3.1 Per Cent

British Columbia consumers paid 3.1 per cent more for retail goods in April than they did in the same month a year earlier, but this was still lower than the national average of 4.4 per cent.

The statistics were revealed Thursday by Waldo Skillings, provincial minister of trade and industry, in his monthly bulletin of business activity.

The minister also reported that the principal economic indicators show that business in the province continues to expand.

One example of this trend, he said, was the increase of 32.3 per cent in exports and a 13.6 per cent increase in the value of factory shipments in March this year compared to the same month last year.

Would-Be Assassin At Large

ATHENS (UPI) — Alexandros Panaghoulis, under death sentence for the attempted assassination of Premier George Papadopoulos, escaped from jail Thursday night, the government announced.

Within hours the military regime arrested 51 persons, including four army officers.

Reliable sources said one of the 51 men was the commander of the military prison near Athens where Panaghoulis had been held since his death sentence last year.

The death sentence was never carried out because of worldwide protests and an appeal from Pope Paul VI.

Inpformed sources said Panaghoulis slipped out of jail while prisoners were watching a television rerun of a Dr. Kildare film.

Victoria West Flower Show

Victoria West's 14th annual flower show will be held Saturday from 2:30 to 9 p.m. in St. Saviour's Anglican Church hall on Henry Street.

Competitors will display arrangements in the rose, novice rose, islands of the world or miscellaneous sections of the show.

Also competing will be arrangements made by children up to 15 years and displays of fruit and vegetables.

Seven trophies will be presented.

Widow Kneels Alone At Grave

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ethel Kennedy knelt at the grave of her slain husband, Robert F. Kennedy, in the early dawn today, the first anniversary of his assassination.

Mrs. Kennedy went to Arlington National Cemetery accompanied only by one man, believed to be a bodyguard who worked for her late husband.

Dressed in white, she stayed at the cemetery for about 10 minutes around 7 a.m. kneeling in the grass at the grave, which is marked by a white wooden cross.

Yale Audience Will Hear War Protest at Graduation

By LEROY F. AARONS

NEW YORK (WP) — Yale University has has agreed to incorporate a student protest against the Vietnam war in its graduation exercises on Monday.

The unusual step was approved by Yale president Kingman Brewster on the basis of a petition signed by 80 per cent of the 950-member senior class of Yale College. The class asked that one of its members be permitted to lead the anti-war petition and make a short speech.

Yale, in New Haven, Conn., has had a policy of no speakers at commencement since 1895, from which it departed only once before, in 1962, when John F. Kennedy delivered an address while receiving an honorary degree.

The anti-war speech, about 10 minutes long, will be given at the opening ceremonies by William McEwaine Thompson III, secretary of the class of 1969, which is the highest elective student office. Thompson, an American studies major from Richmond, Va., will also read the text of the student petition, which calls for an immediate end to the Vietnam conflict.

The petition reads in part: "We feel the war is a tragic waste of life and resources, both American and Vietnamese, which completely outweighs any possible gains . . . The war must be ended now. We plead with the leaders of this country to bring about an immediate end to the war."

Brewster was unavailable for comment, but sources at Yale said the university administration felt obliged to honor a legitimate request by the overwhelming majority of its senior class for a peaceful protest. Yale is one of the few campuses which has not experienced a major student explosion this year.

It was also felt that a university-sanctioned forum would head off possible disruptions by campus radicals. Student leaders of the peaceful protest claim that SDS leaders have agreed not to disrupt the graduation.

The idea for the graduation protest was formulated by Stephen B. Cohen, a graduate of Yale College and a first-year student at at Yale Law School, who has been active in anti-war causes for four years. Cohen joined with of Yale College and a first-year student at Medved, to draft and circulate the petition

In addition to the anti-war statement, Thompson is expected to read another document, signed by about 150 seniors, saying they would resist induction into the armed forces.

Vote Fight Resumes; Apathy Main Enemy

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — The French presidential campaign officially resumed today and both candidates, Georges Pompidou and Alain Poher, will be working to overcome any signs of a potential common enemy—apathy.

The electorate is sufficiently volatile that the political climate can change fast. In quick time a general atmosphere of indifference can be transformed into one of heated controversy.

The latest public opinion poll in the Paris newspaper Le Figaro shows 58 per cent of decided voters favor Pompidou.

Among voters as a whole Pompidou holds 40 per cent, with 29 per cent favoring Poher, 18 per cent intending to abstain and 13 per cent undecided.

The poll also shows that of voters who supported Communist Jacques Duclos in the first round, 51 per cent intended to abstain, 28 per cent to vote for Poher and six per cent for Pompidou, with the remainder undecided.

In the first roun-, Pompidou got 44 per cent of the vote, Poher 23 per cent and Duclos 22 per cent.

With the campaigning machinery ready to roll again, possible exhaustion from the recent succession of high-powered electioneering might readily give way to renewed excitement—despite factors that could be dampening down interest in the final-round balloting June 15.

The first such factor is that some voters seemingly feel Gaullist Pompidou has the election sewn up after his impressive victory in the first round last Sunday.

Anti-Gaullist Poher has vowed, however, to fight vigorously in the second round and a number of Socialists as well as members of his own Democratic Centre party have pledged their support.

Among these non-Communist leftists—the Communist party already having urged abstention from the June 15 vote—is part of the group led by a veteran opponent of Gaullism, Francois Mitterrand.

Though Mitterrand himself is said to have backed the idea of supporting Poher, his group's commitment seems unenthusiastic as well as only partial.

Syria Moving Nearer Reds

By United Press International

Syria moved closer to the Communist camp Thursday by establishing diplomatic relations with East Germany on this second anniversary of the start of the June 1967 six-day war.

Syria is the fourth non-Communist country to establish relations with the East German Communist regime. The others are Iraq and Sudan, which are both Arab nations, and Cambodia. Recognition followed the seizure of power 12 days ago by a new left-wing Syrian military government.

Hellyer Plans Research Before Writing First Book

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

HELLYER
. . . new career

OTTAWA — Parliament's latest aspiring author holds promise of sparking the livliest controversy since Walter Gordon sailed up the pike.

He is Paul Theodore Hellyer, erstwhile minister of defence, transport and housing, and somewhat battle-scarred veteran of 20 years of politics.

At 45 he is using his considerable will power to overcome a dislike of writing and placing phone calls to produce a book on contemporary governmental and economic systems. If his enthusiasm is sustained he may follow this with a second book dealing specifically with Canada.

A self-acknowledged "economic heretic", he indicated by his recent resignation from the Trudeau cabinet that he doesn't think Canada's system of government is particularly effective. He extends the same criticism to other countries.

Hellyer is now setting a course of personal research which will take him to some 15 countries around the world in the next year.

While persuing this new career, he does not intend to abandon his Toronto constituents, his party or Parliament.

"It is my intention at the moment to stick around until the next election," he said, which may be three years away.

And he is not going to "slam the door" on the idea of running for Parliament again although his present inclination is to go back into private life.

When he resigned from the cabinet in April there was immediate speculation that Hellyer would launch an extensive speaking campaign to explain his disagreement with the prime minister.

OFTEN ENOUGH

He now subscribes to the view that spreading one's self too thin produces little.

He will speak often enough "not to get out of the habit."

As for the rest — you can read it in his book.

NAM
. . . contacts are beginning

Coalition For South Arranged

PARIS (WP) — Overriding repeated objections by the Saigon regime, the National Liberation Front said Thursday "contacts are in the process of beginning" between itself and other opposition groups to form a provisional coalition government in South Vietnam.

Front spokesman Tran Hoai Nam disclosed the move in reply to a question as the 20th meeting of the four-power peace talks marked time before the allied consultation on Midway Island.

Nam said the contacts were being worked out both in South Vietnam and in Paris, the centre for some 30,000 Vietnamese living in France.

He did not identify those involved more than by a vague reference to the alliance of national, democratic and peace forces, "other political forces" and Paris-based "Vietnamese personalities."

The alliance was formed in South Vietnam last year and despite its alleged middle-class membership has been described as an NLF front by the allies.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu has emphatically and repeatedly rejected the coalition scheme for the simple reason that its adoption would automatically entail the abolition of his government.

First unveiled as part of the Front's 10-point peace plan on May 8, the interim coalition government proposal was designed to allow participation of political exiles as a sweetener to gain public support for the replacement of the present Saigon leadership.

In addition, the NLF plan would allow participation in the interim coalition of neutralists, now barred by the South Vietnamese constitution from any political activity.

Northern Oil Bill Approved

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Thursday approved a government bill which provides for the orderly development of oil and gas in the Canadian North.

While large finds have yet to be uncovered in either the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, oil and gas companies are spending millions of dollars this year in the belief they are on the verge of making vast discoveries such as the huge strike on the north slope of Alaska.

Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, piloting the bill through the Commons, said the bill would regulate such finds "in the best interest of Canadians."

But he rejected an NDP amendment which said the bill should not go into effect until the government has settled any claims Eskimos and Indians in the territories might have on northern lands through treaties or indigenous rights.

Mr. Chretien argued, and Deputy Speaker Jean Bechard agreed, that the question of native rights did not arise from the bill.

Earlier the Commons approved tax changes arising from last October's budget, including the two-per-cent social development tax.

MANY MPs ABSENT

More than 100 MPs were absent for the vote which saw 91 Liberals beat back a challenge from 40 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats and 10 Creditistes.

The government had little trouble defeating a series o amendments to its bill dealing with expected oil and gas finds in the North.

In a voice vote, the government rejected an NDP motion asking that three of five members of the committee to control oil and gas development in the North be public servants.

Also turned down was the NDP motion which would have limited membership on the committee to persons with no financial interest in any oil or gas company in Canada.

The bill sets a five-per-cent ownership limitation on committee members.

Another amendment which went down to defeat would have barred board members owning shares in a company from voting on issues affecting their company or a competitor.

Debate on the tax changes centred on the social development tax. It was attacked as "a tax on the poor" by the opposition because the maximum of $120 a taxpayer is reached at the $10,000—income level.

D-Day or N-Night?

FOR THE MILLIONS OF PERsons around the world who were active or fringe participants in the greatest sea-borne military invasion in history, it must come as a shock to realize that it took place a quarter of a century ago. So firmly is that vast event fixed in human memories that for many it is still real, still raw, still emotionally churning as though it had happened only recently and the sounds and smells and terrors were still abroad.

Yet a whole new generation has grown up which knows of D-Day and the Normandy invasion only as pages in the history books or entries in the family record. They can never capture the thrill that swept the free world that June 6, the electric words that sped from continent to continent, home to home, person to person: the throbbing message that the armada had sailed, that the Allies had landed, that Festung Europa was finally breached. And with it soared the universal hope that the endless agony might at last have an end, the global bloodletting at last be stanched.

It was, in a way. Eventually, the Second World War was formally concluded, the treaties were signed, the world set about rebuilding its martial abattoir into a launch pad for space exploration. But the fighting has never really ceased. It is no easier for the individual to die by the hundreds than by the thousands —and Korea, the Congo, the Middle East, Vietnam, Nigeria and many lesser stages have exhibited the age-old tragedy acted out by countless men swept into a play whose script they could not read, whose final curtain they would not see.

Today we grapple with the problem of nuclear weapons which can circle the earth to wipe out any chosen target and everything else for miles around. We speculate on the feasibility of space platforms, of the moon itself, as firing sites for even more destructive armaments. We destroy tons of obscene poisons, bacterial stocks, lethal gases—only because we have invented still worse ones. In our nerve-jangling environment of death-dealing rocketry, the wishing wells into which we once tossed pennies have become missile silos into which we now hurl billions of dollars. It is becoming evident even to governments jealous of their national security that the escalating madness cannot continue much longer.

D-Day had a glory to it: it was a historical masterpiece of human ingenuity, courage, organization, valor. But its greatest glory was that it was a vast step toward the finish, that it marked the beginning of the end, that it would be the last one ever. That essential truth of D-Day still remains: there can never be another one. For if we choose global peace we shall not need a D-Day, and if we choose the opposite we shall not live to launch one.

Riches to Rags

ALTHOUGH CANADA IS RECKoned high among the prosperous nations of the world, we have fallen on evil days in two important aspects of our national services. Our new coinage is of a cheap and unsatisfactory appearance; our postage stamp issues are a hodgepodge of colorful grist for collectors' catalogues and our mail service is more inadequate and more expensive than it has ever been.

There is some thought that the government will take another look at the current style of quarters and nickels—many people have to take two glances to make sure which is which. The tinny look and the unsatisfying ring of our coins serve only to remind us that the value of our currency is rapidly depreciating through the erosion of inflation. But do we have to advertise the fact with money that looks home-made? And whatever became of the useful fifty-cent piece? Can our booming economy not afford this extravagance?

The garishness of the stamps could be overlooked if the figures on them were printed with a clarity and conviction that made them easily readable. But the mail service is another matter—and a serious one in a country which consists mainly of a continent-wide strip of population in which easy and quick communication is an essential component of our national identity. Mail is collected less frequently from corner boxes, it is delivered less quickly than before, and it costs much more than it used to.

Many a newsletter or periodical, published solely to maintain contact within some non-profit organization or professional group, has been forced to curtail or discontinue its work because of increased postage costs. A librarian's publication, and a newsletter for victims of multiple sclerosis, are cases in point.

We should rouse ourselves from this begging-bowl environment we are creating in our national services and restore them to the quality and efficiency that should prevail. Our affairs may be in desperate straits, but we shouldn't dress to look the part.

Beds And Dollars

DESPITE A FRUSTRATING period of delay, this community now seems well-launched on a program that eventually will ease a desperate shortage of acute-care hospital beds. But it should not be assumed that pressures on hospital space will ever be eliminated. Acute beds are the most expensive to provide and are likely to be in ever-increasing demand. This will require a continuing scrutiny of how efficiently hospital beds are used.

The Journal of the American Medical Association recently published the results of a study made in seven general hospitals in a middle-sized U.S. city. Separate evaluations of bed utilization were made by local physicians and doctors from out of town.

The local MDs found that 14.3 per cent of the patients in hospital on a given day could have received adequate care in less-costly facilities. When the same patient list was assessed by outside physicians the percentage rose to 18.8 per cent. Both percentages were reached on the basis of existing facilities for other than acute-care.

The doctors were also asked to evaluate the lists as though other facilities, particularly chronic-care hospitals, were in adequate supply. Significantly, the local doctors then decided that 19.6 per cent of the patients could be removed and the outsiders recommended a 23.8 per cent clear-out. Savings implied in these statistics are considerable. The cost of providing ordinary semi-private accommodation in acute-care hospitals is approaching $100 a day in the United States, and there is fear that costs may eventually reach that level in Canada.

Provision of more low-cost, extended-care beds is one obvious solution to the problem. Most doctors would admit that acute-care length-of-stay for many patients could be significantly reduced if there were somewhere else to send them. This would mean adequate—and cheaper—recuperative facilities, or sufficiently developed home-care services. Although the quality of hospital care clearly should be the prime consideration, the problem of economics is always present—as the taxpayer is aware.

A Promising Budget—to Be Fulfilled

Western

MR. BENSON has produced an excellent budget based on Liberal principles and deserving of better times. It is a bit like adding fine new parts to a disappointing 1968 automobile while offering fervent prayers that the thing will go. The minister anticipates a growth rate of nine per cent in GNP, which would mean an advance in real output of some five per cent, "assuming an increase in prices about the same as last year." But the current expansion carried a "threat of intensified inflationary pressure." This is the prelude and it sketches a formidable prospect.

At the end Mr. Benson says of his work: "It is certainly not calculated to increase the popularity of the minister of finance. Rather it is intended to show that we really mean business in the fight against inflation."

This seems to be a description of a tough budget written by a ruthless minister. But in fact the tax changes are minor and the shift of a $250 million surplus is due, not to heavier burdens imposed at this time—the actual total of imports is marginally reduced—but the increases budgeted last October for the present year.

From this standpoint, except perhaps in regard to future intensifications of demand, the present budget does very little.

Yet it is the minister's theme, emphasized in his own summary, that: "The number one priority in economic policy today must be to deploy all available forces — public and private — more aggressively than ever in the battle against inflation."

Fashionable Talk

Is the answer to the puzzle a Draconian cutback of government expenditures which would be as effective and to most people much more welcome than increased taxation? Certainly this would accord with fashionable talk nowadays in Ottawa. But in fact budgetary expenditures are to rise by approximately $1 billion. What will happen, one wonders, when the restraints come off and the government ceases to mean business?

Or is the true calculation a hope that U.S. anti-inflationary policies will relieve the pressure here?

Although good fortune (including the time lag on medicare seems to have helped more than deliberate planning, Mr. Benson is entitled to take credit for the first surplus since the days of Mr. St. Laurent.

It cannot be said, however, that the new calculations give him much of a margin, considering the magnitude of this budget. The prospective $250 million surplus is to be compared with an error last year of more than three times that amount.

It can also be compared with deficits since 1962 which have averaged about $465 million and approached $800 million.

Market Demands Cut

On the other hand the situation looks much healthier if viewed in terms of the national accounts — by this reckoning the surplus is $575 million. It is also a great gain that the government's demands on the money market will be greatly reduced — perhaps to $200-$300 million — this year.

Within the budget Mr. Benson proposes several steps which should afford some relief, increasing with time, both to producers and consumers and also to parts of the country suffering from excessive pressures on the construction industry.

Of these, two will be particularly welcome. The minister proposes to implement immediately the final Kennedy round tariff rates.

This should have a most useful effect in stimulating competition and restraining prices. The reduction of tariffs on electrical appliances will be as popular as it is overdue since this industry has long enjoyed excessive protection supplemented by its own private regimes of restrictions. But the cuts apply to a very wide field, involving a huge volume of trade—with a surprisingly small loss (only about $50 million including sales tax) to Mr. Benson's revenues.

The second change concerns tourist exemptions. These were sharply curtailed at the time of the Conservative austerity program in 1962.

In theory, austerity was repealed years ago; in fact ministers of finance ever since have blandly ignored the continuation of restrictions intended to meet an emergency situation and to disappear with it.

At long last Mr. Benson has completely changed and substantially liberalized the exemptions for returning travellers. Again the amelioration will have little effect on the revenue position in the current year since the two most important changes take effect January 1, 1970.

The plan of deferring capital cost allowances for two years in the case of commercial buildings is intended to relieve pressure on construction, and thus to assist housing, in metropolitan areas of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

It will not affect industry or utilities but will apply to services generally. Since other provinces will not be affected it can probably be described, although in a very limited sense, as the reverse of the Marchand coin of special treatment for economically handicapped regions.

On the other hand the proposed graduated airport tax, details of which have yet to be worked out, suggests rather the philosophy of Mr. Kierans. The objective is an additional revenue of $20 million, and the most probable levy (direct or indirect, as the case may be) five per cent up to some stipulated ceiling.

In addition, and again assuming a prolonged period of inflationary pressures, Mr. Benson is extending until the end of 1970 Mr. Sharp's 3 per cent personal and corporation income surtax.

Test Still to Come

The total effect of these various minor additions and substractions to revenue is a net reduction of $15 million.

However welcome Mr. Benson's various ameliorations, especially the speed-up in tariff cuts, the test of the budget will plainly be its success or failure in breaking the inflationary psychology now gripping the country. The hard fact is that the tax measures of last October, combined with monetary restraint, have so far made no observable impression on the price surge.

Despite the undoubted inmprovement in the national balance sheet, it is not easy to see how Mr. Benson's gentler version of 1969 can have a greater impact when the minister himself assumes a continuing inflationary factor of 4 per cent.

And So to Bed

The Thunderbird Girls Drum Corps would like to thank all the wonderful people who sponsored and donated to their Wake-thon. It would be impossible to write each one a thank-you; we therefore express our sincere gratitude to everyone. The girls stayed awake 61 hours 45 minutes and 6 seconds, and collected nearly $1,300 towards their bus. — Bob Armstrong, Director, Thunderbird Drum Corps.

Misplaced Support

I should like to commend you for the publication of the article "Military Pooh-Bahs Gain U.S. Favour."

The tragedy of the whole situation is that the U.S. is the self-proclaimed exponent of democracy in the Western world and in order to establish democracy in the world they support every military dictatorship and are not prepared to change their stance. The average American has a complete mental block when it comes to change in spite of the fact that their own nation was founded on a very just revolution.

I do not believe that Brazil or any of the other dictatorships, which have the ready support of the U.S., can establish democracy overnight, but as long as the U.S. supplies arms and supports every tin-pot military dictator there will never be any chance of a peaceful change. In spite of their power the U.S. will never be able to contain the just uprisings in so many countries. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1254 Rockland.

The price of beef can be brought down in the following way:

If all housewives boycotted the buying of beef for one month, the price would inevitably fall. Let's do it.—(Miss) D. Moore.

From the Times, June 6, 1909.

The Quadra leaves today for Triangle Island where surveys for a new lighthouse will be completed. The island is situated 40 miles from Cape Scott and is a unique location for a lighthouse. The ship will also carry a cargo of lumber and other supples for a new fog alarm building to be constructed at Carmanah. The machinery is expected to arrive later this year.

Lady General Hoaxes Ally

THE political aspect of Revolutionary Warfare is at least as important as its military aspect and the two are hitched in tandem. In this strategy, propaganda is of maximum importance and it often uses lies to accomplish its ends. During March, 1969, one example of this came when Hanoi decided to blame Washington for the Communist offensive in South Vietnam although that offensive had actually been decided by Resoluion Eight of COSVN (the Central Office for South Vietnam) last October. Troops assigned to it began marching down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos from North Vietnam late in 1968 and fresh supplies were moved out from Cambodia and secreted in advance caches.

Stimulated Reaction

The offensive began Feb. 22 but stimulated hostile public reaction abroad, damaging the Communist position at Paris peace talks. Hanoi then took a major decision along lines described in the March 20, 1969, issue of "Foreign Report," newsletter of the London "Economist."

This said: "They opted for the direct lie; for the line that the present Communist attacks were essentially a counter-measure against an American 'offensive' . . . Directives were issued to Hanoi's agents in all the leading Western centers — in Paris, London and Stockholm — to push this line relentlessly . . .The most extraordinary thing is that so many intelligent people have swallowed the story."

This is, indeed, extraordinary since the offensive was planned before President Johnson completely halted U.S. bombing of North Vietnam. Painstaking military preparations took place throughout late 1968 — with no reference whatsoever to U.S. operations. Nevertheless, Hanoi subsequently pretended it only assumed the initiative in response to American offensive action — which is patently impossible because of the length of time required to plan and mount its own offensive.

Lies For Friends

Revolutionary Warfare also lies to friends. An example occurred with a Soviet agent who spoke Vietnamese, sent to inspect the guerrillas in 1965 and help Moscow decide how far it should commit itself.

An important Communist officer, Lt. Col. Le Xuan Chuyen, participated in this particular hoax and later defected. The following is taken from his taped account: "The Russian was interested in finding the extent of the development of the Front (N.L.F.). He wanted to find out about the level of military activities . . .

"The Front wanted to convince the Soviet Union not to bow to the United States . . . They wanted to have the full support of the Soviets and all the aid that could be sent . . . At that time the Soviet Union was undecided."

'Special Scene' Set Up

The Russian came in from Cambodia to see "the Military Region Headquarters commander and staff." It was difficult to arrange a real meeting so "a special scene" was prepared. The Front designed a setting which "looked like a real command headquarters to be used by a talented general in command of a guerrilla army hundreds of thousands strong . . .

"The lady (titular) General Nguyen Thi Dinh (not to be confused with the N.L.F. diplomat, Mme. Binh) was installed in a place quite close to the border, with the full trimmings, equipment, facilities and manpower, all the appearance of a real headquarters . . . She was also supposed to be a common woman who had emerged from the masses . . .

"The atmosphere was tense and seemed to reflect the active situation on the battlefield. The Russian looked very impressed with what he saw and when the men from COSVN (Central Office, South Vietnam) who really direct from the Front were sure that the time was ripe to exploit the situation they brought the Russian inside to interview Mrs. Dinh . . ."

Phone to Bunker

A telephone was run from Mrs. Dinh's "headquarters" to a nearby bunker where an experienced Viet Cong general, Nguyen Chi Thanh, sat eavesdropping. "Whenever she had to face a really difficult question from the Russian . . . she excused herself to take a phone call. It was of course from Nguyen Chi Thanh who told Mrs. Dinh the answers . . . Mrs. Dinh looks quite impressive but frankly she really lacks experience.

"They had a good kick out of laughing at the Russian. They even killed a couple of chickens to celebrate . . . The Kremlin had been fooled and for that reason they were most elated."

Similar techniques have often been applied on the American people. Revolutionary Warfare is most ingeniously practiced by Hanoi and its greatest success has been in the United States itself, major political battlefield of the Vietnam conflict.

Why Can't They Learn to Be Like Us?

By MARTIN PAGE
New Statesman

Nauru won its independence from the UN trusteeship of Britain, Australia and New Zealand on January 31, 1968, and became the Pacific's first republic.

With only one flight a fortnight, it has no hotel yet, and a visitor's visa is normally unprocurable unless you can persuade the president himself to give you one.

Eight and a half square miles large, with 5,000 citizens, Nauru claims to be not only the smallest nation in the world but also — in relation to its size — by far the richest. In its first year of independence, its income from phosphate royalties was £4.5 million, or £8,000 a family.

Most of this money is being put into development and trust funds, against the day toward the end of the century when the phosphate deposits are exhausted. But £600,000 a year is being handed out in cash to individual landowners.

It is spent quickly and with abandon on parties and luxury goods. A host will provide a bottle of liqueur whisky for each guest. He may well own a grand piano he has no intention of learning to play.

Huge Holdens, Chryslers, Fords and Toyotas clutter the island's coastal road, whose whole route can be covered in 20 minutes, while obeying the 30-mph speed-limit.

Rolex watches and Awai stereo equipment are currently in vogue, partly because of the lack of choice in the island's stores.

Europeans who claim to "know the Nauruans" assert that they are culturally and psychologically unfit to withstand the shock of so much sudden money.

The familiar theory that Pacific islanders, having had their traditional society destroyed by colonization, have failed to Westernize themselves sufficiently to survive for long in the modern world, dominates many evening drinking sessions in the white-occupied villas.

One white resident, well imbued with the general sense of impending Nauruan national doom, spoke for many when he told me: "They are having a very good time at the moment. But whether it is good for them, I very much doubt."

I have begun to wonder whether such men, and all those writers of mournful essays on the tragic corruption of the noble savage, may not be inspired more by a white arrogance than by the actual situation.

Pacific islanders in general and Nauruans in particular have resisted the destructive influences of colonization better than their mostly patronizing "protectors" realize.

★

Britain and New Zealand delegated their administrative responsibilities on Nauru to the Australians. None of the Australians, so far as I could discover, ever learnt the Nauruan language. No study was ever made of the people whose welfare the United Nations had entrusted to us. And the Australians' behavior repeatedly hurt the Nauruans.

The late Commander Garcia was one of the Australians' early administrators. He is vividly remembered for his insistence that Nauruans should bow to him as he was driving past in his car.

"If you were riding your bicycle the other way and didn't get off in time to bow really properly," I was told, "he'd have you in his office and shout and shout at you."

Some Nauruans claim that Australians called them "the smellies" behind their backs.

The Australians promulgated a Native Dancing Ordinance. This states that dances may only be held before 6 p.m. and only under white supervision. Men and women may not touch each other during dances.

Australian men and women, of course, clung to each other on the dance floor of the Europeans' club after 6 p.m. several times a week.

Nauruans were forbidden alcohol. Spying on Australian cocktail parties from hiding places in the bushes, they noted that not all Australians were innocent of the tendency towards excess, which the Australians said was a purely Nauruan shortcoming.

The administration was financed entirely from the proceeds of mining the Nauruans' phosphate. The Australians spent phosphate money lavishly on their own comforts, while the Nauruans lived in squalor.

Furthermore, the mining company, owned jointly by the British, Australian and New Zealand governments, bought the phosphate at well under the world price. Nauru's economic advisers claim that, since the war, the three governments saved themselves £34 million as a result.

The Nauruans never hit back, despite white fears at the time of independence. Towards whites, Nauruans always behaved as meekly and servilely as they guessed was expected of them.

But they never — and this is what whites really find so objectionable about Nauruans — felt any inclination to be guided by our example of civilized life, to try to "develop" themselves to become like us. In common with Fijians, they lack the capitalist instinct to accumulate wealth.

To Europeans, this spells disaster. To Nauruans, it is the essence of happiness.

Joseph P., a Nauruan in his thirties, was sinking a few bottles of beer at home, when he received a message that his sister-in-law had just given birth to a son.

He leapt into his Landrover and drove to his brother's house. He rushed in, picked up his brother's record player and took it out to his car.

He came back to take a case of whisky. He fumbled in his pockets, pulled out some sticky labels and wrote "Joseph" on them. He stuck one on the grand piano, one on the two-month-old cooking stove, one on the drawing room carpet.

"Don't let anybody else take those," he shouted to his brother "I'm just going to borrow a truck." His brother laughed and waved at him.

★

By the time Joseph got back, half a dozen other relatives were there. His brother was helping his father out with the dining table. Two other brothers were struggling with a sofa. Sisters and sisters-in-law were dismantling the bed.

"Don't you mind?" I asked the new father.

"Why should I?" he said, and went to find some beer for the company.

Nauruans lose all their personal possessions on marriage and again on the birth of their first son. Insane as it might seem, it is an effective and, to the Nauruans, amusing way of distributing wealth.

What happens, I asked, if a bridegroom or father couldn't afford to replace the goods taken from him?

"Then somebody would give him the money, of course," I was told.

Cars, watches and even houses are freely borrowed and lent for months, years and indeed forever.

An Australian stole a Nauruan's car and shipped it to Australia. Feeling remorse, he wrote a letter some months later confessing his guilt.

"We hadn't thought the man had stolen the car, only taken it away," I was told. "So we felt very sorry for him that he was feeling bad, and sent him a new car because the one he had taken was rather old."

★

Pensions exist, as does a miniature but complete welfare state. Yet they are rarely necessary because anybody who needs anything only has to ask for it. There's always somebody whose royalty payment has come up.

Nauru has no record of violent crime and no noticeable mental illness. Missionaries have failed to persuade the Nauruans that it is immoral to produce a child out of wedlock, because illegitimate children are treated quite as well as legitimate ones.

"We are trying to teach them a sense of shame," a Catholic nun said grimly. "But it is a long process."

It is considered good manners for a girl to give her firstborn to her parents to bring up, to help them occupy themselves. And young Nauruans often leave their own parents to stay with a friend's for a few years. So any illegitimate child who wants a father can choose one.

"If they don't come to terms pretty swiftly with the fact that they've got to learn to live in a Western-dominated world, and get down to learning how to think and act like Westerners, I see no hope for them," said a European official. I wonder.

Nauruans have for a long time refused to work in their own phosphate mines. In the British Phosphate Corporation's club bar it is explained by elderly but minor executives that this is because the Nauruans are spoilt and lazy.

Nauruans who had worked with phosphate for a while told me that it was because they were treated with abominable rudeness by the elderly but minor executives.

Night Is Still Ahead And America Looks Back

By NICHOLAS von HOFFMAN

Notes and random emotions on returning to Washington, D.C., after a trip to the United States of America, an absorbingly interesting country that residents of the nation's capital could profitably visit.

Over there in America, many of them are into the new Bob Dylan album. They want to ride softly with him over the Nashville skyline, loving and finding private joy: "Lay, lady, lay, lay across my big brass bed . . . why wait any longer for the world to begin . . . you can have your cake and eat it too . . . stay, lady, stay, stay with your man for awhile."

The music has heavy country and western influences. People are drawn to it for the same reason they're drawn to the Band from Big Pink with its white gospel music feel.

Need New Slogans

They're in a mood to connect themselves back with a folk past; they're trying to Americanize a peace the way Secretary Laird is trying to Vietnamize a war.

They need new slogans for their lapel buttons: Americanize America. John Dewey, where are you now that we need to be relevant?

Big Pink gave a concert in San Francisco's Winterland a few weeks ago that was historic—which means it'll be talked about for a year or 18 months.

A lot of people in the audience were smoking dope openly; it was as if the authorities were slowly giving up on enforcing the law, except against the young radicals who've been busted for pot recently. Some of them have reputations as anti-marijuana crusaders, so the suspicion is around they've been framed.

In America there's bad fighting in and around the schools. At Berkeley, the Hamburger Hill of higher education, it's a struggle over the people's park, a large vacant lot that was occupied by old Schlitz beer cans and rusty bedsprings until a few weeks ago when a group of young ones cleaned it out, planted grass and flowers, erected statues and altars to the gods currently being worshipped there and turned the place into an ad hoc, green commune.

It probably would have lasted six months and been abandoned the way most of these spurtish projects are, but the ruling powers wanted a fight. In any case, territory is a traditional causa belli.

There appears to be a slackening in the desire of school administrators to try to manage these crises. Maybe they're reacting to the criticism that they're being soft on youth. In many places the young people are the enemy and the important topic is what tactics should be used to defeat them.

The injunction is in high fashion right now. But Dr. S. I. Hayakawa at San Francisco State warns against a rigid approach. Each tactical situation is different, he reminds a visitor, stressing the need to be as flexible as the young enemy.

Good Kill Ratio

Still the trouble is spreading. Thert are more and more signs of it in the vocational and professional schools where once it was confined to the prestigious liberal arts campuses.

The administrators win many more battles than they lose, although they're having to surrender ROTC; they have an excellent kill ratio, but they can't stamp the insurrectionaries out.

It's Vietnam again, an infiltration problem. The main infiltration route is the high schools.

They send fresh cadres along the slippery trails of the college boards to resupply the young enemy with yet more aggressive soldiers.

The people who are both young and black are still frightening the people who are older and white. Nobody seems particularly grateful that the young and the black are trying to shoot their way into the schools instead of the banks.

DYLAN

The idea of free, universal higher education has been dropped in favor of a more constricted belief in protecting standards. It's forgotten that some states once had laws requiring the admission of any resident high school graduate into the state university.

Third of Lives

Nobody much in America is wondering about a system of growing people up that keeps them in school from 16 to 20 years. A long time ago the social critic Paul Goodman suggested it was weirdly unnatural for people to spend close to a third of their lives in classrooms, but these huge places of educational incarceration are still looked at as the only way to train up the young to run a technological society.

In America they don't seem to talk about President Nixon much. Sometimes they watch him play happy birthday on the piano over TV. They see his twinkly fingers and see him smiling at them and maybe they wiggle their fingers back at him.

The jokes they tell aren't nasty the way they were with the other man. They're pessimistic, futile, like the one that runs, "He's so ineffectual that when he calls his dog even it won't come."

Tired of Horror

In America they're getting inured to horrible things, burning and shooting and trying to kill each other in the streets. They're getting used to it, but not so much that they're indifferent. They're tired.

They're not yet so crazy from hurting each other that they want to keep it up, but they're stuck in it, disbelieving anybody can get anything done.

People think that the war will last forever, the ghettos too, and that they'll never build a safe automobile. They don't believe anything counts.

Like why get exited over the new chief justice? The old one was pretty good and what difference did it make?

This mood may only last a few weeks or months. The high energy may be back by summer. Sometimes a dominant mood lasts no longer than a record album.

Dylan's been through four different styles in the last few years and each of them has expressed the over-riding feeling of the moment. Now he's singing, "Stay, lady, stay, stay while the night is still ahead."

Buying Animals 'For a Giggle'

By ANTHONY SMITH
The Times, London

Some time soon, if conservationists and others have their way, there will be an international convention on the import and export of animals.

At present there is nothing of the kind. One nation with money to spare can strip another country of its animals, and the rest of the world can only watch.

Air travel has been largely responsible for the recent boost in the wild animal trade. It reduces the time between capture and sale so much that many of the more perishable species have suddenly become profitable.

●

In fact BOAC carries more live animals than people in a year. The United States imports 92 per cent of its annual consumption of 28 million live animals by air.

The exporting countries in general are even less concerned. Most animals come from the poorer and less well developed nations, the regions where large numbers of animals can still be wild.

●

The importers are the richer countries, whose inhabitants can afford to buy a monkey for a giggle.

Therefore the trade helps money to flow from the rich to the poor, and a poor country is unlikely to operate effective legislation to prevent such a traffic.

The supplies must dry up; as has happened with so many profitable animals in the past.

Latin America, for example, is busy stripping its forests to provide for the biggest consumer nation of them all: 115,458 ocelot skins and 35,748 otter skins went to the United States from South America in 1967.

For years imports will flow unabated, with this very profusion allaying any fears for the source. Then the imports will suddenly cease and concern will be too late.

The hostel of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals at London Airport is not only a well-kept and vital transit lounge for most animals passing through London airport, but an excellent source of facts.

●

Once again the casual attitude is remarkable, because the airport authorities are obviously content to let a charity take over their duties.

There is no other animal hostel in Britain, neither airlines nor airports keep lists of animals carried, and the London hostel does not know for sure what proportion of animals arriving at London actually passes through its doors.

●

Anyhow, this one hostel witnessed in 1966 the arrival of 345 tree shrews, 393 bushbabies, 1,735 marmosets, 1,695 baboons, 309 chimpanzees, 31,891 monkeys, and another 3,000 mammals of various sorts — making a grand total of 39,293.

By comparison London Zoo, which holds by far the biggest collection of animals in Britain, acquires about 250 mammals a year.

The hostel's intake of 400,000 birds in 1966 included 138 hawks, 97 eagles, 396 cranes, 4,100 parrots, 8,543 lovebirds, 10,755 parrakeets and 320,000 that can conveniently be lumped together as seed-eaters.

"If you had to choose between hiring a permanently disabled man and one who wasn't, when both could do the job equally well, which man would you choose?"

CYRIL WHITE Chairman
WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION
BOARD OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

I believe every man should have an equal opportunity for employment. He should be given the chance to show his ability to do the job whether he is disabled or not. I believe this is an employer's responsibility. Every year in B.C., more than 1,000 men and women sustain permanent, partial disabilities in industrial accidents. Many have been rehabilitated by the Workmen's Compensation Board with the co-operation of employers and return to their regular employment. They are still a valuable human resource. When given the opportunity, they can more than compensate for their disabilities by doing a better job for their employers by concentrating their energies on the work they can do. It is good business to offer disabled persons the chance of employment.

Labour, management and the Workmen's Compensation Board have been working together to reduce the toll of industrial accidents for many years—but there is still much room for improvement. Hazardous work can usually be made less dangerous by complying with strict safety regulations prescribed by the Board. The Workmen's Compensation Board is embarking on an important campaign to educate and remind workers of the need to take every safety precaution in the course of their jobs.

The combined efforts of labour, management and the Workmen's Compensation Board are needed to help reduce the more than 90,000 industrial injuries incurred every year in B.C. and to return disabled workers to productive employment.

Employers having job openings for disabled persons should contact the Board's vocational rehabilitation department.

'Pass On Savings, Or Else!'

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal department of consumer and corporate affairs is working out methods of ensuring that all possible savings from tariff cuts on imported goods be passed on to the consumer.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford indicated in the Commons Thursday that the government would be ready to take legislative action to make sure consumers got the savings if less drastic measures failed.

"Whether legislation is to be introduced at some future time will depend on actions in the private sector," he said.

But he made it clear that the first attempt would be made through persusasion and the force of public opinion, an approach his department used in making sure that the removal of federal indirect sales tax on drugs was reflected in lower prices.

In his budget speech Tuesday, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced that tariff cuts that were to have been made by Jan. 1, 1972, would take effect immediately. They average about three per cent and affect some $2.1 billion worth of imports, 80 per cent of them from the United States.

Basford told the Commons that since the government decision to speed up the tariff cuts was made his department had been working on "A proper kind of machinery" to ensure "that where savings by means of these reductions can be passed on, they will in fact be passed on to the consumers of Canada."

City Life Darkens Alley Cats

WASHINGTON (WP) — Maybe you haven't noticed it, but scientists have: City cats are growing darker than their country cousins.

The trend to darker coloration, according to a report of the National Academy of Sciences here, is evident in a statistical analysis of 5,500 cats in the U.S. and abroad.

Dr. Neil Todd, an evolutionary biologist and director of the Carnivore genetic research centre, Newtonville, Mass., said that the genetic change in color may be due to the higher pressures of city living, where a feline desirous of avoiding confrontations with its own kind develops camouflage.

Todd, who reported the phenomenon to the 4th International Laboratory Animal Conference, admitted scientists "have only questions but no answers" on the trend. He said research on cats is important because they are a "unique resource" in the study of human adaption to environmental conditions.

Although the genetic change that darkens city alley cats cannot be directly extrapolated to man, he said, cats possess three unusual characteristics as related to humans: They are highly variable physically, they breed randomly and they share their environment with man.

Also, Todd said, because cats pass through 15 generations for every one of humans, their gene shifts are more readily apparent.

'Exile' Suggested By Vatican

By WILLIAM R. MacKAY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON —The Most Rev. James P. Shannon, whose resignation as Roman Catholic auxiliary Bishop of St. Paul and Minneapolis was disclosed last week, said Wednesday he was advised by a Vatican diplomat here to follow his departure from office with a self-imposed exile in a foreign country.

Bishop Shannon said he discussed this plan for his future, which was proposed by Archbishop Luigi Raimondi, the apostolic delegate to the United States, at two meetings with the delegate at his office here. He said he has now decided "I cannot bring myself to accept" such a suggestion.

CLARIFY

The new disclosure by the 48-year-old bishop was contained in a statement that he described as an endeavor "to clarify the facts" in view of an explicit denial by a church official in St. Paul that he had resigned.

The official, the Very Rev. Msgr. Terrance Berntson, chancellor of the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, also denied that Bishop Shannon and his superior, Archbishop Leo Binz of St. Paul, had discussed the resignation at their last meeting May 18.

Msgr. Berntson was unavailable Wednesday. The person who answered the chancery telephone, who said she was instructed not go give her name, said she had been told to say only there "will be no statement" about Bishop Shannon.

Bishop Shannon confirmed last week that he had written a private letter to Pope Paul VI in which he declared that "after much anguish and prayer he felt obliged to report to the Pontiff he could not accept the papal teaching on birth control."

Anti-Castro Trio Faces Bomb Charge

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Three members of the Cuban nationalist movement have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to bomb Cuban property in Canada.

The indictment handed down Wednesday charges Guillermo Novo Sampol, 29, Filipe Martinez y Blanca, 25, and Hector Diaz Limontes, 35, with conspiring to damage or destroy the Cuban consulate and the Cuban trade commission in Montreal and several Cuban steamships.

The conspiracy charges against the three members of the anti-Castro organization carry a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Cities Seek More Power In Government Affairs

By DAN TURNER

OTTAWA (CP) — The 32nd conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities ended Thursday after having directed its executive to go after more municipal power in Canadian governmental decisions.

The conference passed three similar resolutions recommending its board of directors push the federal and provincial governments for municipal representation at federal-provincial constitutional conferences.

Another recommendation called for the executive to seek out leaders of provincial municipal associations and attempt to form a committee of combined federal-provincial executives to negotiate with the senior governments on the municipal place in the power structure.

The federation does not have direct structural links with the provincial bodies, though provincial association presidents are designated as ex-officio members on its board of governors.

Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier John Robarts of Ontario both told this year's conference the door was open for the municipalities to pick up some strength if the municipalities could suggest a formula.

Montreal does not belong to the federation. Its position is that the federation couldn't accomplish anything that the provincial associations couldn't do for themselves.

Mayor Allan O'Brien of Halifax, new federation president, said Thursday he will consider asking each of the provincial associations to seek representation directly on the provincial delegation to provincial conferences, and to find out whether it would be "appropriate" to have representatives of the federation at the conferences.

He acknowledged that he would have to get all 10 provinces to agree, in which case "we might be able to co-ordinate a joint municipal effort."

Kaiser Criticism Invalid—Minister

Mines Minister Frank Richter said Thursday he is satisfied Kaiser Corp. is not responsible for silt pollution in Harmor Creek and other trout streams near its open-pit mine in the Kootenays.

The pollution is attributable to heavy winter snows, warm spring rains and heavy runoff creating "a situation which doesn't normally exist."

The minister, with department personnel responsible for enforcing land reclamation provisions of the new strip-mining legislation, made a personal tour of the area last week.

He said they found creeks and streams in watersheds not connected with runoff in the Kaiser area but with similar silt problems.

The company "is getting a great deal of criticism" it doesn't deserve, he said.

Kaiser had some problems with settling basins constructed to clear silt from runoff water before the flow reached the streams. This situation is being corrected, said the minister.

"They are making every effort to do a good job," he added, assuring reporters as he entered a cabinet meeting that mines department officials are maintaining a close watch and the company has no opportunity "to go wrong."

Richter estimated his department has received 20 to 30 applications from mining companies containing proposed plans for reclaiming mined land. He said only 26 mines now are operating in the province.

Papers Should Plan For Mass Education

By DAVE BARKER

MONTREAL (CP) — Newspaper libraries will become more and more involved with general education in the future and should plan accordingly, a microfilm expert said Wednesday.

D. W. McArthur, vice-president of the microfilm products division of 3M Co., formerly Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing of St. Paul, Minn., told the 60th annual convention of the Special libraries Association that this company is "investing research and development dollars to meet this challenge."

He said the public, especially students, are using newspapers for both general and specialized information.

"While the costs of a sophisticated computer-interfaced microfilm retrieval system may be hard for you to justify to your management if its purpose is only for internal use, the demands of the education community may change that."

The first practical use of microfilm was in 1870 by the French who sent microfilmed messages by carrier pigeon to Paris, surrounded during the Franco-Prussian War.

Mr. McArthur said there have been many since then.

RETRIEVED QUICKLY

Now written reports can be filmed onto an electronic data processing card which can be retrieved quickly by computer for any user.

The information on the card can then be "read" and printed out by the computer.

This speeds access to information and saves space, he said.

Most of about 1,500 delegates who attended the convention in Montreal visited Ottawa or Quebec City Thursday.

On Wednesday, Trevor Lloyd, geography professor at McGill University and board chairman of the Arctic Institute of North America, said lack of planning for Canada's north will lead to "an environmental shambles in the name of development" and "miniature subtopian monstrosities dotting the tundra."

"To bring about development of a new north in which living conditions for all are what they should be," the natural environment is preserved and the resources are utilized wisely and efficiently will require all the scientific, technological and administrative skill that can be mustered."

But military security measures have restricted knowledge of the north, he said.

Couple Held For Forgery

BRUSSELS (AP) — A Canadian and a Frenchman wanted by Interpol in connection with art forgeries estimated at $65,000,000 have been arrested in Belgium, a Brussels court confirmed Thursday.

The men are Canadian Real Lessard, 30, and Lucien Borone, 37, a Frenchman living in Brussels. They were arrested last Friday after police checked their car for a parking offence and discovered several paintings by Van Dongen, Derain and Vlaminck.

RENOVATIONS AT MT. DOUG

The provincial government has approved calling tenders on renovations to Mount Douglas Senior Secondary School estimated to cost $65,000.

The changes will add washrooms, a lunch room and a band room. An activity room will be partitioned to provide additional teaching areas.

The renovations are part of a reorganization which will see Mount Douglas converted to a junior secondary school, Gordon Head converted to a senior secondary school, and a new junior secondary school built at Arbutus and Finnerty.

Documents Cost Publisher Fine

LONDON (CP) — A British bookseller and his firm, involved in the shipment of Bertrand Russell's papers to a Canadian university, have been fined £25 (about $65) for exporting documents more than 100 years old without a government permit.

Other government charges, that bookseller Ronald Taylor of London deliberately evaded export restrictions, were dismissed in Magistrate's Cout.

The charges followed the sale last year of Lord Russell's family papers to McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont. The university negotiated for the prized documents under stiff international competition and was reported to have paid a large price for them.

'Keep Joey' Move

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A movement was unveiled Wednesday night among members of the Newfoundland government to persuade Premier Joseph Smallwood to reverse an announced decision to retire this year after 20 years in office.

Moderate Student Leader Slams Service Club Status

VANCOUVER (CP) — The former student president of Simon Fraser University told members of a service club Thursday they are obsolete, finished and "Not of our world."

Rob Walsh, considered a moderate when he steered a split student body through the three-day occupation of SFU's administration building last November and the aftermath of criminal charges against 114, told the Kiwanis meeting:

"The life you lead today is obsolete.

"Your life isn't entirely meaningless, but it is finished. Superfluous wealth and social status are not our goals. We have no intention of working a 40-hour week in a job which isn't relevant."

He also attacked the three dominant political parties in British Columbia, saying he as "fed up with (Premier) Bennett parading around, building dams and paving potholes."

"I look at the provincial Liberal party and I have a deep feeling of depression" while the New Democratic Party is "still in its political puberty. It is intellectually obsolete."

He sais students have two alternatives — join one of the unsatisfactory parties or resign from the contest and "watch stupidity reign."

"Then we might have to move in."

He also called the militant Students for a Democratic University, which spearheaded the occupation last year, essentially "Puritan reactionaries."

TURNS 'CORNER' WITH TRADE WINDS

Ra Floats on Top Like a Cork

By THOR HEYERDAHL

PAPYRUS CRAFT MET SEA'S CHALLENGE WELL.

ABOARD THE RA, AT SEA — After one week of drifting and sailing along the coast of North Africa, Ra "turned the corner" with wind and currents pushing us in a big southwestern curve towards America.

Except for a single day, we have had very rough and very high waves and swells, with breaking crests crashing against us incessantly and in close succession. But Ra floats on top like a cork.

We expect this battle with the rough sea to diminish considerably when we get deeper into the trade wind area, without interference from the mainland coast or the straits between the Canary Islands, which whip up confused current swells.

Rudders Splinter

Skilled as modern man can be in papyrus boat navigation, we have struggled hard to learn to avoid shipwreck on the Moroccan coast. Everything we put into the sea to govern our course against a turbulent ocean was quickly broken. Only the papyrus bundles held up to all strain.

Both of our 30-foot long steering rudders splintered simultaneously. We did not insert the third one, held in reserve, for fear it would also break and leave us unable to navigate in the open Atlantic.

Forced to steer to avoid the shoreline, three of our 16-foot rowing oars were used as rudders. These also broke, and another was lost. Simultaneously, the yardarm holding our sail broke. Without sail or rudder, we had to manage with floating sea anchors and the remaining oars.

Our problems were complicated by the fact that two men — one of them our only true sailor — were under medical care and partly confined to the 10-by-12 wickerwork cabin during these critical days.

To New World

We could well imagine what could have happened to ancient voyagers who might have attempted to navigate along this same coast. If left prey to the elements with broken rudders, they would either have risked shipwreck by running ashore on the reefs or struggled to keep clear of land — and found themselves in the open ocean after passing Cape Juby.

They, like us, would then have been in the hands of the great ocean current and perpetual trade winds moving away from Africa, carrying them toward the new world.

Today, with North Africa and the Canary Islands behind us, and with all seven men recovered and in full action, we have regained complete control of our ship. The yardarm has been spliced and the big sail with its orange-colored solar disc is once more filled with wind, driving us west at a speed of two to three knots.

Now nobody struggles with oars or rope. The Ra keeps its own course, steered with a makeshift rudder formed by a broken blade lashed by rope to a solid beam brought along as reserve for the mast.

We have resumed with great success the peculiar mechanism copied from the ancient Egyptian design. Our earlier problems could have been avoided if our rudders had been made from a thicker and stronger timber.

Whale Spotted

Our multi-national crew has functioned well beyond expectation. Despite linguistic handicaps, the friendship and co-operation have been perfect.

Norman Baker, the American, has directed the handling of the sails and maintained radio contact with the United States, Russia, Norway and Italy, even when confined to his sleeping bag with a high fever. Today he is in full activity with complete control of communications and navigation.

Dr. Yuri Senkevich, a Russian, is quickly learning seamanship. Thanks to his medical skill, our two patients recovered in record time.

Abdoulaye Djibrime, from Chad in Central Africa, had never seen the ocean before and marvelled at the discovery that the water was salt, while mistaking a spouting whale for a hippopotamus. He is a skilled carpenter by profession and that is precisely what we needed to repair and substitute all the wood that broke.

Carlo Mauri, the Italian alpine guide and one of the world's foremost mountain climbers, is the only one who was able to climb the madly-weaving bipod mast in our days and nights of difficulty. He is an unsurpassed expert in handling ropes and knots.

Santiago Genoves, the Mexican scientist who specialized in early man and ancient culture, quickly understood Ra's peculiar steering mechanism. His methodic mind and languageability have made him a perfect quartermaster, keeping order in our hundreds of ceramic jars, goatskin bags and woven baskets containing provisions and drinking water that fill almost every inch of our deck.

Gourmet Diet

He and our multi-lingual Egyptian crewman, Georges Sourial, are immense assistance as interpreters. Only the three of us can speak all three languages used constantly in our daily work — English, French, and Italian.

With Abdoulay, Georges also speaks Arabic and a bit of French.

Besides being our fisherman and underwater expert, Georges has also proven to be an excellent cook, preparing oriental dishes every bit as good as Carlo's exquisite Italian cooking.

There is no canned food aboard — only provisions that can be carried in their dried or liquid state.

Our main source of amusement is our little monkey, Safi, named after our port of departure. He's been dressed in diapers and pants and the crew is caring for him like a human baby.

Ships Look

In addition, we have 20 live chickens and one duck aboard. When the seabirds kept circling around us during the first days at sea, Carlo remarked that they mistook us for a huge floating bird's nest.

However we might appear to the boats that have passed us — some ocean steamers literally stopped and turned about to take a closer look — the crew agree that no modern ship of comparable size would have been able to keep crew and cargo dry through such a beating as our papyrus vessel has taken during the first 10 days and nights from the open seas.

The bundels of papyrus stalks, lashed together to form our compact raft ship, have undoubtedly absorbed many tons of sea water, only to swell slightly and to pull the rope lashings tight. There is not yet any evidence of decomposition. On the contrary, the body of the vessel seems much stronger and more resistant than when it was dry ashore.

Our weakest part has proven to be not the papyrus and ropes which make up the actual vessel, but the outboard oars.

With these spliced and strengthened, we face the open ocean ahead with the same optimism as when Ra first launched at Safi 18 days ago.

'Haymaking Bosses' Check Sour Grapes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A delegation of 31 political, labor and church leaders from Canada Thursday began an inspection of conditions in California's Joaquin and Coachella valley vineyards as guests of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO.

At Indio, President Michael Bozick of the Desert Grape Growers League said in a statement the Canadian visitors are "either complete hypocrites or a band of innocents."

He said they should return home and "work to bring their Ontario farm workers up to the same standards and wage scales that they have observed among our grape workers."

Bozick said California grape workers earn $2.50 an hour while Canadian pickers get between $1 and $1.20.

"One expects nothing from these Toronto labor bosses who are here on a political, haymaking junket . . . but to the well-meaning members of the group we expect them to be our guests . . . to look at all the facts and to report the truth on their return—that our workers are not helpless migrants, exploited and underpaid, but happy, healthy residents of our community, earning wages far in excess of wages earned in comparable occupations elsewhere."

TELLS OF SUPPORT

Rev. Arch McCurdy of Toronto, representing the United Church of Canada, said: "There has never been a strike, even in my own country, which has attracted so much support."

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers and general vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said his nation usually buys more than 15 per cent of the California table grape crop. However, he noted that the three largest grocery store chains in Canada have agreed not to purchase California grapes.

The UFWOC last year organized the boycott in the United States to force growers to recognize the union as collective bargaining agent for vineyard workers.

McDermott said longshoremen in Finland and Norway have told the Canadians they will refuse to unload California grapes.

The Canadians said they would join UFWOC pickets in Delano and Coachella to demonstrate support for the union's strike and boycott.

Priest Risks Getting Dunked

Rev. Peter Isles will risk a ducking at the entertainment to be staged by young people at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Boleskine Road, Saturday.

BALLET DANCERS FLEE LONDON FIRE

LONDON (CP) — Three members of Les Grandes Ballets Canadiens, the touring Montreal ballet troupe, fled from smoke-filled hotel rooms at dawn today when fire caused heavy damage to a tourist hotel in West End Bayswater.

Margery Lambert, a native of New Westminster, was treated in hospital for shock before being released. She and her husband, Portugal-born Amando Jorge, escaped down firemen.s ladders after waking in their fourth-floor rooms to find the hotel filled with smoke. Both are leading dancers with the company.

Guy Lamarre of Montreal, assistant general manager, fled down the stairs from his fifth-floor room in another part of the hotel with a towel wrapped around his face to keep off the smoke.

Sophisticated Or Fiery Chief?

By TERRY ROBERTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba New Democratic Party makes its decision Saturday afternoon—whether its leader will be a fiery labor-oriented lawyer or a cool, sophisticated former professor.

Party officials say the selection of either peppery Sid Green or suave Ed Schreyer at the one-day leadership convention will determine the NDP course in the June 25 provincial election campaign.

Mr. Green, 39-year-old lawyer for the steelworkers union, describes himself as a socialist while Mr. Schreyer, 33-year-old MP for Selkirk, says he is a "social democrat."

Both men say, however, there is no policy split between them and both have been making similar speeches while on the campaign trail together.

Party workers, who say the NDP is making its strongest bid in recent times in this election, agree that the voting by the 530 delegates at the convention will be close.

Both camps claim to have lined up a majority of the delegates, but officials believe each man's performance on the convention floor will be a big factor in the outcome.

Mr. Green, MLA for the north Winnipeg riding of Inkster in the last legislature, says he believes he can steer the party to a victory in the election, toppling the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Walter Weir.

"They've (the government) run out of arguments to defeat our reasonable, rational and pragmatic proposals, and that's why people are turning to the NDP," he told one meeting.

Mr. Schreyer, formerly a professor and MLA for Brokenhead eight years before he ran federally, describes the Weir administration as "dull, unimaginative, dull."

Party workers believe the least the NDP can do in the election is to topple the Liberal party from the official opposition.

SHORT ONE SEAT

The NDP moved to within one seat of becoming the Opposition in four byelections earlier this year. The NDP took one seat and the Conservatives the others, shutting out the Liberals.

The last general election was in 1966.

Party standings in the 57-seat legislature at dissolution May 22 were: Conservatives 31, Liberals 13, NDP 12, Social Credit one.

Under its new leader, the party should be able to knock off a few Liberals and Conservatives and possibly force a minority government, NDP officials say.

Mr. Schreyer has not yet resigned his federal seat, presumably waiting the outcome of the Saturday leadership question. He has not yet stood for nomination in any constituency and has not said whether he will run regardless of the leadership.

Mr. Green has already been nominated to contest Inkster.

Delegates at the convention, originally set for June 28-29 but moved ahead because of the election, are to begin voting at 2 p.m. CDT after a tribute has been paid to retiring Leader A. R. (Russ) Paulley.

The 59-year-old Mr. Paulley, who has been at the helm since 1960, is stepping down as leader due to ill health but has been nominated to run in Transcona.

Haiti Seeks U.S. Protection

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Haiti Wednesday asked the United States for aerial protection for Port au Prince following the bombing of the Haitian capital.

Haitian Ambassador Arthur Bonhomme told reporters he transmitted the request for U.S. air cover because Haiti has no air force.

The ambassador said Haiti was due protection under inter-American treaties.

There was no immediate comment from the state department on the Haitian request.

MONOPOLISTIC control of oil industry causes consumers to pay an additional five cents a gallon for their gasoline, Max Saltsman (NDP-Waterloo) told the Commons Thursday. He said it is naive to think an overseeing committee on northern gas exploration will avoid mistakes of past resource development.

7 WARRIORS DIE IN OVERNIGHT DUEL

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Six Arab guerrillas and one Israeli soldier were killed during the night in a number of clashes in the Jordan Valley, an army spokesman announced today.

The Israeli soldier was killed in an exchange of fire between an Israeli patrol and guerrillas near the Mandassa bridge Thursday night.

Then, two hours later, an Israeli patrol encountered a guerrilla force near the Damiya Bridge and in the exchange of fire four Arab guerrillas were killed.

Give your wife the runaround

This one. It will run her around anywhere her heart desires. And run you around $1845. Which is a small price to pay.

While you're figuring, here are some other numbers. 35 to 40 miles per gallon, 62 hp, and 80 m.p.h. They add up to quite a car.

In its price the Datsun 1000 carries all the little attentions a woman appreciates. There are reclining bucket seats, all-vinyl upholstery and padded everything. There are carpets, white walls, a tinted windshield and a cigarette lighter. Plus an alternator, windshield-washers, and an all-synchro four-on-the-floor on both 2 and 4-door models. Extras? Who needs them?

One more thing: the runaround will keep running. We had a professional car-breaker work it over and he couldn't make it quit. He did things to that chic little car that shouldn't be allowed, yet he couldn't break it. So we figure your wife can't either. But if you ever need parts, there are 160 Datsun dealers from coast to coast, backed by a million dollars worth. So give your wife the runaround. She'll love you for it.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Again Slip

The New York market tumbled to a sizable loss after starting with a minor gain. Toronto followed, moving into its fifth consecutive day of decline.

AT TORONTO final volume was 5,784,000 shares compared with 6,647,000 Thursday.

In industrials, Home B dropped 4⅜ to 64, Home A 3⅛ to 69⅛, Canadian Breweries 2⅛ to 12 and TransCanada Pipe-Lines 2 to 41½.

Fibre rose 2½ to 18¾, CHUM A 1½ to 19½ and Block Bros. ⅛ to 8⅜.

Yellowknife Bear was down 1¼ to 13½, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 12¾ and International Mogul ½ to 23. Placer was up 1½ to 41.

Chieftain lost 1⅛ to 12¾, Reserve ¾ to 20 and Canadian Gridoil ¾ to 22.

AT NEW YORK the market dropped in reaction to a raise in the broker loan rate to 8½ per cent from 7½ per cent by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Prices near the close included Standard Oil Ohio, up 3¼ at 98¼; Occidental Petroleum, off 1 at 40¼; Benguet, off 1⅛ at 27½, and Chrysler, off 1⅛ at 48⅜.

AT MONTREAL—After wavering at the open, most prices slid during heavy afternoon trading.

Papers, weighed by apparent profit-taking, sagged most.

In banks, Commerce was up ¼ to 20½ and Nova Scotia ⅛ to 23⅞ while Royal was off ½ to 21½. Montreal was unchanged at 15⅛.

Among industrials, Canadian Hydrocarbons declined 1⅝ to 33⅝. International Nickel 1 point to 40⅞, Wabasso ¾ to 20 and Consolidated-Bathurst ½ to 26. Canadian Breweries was off ⅝ to 13½ after trading 168,747 shares while Donohue was unchanged at 11⅛.

Reitman's rose 1¼ to 20½, Alcan ⅝ to 32½, MacKinnon ¾ to 24 and Viau ¾ to 15.

British Columbia Telephone slipped 1 point to 74 and Brazilian Light ¾ to 20 while International Utilities picked up ⅞ to 44.

In senior mines and oils, Dome Pete was off 1½ to 102 and Pacific Pete ¾ to 41 while Placer was up 1½ to 41 and Triad 25 cents to 6.00.

AT LONDON prices were generally lower in dull trading.

Leaders to show falls of up to six pence included ICI, Fisons, and Glaxo, while Courtaulds and Dulop fully recovered initial losses.

The termination of merger talks between Unilever and Allied Breweries lifted Unilever 7½d but pushed Allied 10½d down.

Another sharp fall in the dollar premium contributed to widespread losses in dollar stocks.

Canadian oils came in for further profit-taking, with Dome 5 points lower. Banks declined with Toronto Dominion 1s 6d lower.

In United States issues, Standard Oil N.J. fell 2¼ and American South African gained 4 points.

AT VANCOUVER a special sale of 400,000 Integrated Wood Products shares helped push the trading volume to more than 3,000,000 shares before noon.

Integrated was listed for the first time today. It hit a low of $6.50 and was tradin at $8.12 before noon.

Prices were mixed in other trading activity. Anuk in the mines gained .14 to $1, Capri dropped .06 to $1.41 and Largo slipped .10 to $1.88.

Among the industrials, Whonnock Lumber added .25 to $23 and House of Stein was up .75 to $12.25. Driver Development lost .37 to $7.50.

United Bata in the oils was up .25 to $12 and Syracuse lost .15 to $6.65.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) Trade was txtremely light at the close of the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Flax and rapeseed were generally fractionally easier on thin buyer interest. Exporters continued inactive.

Feed grains were steady, with light domestic shipper trade in barley.

Small exporter buying strengthened rye fractionally. Offers were light.

Sale of 60,000 bushels of flax and 75,000 of rapeseed to Japan was confirmed overnight.

Volume of trade Thursday was 882,000 bushels of flax, 684,000 of rapeseed, 450,000 of rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices slipped about one cent Friday on the Board of Trade. Other grains and soybeans prices were mixed to lower.

Corn showed some activity, but trading in other pits was slow.

Wheat came under some selling pressure, influenced by a drop of about one cent on the Kansas City market. Commission houses were active in mixed trading, mostly selling.

Oats were mixed and rye was fractionally lower in light trading.

Ginter Group May Bid on Molson Brew

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Industrialist Ben Ginter says that he and undisclosed European partners may make a bid for control of Molson's Breweries which operates nine breweries in Canada.

"That's why I'm going to Europe for a while," he said in an interview. "I don't know if this deal will work out or not."

Ginter, who recently announced a $12,000,000 expansion proposal involving his Tartan Brewery Ltd. plant here and four other brewery plants in western provinces, said he was approached two weeks ago by a representative of the European brewery.

Ginter said if he and his European partners decide to make a bid to major shareholders next week, it will only be for the breweries and not the Montreal Canadiens National Hockey League team. The bid also would not include Vilas Industries Ltd. in Cowansville, Que., which manufactures furniture and school equipment, and is controlled by Molsons.

Ginter said controlling interest in the brewery company could be a matter of an $115,000,000 investment.

"I've got a man in Vancouver doing research for me on how many blocks of shares to buy and what to buy them at," he said.

Asked if he was approached because of recent experience by Rothmans and Philip Morris in bids to control Canadian breweries, Ginter said "No doubt that spearheaded their decision to approach me.

"However, I have no doubts that this brewery can accomplish the complete takeover by themselves if they wanted to because they have the money to do it."

Invited to become a fellow of the Royal Institute of Chemistry is former Victorian Dr. Lionel Cox, director of research of MacMillan Bloedel, who also is named to the Chemical Institute of Canada. Dr. Cox was a lecturer at University school from 1935-1940.

UK Moves May Hurt Canada's Wheat Exports

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said today protective devices planned or undertaken by Britain "could have substantial distorting effects" on Anglo-Canadian trade.

He expressed concern that relations between the two countries may be badly hit in the future if Britain persists in measures to restrain imports while encouraging greater home production to replace traditional purchases from abroad.

"Let me be more specific," Pepin said in a speech before the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Britain.

"The British government is giving special encouragement to domestic production in the fields of agriculture and industrial materials to reduce the level of imports.

"In some fields this kind of policy could have substantial distorting effects on our trade. For example, British wheat production is being increased. Canadian wheat and flour exports to Britain have declined substantially in recent years . . ."

BUSINESS and FINANCE

TO-Dom Bank

The Toronto-Dominion Bank said its lending rate would be increased by ¼ of 1 per cent effective Monday.

In commenting, a bank spokesman said the increase to 7¾ per cent is necessary because of strong loan demand and the sharp increase in the cost of short-term funds. Rates in the world markets of London and New York have been climbing steeply in recent weeks.

Average demand loan rate is expected to be about 8½ per cent.

Royal Securities

A dozen young employees of Royal Securities Corp. Ltd. has given up the idea of preventing control of the company from falling into American hands.

Alan Gordon, president of Royal Securities, said the employees attempted to find a way to prevent the takeover of the investment firm by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc. of New York.

Labatt-Fanny

John Labatt Ltd. said it has discussed with Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Inc. of Cambridge, Mass., possible purchase of the U.S. company's controlling interest in Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd. of Toronto.

Labatt's said it does not intend to buy any other Laura Secord shares.

No suggested purchase price was made public. Nor did Labatt's say when it might make its formal offer.

Western

Western Broadcasting Ltd. Thursday announced its entry into the community TV antenna field.

The company, which has previously confined its operation to radio and television, has purchased 38 per cent of the outstanding shares of Express Cable TV, operators of an antenna system in North Vancouver.

The purchase, subect to approval by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, will make Western the largest single shareholder in Express.

Int. Utilities

International Utilities Corp. had net income of $12.2 million or 99 cents a share for the first three months of 1969 compared with $11.3 million or 99 cents a share in the similar period last year.

In a letter to shareholders, president John M. Seabrook said the company's utilities operations showed "substantial improvement" over last year, due partly to cold weather in western Canada.

The company had total revenues of $181 million for the first quarter of 1969 compared with $157.4 million a year earlier. Expenses rose to $172 million from $147.8 million.

Andres Wines

Andres Wines Canada Ltd. has started an expansion program which will increase the capacity of its wineries in British Columbia, Alberta and Nova Scotia.

President J. A. Peller of Hamilton, said the capacity of Andres' main plant at Port Moody, will be doubled and the capacity of wineries in Calgary and in Nova Scotia will be increased by 25 per cent.

Speaker to be featured at annual dinner of Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association Thursday in Vancouver Hotel will be Edwin M. Hood, president of Shipbuilders Council of America, Washington, D.C. Two-day meeting opens Wednesday with J. Eric Harrington, president of Canadian Vickers Ltd., presiding.

Higher Earnings For Bethlehem

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bethlehem Copper today reported net earnings of $6,799,844 in the year ending Feb. 28, up from $5,506,661 a year earlier.

Share earnings were $1.27 compared with $1.05 in 1967.

The company said its production this year is expected to parallel that of last year but operating costs will probably increase due to higher costs of supplies and labor.

The company, which produced more than 500,000,000 pounds of copper in 1968, operates extensive holdings in the Highland Valley area, 30 miles southwest of Kamloops. Highland Valley Smelting and Refining Co. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Bethlehem.

The company also holds shares in Ionarc Smelters, Mariner Mines and other mining companies.

Stockholders will meet June 20 in Vancouver to hear the annual report submitted by Patrick M. Reynolds, president and chief executive officer of Bethlehem.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07¾ for cheques, $1.07¼ for cash, $1.05¼ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅛ for cheques and $1.08¼ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07¾. Pound sterling was down 1/16 to $2.57 5/16.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 13/16 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was down 1/32 at $2.38 53/64.

Money Squeezed Tighter in Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The squeeze on ready cash tightened in money markets this week as commercial banks adjusted to more stringent reserve regulations and the Bank of Canada pulled cash out of the system.

Rates for day-to-day loans and yields on government securities increased. Average yield on six-month government treasury bills auctioned Thursday edged about 7 per cent for the first time since a year ago.

The weekly statement of the Bank of Canada shows the chartered banks continued buying treasury bills and increasing day loans, the main components of their required secondary reserves.

A new, anti-inflationary measure requires the banks starting this month to maintain secondary reserves at 8 per cent of their demand-deposit liabilities, up 1 per cent.

The banks had leeway of 1.33 percentage points as of Wednesday as compared to an average excess in secondary reserves of 2.13 points under the easier system last month.

The banks increased holdings of treasury bills during the week by $21 million and also added $4 million in government bonds.

They called $40 million of short-term loans to investment dealers and added $23 million in day loans instead, thus shortening the term for some investor loans and leaving others out in the cold.

Time, Restraint Inflation Cures

WASHINGTON (WP) — Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the president's council of economic advisers advised patience and discipline Thursday in the nation's fight against inflation and indicated that bringing it under control will take well into 1970.

McCracken also urged that the tax surcharge be extended, as the Nixon administration has requested, and warned that failure to do so would aggravate inflationary pressures.

The presidential adviser addressed the Canadian Economics Association in Toronto. Text of his speech was made available here.

He said "effects of a change in monetary and fiscal policies do not show up until a few quarters later. This is particularly true of the effects on the price level."

"Disinflationary policies will usually show up on the measures of economic activity first," he said, "and only at a later stage will they reduce the rise in prices and costs."

He said, "We must be realistic about the time required for visible results. We must demonstrate the fiscal discipline needed if the federal budget is not again to be the source of an aberrant course for the economy."

McCracken's remarks came against a background of skepticism among economists about whether the administration's policies will work—which McCracken acknowledged.

. . . D-DAY

But security wasn't all that tight. The crew of my destroyer, for instance was given full details of the landing and then allowed ashore when the 24 hour's postponment came.

What probably helped more than anything else was the thing everybody cursed . . . the foul weather.

The Germans decided nobody would be fool enough to try anything in that stuff and they never caught on. Not until the shells of the Nelson, Warspite, Ajax and scores of others, started falling around their bunkers along with the bombs of the Allied air forces.

Recalled Cunningham today. "A bloody magnificent sight. I'll never forget those rocket ships. Everything seemed to go off at once in a great swoosh. How the hell anything ashore survived it all I'll never know."

But survive the Germans did and Cunningham, with his 9th Brigade. standing off shore to go in as reserve an hour after the initial assualt, had to change his plans because of that survival.

According to the planners the Canadian 7th Brigade would attack the left sector of Juno and the 8th the right.

The 9th would then leapfrog over them. It didn't quite work out that way. The tremendous bombardment missed too many targets. Some of the tanks which were to lead the troops never made it ashore.

Sunk by gunfire or rough seas it left it all to the PBI.

The Poor Bloody Infantry, with its small arms and big feet.

That day bloody was more an adjective than cussword. One of the group on Juno today, Capt. Bob Muir of the Princess Patricias Light Infantry, then a gunner with the Royal Canadian Artillery, recalled:

Trouble Getting Off Beaches

"You could hardly get up the beach for men and machines.

"The artillery had trouble getting off the beaches.

"They set up guns on the sands and pounded away at inland points.

"They shot over the heads of young soldiers like Jack Marshall, then a 24-year-old officer cadet with the North Shore New Brunswick Regiment and now a Newfoundland Tory M.P.

On the beach today he pointed to a low sea wall and said: "I'll never forget cowering behind that wall, pinned down by German fire. There were wounded all round crying 'help me' but nobody could. It was all you could do to help yourself. We had to get up and go forward or die where we were."

It was much the same all along Juno. The Royal Winnipeg Rifles, with part of the Canadian Scottish, stormed fortified positions.

The Regina Rifles, opposite the village of Courseulles, came under such heavy fire that a later count showed one German 75 mm. alone fired 200 rounds at them and one Regina company was almost wiped out when its landing barges hit a nest of underwater obstacles missed by demolition crews. The Queens Own Rifles landed under the nose of a German strong point and lost 65 men in a few minutes.

'It Was That Damn House Up There'

From his vantage point at sea Cunningham saw it all. Today, with his old Cameron Highlanders' tam o' shanter on his greying head, his girth a good eight inches bigger than in 1944, he strode along the sea-damp sands recalling the whys and the wherefores.

"It was that damned house up there," he said. pointing to an innocent-looking three-storey, white-shuttered farm home.

"The roof was on fire but the Germans inside were firing like crazy. It held up the whole beach. Because of it I had to send in the brigade hundreds of yards south of where they should have gone in. But 25 years is a long time. Marshall wasn't sure whether that was the house or not. He thought it was one more to the north with a round overhanging roof. As they walked off the beach and headed inland, Cunningham was proved right.

There's a monument there; an arrow-shaped stone work, its inscription already giving way to wind and weather but reading:

"Here on the 6th of June, Europe was liberated by the heroism of the Allied forces."

Almost alongside of it is a plaque commemorating the landing of the Queen's Own. It's built into a concrete pill box now almost filled with drifting sands but which in 1944 could spray deadly machinegun fire the length of Juno.

Alongside is another plaque, the "A Tous Nos Morts" of the Chaudieres. A mile away is the cross of the Winnipeg Rifles.

Twenty-five years ago Canadian dead were draped over such pill boxes. Yesterday, four French children played soldier over it. One fell off, cut his head on a rock and went home crying.

Behind is the Rue de Queen's Own Rifles, a beach road named after the regiment and now lined with yellow pink and purple changing rooms and cottages.

340 Killed In First Day

They have cute French names like "Dunette" and in the plaza behind the monuments, the lone store makes only two references to war — plastic toy machine-guns and picture postcards of the monuments. Otherwise it sells sunglasses, souvenir barometers and French love stories to the tourists who flock here in the summer.

When the first day of the liberation of Europe was over the cost to Canda was 340 killed or died of wounds, 574 wounded and 47 prisoner (mostly among airborne troops). It was high but it was nearer 7 per cent than the 10 per cent the planners had predicted.

The dead were buried at Beny-sur-mer in high ground overlooking the small sea-side villages where they had waged their last and, for many. their first battle.

With them are the Canadians who died later in the Normandy campaign. The cemetery now holds 2,043 Canadians. Today, governments, veterans, associations and regiments are laying wreaths, saying masses, holding services and unveiling new plaques.

Old soldiers like Cunningham and Marshall are watching the new breed in march pasts and drum head services.

Some of the ceremonies cover the whole bloody Normandy campaign but the focal point is D Day among the dead. There is no distinction among the living.

Somehow there was always a difference between those of D and those of Plus One or Two or whatever.

A U.S. colonel heading for Omaha that morning is said to have recited lines from Henry V on earlier invasion of France:

"He that outlives this day and comes safe home will stand on tip toe when this day is named."

In 25 years the toes have grown a few corns. In another sense, the lines have grown corny.

But for those who were at Juno, Sword, Gold, Omaha and Utah — maybe they haven't.

Guidance Needs Help But When . . . Where . . . How?

High school students, teachers and trustees traded views on the hang-ups in the guidance program Thursday night.

They agreed it was missing the mark but disagreed on when it should start, where it should go and how it should get there.

"It should start in the elementary school because by the time they get to high school they're afraid to express themselves," said Glen Patterson, a student at Mt. View secondary school.

Guidance is potentially the most important course students get, said Oak Bay teacher Mrs. Miriam Taylor.

"But few teachers have the training for it and teachers are bewildered by it."

"We're selling the kids short," said trustee Peter Bunn of the program. Board chairman Carron Jameson agreed and said trustees have tried to improve the situation by not "joeing" teachers to handle it but leaving it to those who wanted to teach it.

"School should be something more than a place where you're filled up with knowledge, then zap, 3:15 and everyone's gone," said Patterson.

Jack Day, a student at Esquimalt high school, said schools should be open 10 hours a day "so kids could come back to take the things they want."

Eight students, five teachers and three trustees took part in the three-hour exchange at Oak Bay senior secondary, one of a series of informal meetings, covering a variety of education topics arranged by Alastair Murdoch, a student at the school.

When students suggested guidance course outlines were out of date almost before they were printed, Trustee Dr. Victor Rogers said there were really no social problems today, including drug use, that weren't significant 5, 10 or 50 years ago in a slightly different context.

"Drugs aren't new. The reason for their use is the real problem."

Youth has a better broad education today than previous generations, said Bunn, and is more concerned about social issues.

All three groups agreed teacher appointments should be subject to periodic review but teachers present questioned how quality could be effectively measures.

Roberts suggested Grade 11 and 12 students should have some sort of opportunity to comment on their teachers' abilities.

Student Dave Osborn said there should be some way a student can register a complaint against a teacher.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest soil nutrient for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing, (one yard for every 600 sq. ft.), it will, after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top-dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and most important of all require less watering. One yard of top soil weighing about 2,500 pounds costs you four dollars. In comparison, one dollar of chemical fertilizer will buy only about 15 pounds of fertilizer which at best contains only 3 pounds of plant food. It will, therefore, only act as a short-lived stimulant without any lasting value.

ARTS AND LETTERS FOLLOWING SAME ROUTE . . .

. . . AS DID SWORD DANCER

Burch's Five-Year Plan Could Spoil Prince's Day

By SHIRLEY POVICH

WASHINGTON — For Majestic Prince, the last measure of greatness is only a mile and a half distant, or once around the big track at Belmont Park. In Saturday's Belmont Stakes, he need only put away once more the same breed of horses he licked in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, and then the triple crown will be his and he will be known as the wonder colt of the ages.

The trouble is that the Belmont, in the past, has many times mocked the jaunty colts that made reputations by winning the Derby and Preakness back-to-back. The final furlongs of the Belmont Stakes are littered with the bleached bones of triple-crown aspirants that discovered, alas, that the last quarter-mile of the Belmont is uphill.

The Canadian-owned Majestic Prince thus far has done it all, everyting asked of him. He has never been beaten, won all of his nine starts, showed he could go at least the Derby's 1¼ miles, and when looked in the eye on two occasions by Arts and Letters near the wire, he stared that challenger down.

In Saturday's race, the new factor is that added quarter-mile, which will be a test of pedigrees as well as riding tactics. Because of the longer distance, there are now some skeptics whose postulation is that Majestic Prince won't even be the betting favorite at post time. This was unthinkable after he won the triple crown's second leg.

The stamina of Majestic Prince's sire, Raise a Native, has never been established because of his short racing career. The sire of Raise a Native, Polynesian, is of a line more respected for speed than distance. The ancestors of both Arts and Letters and Dike would seem to better fit the 1½ miles of the Belmont.

Arts and Letters is by Ribot,

The Belmont will be telecast in the Victoria area on Channels 2, 7 and 12, starting at 2 p.m. PDT.

★ ★ ★

undefeated in 15 races and Europe's finest racehorse since the Second World War and one that could run all day. His dam, All Beautiful, is out of the distance-running filly champion, Parlo. Similarly, Dike appears to have more distance-running credentials than Majestic Prince. He is by the great French sire, Herbager, out of Delta, a Nasrullah mare, which adds up to enough said.

There is already a special satisfaction this year for Elliott Burch, the Yale man who found happiness as a horse trainer.

Burch bid up the price on All Beautiful to $175,000 and got the mare, which was in foal to Ribot. That foal was Arts and Letters, who already has won in excess of the purchase price of mare and foal.

Twice Arts and Letters has been licked by Majestic Prince, by a neck in the Derby and a head in the Preakness, but Burch could be smiling at the drawn dagger of Majestic Prince as the Belmont nears. The five-year plan, the Elliott Burch quinquennial, may be heavily working in his favor.

Those who will be wagering on Arts and Letters on Saturday will have a faith that Burch wins the Belmont every five years. He did it with Sword Dancer in 1959 and with Quadrangle in 1964, and their arithmetic now tells them it is 1969 and the year for Arts and Letters.

Arts and Letters is taking the same route to the Belmont Stakes as did Sword Dancer. The sameness of their pattern almost defies belief.

Sword Dancer was second in his Florida Derby 10 years ago. Arts and Letters was second in the Florida Derby this year. Sword Dancer ran second in the Derby. So did Arts and Letters. Sword Dancer ran second in the Preakness. Ditto. Sword Dancer won the Metropolitan mile just before the Belmont. Arts and Letters did that last week. Sword Dancer won the Belmont, Arts and Letters . . .

The conclusion to that last sentence, friends, may be written on Saturday.

The Belmont field (showing post position, jockey and probable odds):

PP	Horse	Jockey	Odds
1.	Arts and Letters	Baeza	8-5
2.	Prime Fool	Velasquez	30-1
3.	Majestic Prince	Hartack	6-5
4.	Rooney's Shield	Adams	2-1
5.	Dike	Belmonte	2-1
6.	Distray	Rotz	20-1

Rocks Plagued By One-Period Letdown Woes

NEW WESTMINSTER—Victoria Shamrocks were hoping for a smoother start, but the one-period slip continues to mesh the gears for the Western Lacrosse Association entry.

It was the same story Thursday at Queen's Park Arena as New Westminster Salmonbellies blew hot in the second period and coasted to a 20-12 victory over the Shamrocks.

It was Victoria's fourth straight setback. The Rocks get a chance to end their skid Saturday night at Memorial Arena against Vancouver Carlings.

Victoria coach Tom Druce is painfully aware of the one-period letdown. "in each of our four games," he said, "we've had one bad period and couldn't recover."

The second was the bad one for the Shamrocks on Thrusday. Salmonbellies, running well and clicking with sharp passing, riddled Victoria's defence for nine goals. The Rocks managed but two in the same frame.

Sparked by Larry Henry, Al Lewthwaite, Ed Goss and Paul Parnell, the Salmonbellies unleashed 77 shots while the Rocks unloaded only 49.

Henry was the busiest gunner with 12 shots. He scored four goals and set up three others. Lewthwaite, who scored three times, fired 11 drives.

Rookie Dennis Somner and Nirmal Dillon were the most effective Victoria forwards. Each took nine shots. Somner scored four goals while Nirmal counted three.

FIRST EVENTS TONIGHT IN ISLAND TRACK MEET

Mt. Douglas begins defence of its title tonight at 5:30 when the two-day Vancouver Island high school track and field championships get under way at Centennial Stadium.

Seven finals — boys' two-mile and steeplechase runs, hammer throw, long jump and discus plus girls' long jump and discus—will be held tonight with the remainder set for Saturday between 12:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Top two finishers in each event earn berths in the B.C. Championships the following weekend in Vancouver.

Expos Clipped By Farmhands

By The Canadian Press

National League baseball teams have taken great delight in playing Montreal Expos in recent weeks and Vancouver Mounties, of the Triple "A" Pacific Coast League, followed suit Thursday night.

The Mounties, who have a working agreement with Canada's first major league team, posted a 5-3 exhibition victory before a home crowd of 5,906 at Vancouver's Capilano Stadium. The loss for the Expos was their 19th in succession.

The Mounties exploded with four runs in the fourth inning against the Montreal club. Outfielder Don Hahn, an Expos' farmhand, delivered the key blow in the decisive fourth, a two-run double off John Glass, a rookie righthander. Glass, called up from the West Palm Beach Expos of the Class A Florida State League for the exhibition, drew the starting assignment for the parent club.

Only one league game was played in the majors Thursday night and Houston Astros clubbed St. Louis Cardinals, the defending National League champions, 11-6 in the Astrodome. No games were played in the American League.

PIRATES DROP ROYALS

Four other major league teams were involved in exhibitions. Pittsburgh Pirates of the NL dropped Kansas City Royals, an AL expansion club, 4-2.

Two other clubs played their Triple A affiliates. Atlanta Braves of the NL nipped Richmond Braves of the International League 8-7 and Minnesota Twins of the AL edged the American Association's Denver Bears 4-3.

At Vancouver, Billy Williams, Greg Goossen and Angel Hermosa collected singles during the Mounties' fourth inning rally.

Larry Jaster, Bill Stoneman and Jerry Robertson followed Glass to the mound for Montreal and they shut out the Mounties over the final four innings.

GULLS RETURNING TO VICTORIA CAMP

San Diego Gulls will return to Victoria for their training camp for the 1969-70 Western Hockey League season, general manager-coach Max McNab announced today.

Players will report September 14 and the first drills at Memorial Arena will be Monday, September 15.

"The team got off to a god start last season," said McNab. "And this was due, in part, to the excellent training camp that we had in Victoria.

"The facilities are very good and the ice is the best I have ever seen at a training camp," added McNab.

The team headquarters during training will again be the Imperial Inn, located just a block away from the Arena.

The Gulls plan to play two or three exhibition games at Memorial Arena during their training camp. The Gulls are also scheduled to play in a two-night exhibition tournament at Portland, October 3-4, with Seattle, Salt Lake and the Portland Buckaroos.

Workers Crack Victory Streak

All good things must come to an end, and the boom was lowered on Independents Thursday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Swinging the axe that chopped the victory streak of Independents off at 18 games were Transport Workers, who collected a flock of unearned runs in the early innings and tripped the Senior Amateur Baseball League leaders 9-5.

Independents, who finished last season with six straight triumphs and had won their first 12 games of the current campaign, committed three errors in the first inning and two more in the third.

That made it happy base-running for the Workers, who jumped into an 8-0 lead after three frames and held on the rest of way as they moved into a second-place tie with Greaves.

Pitcher Bob Mabee went all the way for Transports although he appeared on the ropes in the sixth, when the Workers struck for four runs. He worked out of another jam in the seventh.

Gilmours Pad Lead

Gilmours padded their lead in the Industrial Softball League Thursday night by overpowering Six-Mile House 15-4 at Macdonald Park.

In other games, Hillside 66 dropped a 14-4 verdict to Drywall and Kents defeated Bapcos 6-1.

Bob Labelle Subdues Langford on One Hit

Bob Labelle tossed one ball in the wrong groove at Central Park Thursday night, but otherwise it was a great evening for the pitching ace of Luckies.

Labelle fired a one-hitter as he hurled third-place Luckies to a 5-0 shoutout over Langford Drywall in a Major Men's Softball League struggle.

Roy St. Denis was the man who wrecked Labelle's bid for no-hit glory, cracking a solid triple with two out in the third inning.

Only two other Langford batters managed to get on base, one through an error, the other via a base on balls, and only two balls were hit out of the infield from Labelle's pitches.

Ben Price drove in two runs for Luckies, Eric Walker batted in one and the other two were the result of Langford errors.

Pro Hoop Expansion

DETROIT (AP) — The National Basketball Association has voted to add two cities to its 14-team lineup for the 1970-71 season. After admitting Milwaukee and Phoenix for the 1968-69 season, the NBA declared an expansion moratorium for the 1969-70 season.

Third Golf Ace

Glyn Jones is becoming an expert in the business of hitting golf shots as straight as a telephone wire.

Playing at his home Uplands course in a "stag night" affair Thursday, Glyn fired his third hole-in-one when he dunked his tee shot for an ace on the 135-yard 16th hole.

'RETIREMENT' ENDS . . .

. . . AND EXPOS DELIGHTED

Wills Has a Change of Heart

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shortstop Maury Wills of Montreal Expos ended one of the shortest major league retirements on record Thursday, announcing he will rejoin the team tonight.

Wills, 36, Tuesday asked to be placed on the voluntary retirement list.

Then he telephoned general manager Jim Fanning Thursday, not long before the Expos dropped a 5-3 exhibition game to Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League, and said he had changed his mind.

Fanning said he was happy to welcome Wills back.

"All I can figure," he said, "is that I don't think he was sure in his own mind that he really wanted to quit."

Manager Gene Mauch was equally pleased, if confused.

"I don't know why he quit," Mauch said, "and I don't know why he's coming back. But I know this—we're better off with him than without him."

Fanning said he didn't know if Wills would start tonight, when the Expos open an 18-game road trip in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the Mounties, who have a working agreement with Expos, said Vancouver pitchers John Reed and Leo Marentette have been assigned to Montreal, while Expo hurlers Carroll Sembera and Steve Shea will remain in Vancouver.

Namath Announces Forced Retirement

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, star quarterback of the world champion New York Jets, announced his retirement from pro football today rather than bow to an ultimatum from commissioner Pete Rozelle that he relinquish his one-third interest in a nightclub.

Namath, 26, five-year American Football League veteran who led the Jets to a stunning upset over the Baltimore Colts last January, has been bothered by chronically ailing knees throughout his pro career but made little mention of them in his announcement.

The former University of Alabama star announced his retirement in a news conference at the nightclub which figured in Rozelle's order.

Namath, crying while making his stunning announcement, was surrounded by 200 reporters, radio and television newsmen, who had been summoned to the nightclub (Bachelors III).

FBI WATCHING

Dressed in a blue windbreaker and blue shirt open at the neck, the Jets' star said he was given a choice by Rozelle to sell his business or be suspended. Namath said Rozelle told him his nightclub had been under surveillance by the FBI and was considered a hangout for "certain undesirables."

"I can't accept this," the teary-eyed quarterback said. "I'm innocent, but because I'm a football player, I am being forced to do something against my wishes. I am not or ever was associated with gamblers but that doesn't seem to make any difference.

"I talked this over with my friends and gave this more thought than anything else in my life, and I feel retiring is the only right thing to do."

In answer to a reporter's question, Namath said he hoped the issue could be resolved.

"Football is the thing I love to do most," Namath said, "and retiring is the last thing I want to do."

HE'S COLORFUL

If one player can be credited with speeding the merger of the National and American Football Leagues, that player would be Namath. Signed by former Jet owner David "Sonny" Werblin for the then-fantastic sum of $400,000, Namath proved the attraction needed by the fledgling league.

Namath led the Jets out of the AFL cellar and from days of 5,000 fans in the stands to sellouts at Shea Stadium, culminating in last season's championship.

Whatever Namath did in pro football was surrounded by color and often controversy. His brilliant passing brought the Jets playing respectability, while his brittle, damaged knees—the reason why he was ruled 4F in the draft—made every play fraught with the possibility he might be badly injured.

Luckies Nip Kings

Victoria Kings have been coming close, but they are far from rulers of the Vancouver Island Lacrosse League.

Reigning as the powers of the boxla loop are Nanaimo Luckies, who Thursday night extended their unbeaten streak and left the Kings with a record of one victory and five defeats as they nipped the Kings 14-13 at Memorial Arena.

Once again the Kings had victory within reaching distance, but Ken Maughan turned out to be the spoiler, firing his second goal of the game with just 25 seconds remaining to give Luckies their one-goal triumph.

Bill Russell (four goals and one assist) and Murray Thomas (three and three) were the point leaders for Nanaimo. Topping the Victoria attack were Brian Spaven (four and one) and Terry Stocks (three and one).

The same clubs tangle again Saturday night at Nanaimo.

Nationals Hope To Get Bower

WINNIPEG (CP) — An air of expectant waiting has settled over Hockey Canada.

It won't be known until mid-July, after a top-level meeting in Switzerland, what form Canada's national hockey team will be permitted to take.

And it won't be known for about two weeks if coach Jackie McLeod will return.

And, in the long run, it will depend on what sort of help the national team gets from the professionals whether Canada will be competitive in the 1970 world championship in Montreal and Winnipeg.

Hap Emms, managing-director of Hockey Canada, called a news conference Thursday in an attempt to clarify the tangled situation.

He said he had asked McLeod to return to coach the basic team here. However, when it comes time to bolster the club for world competition, Emms said he would like to see someone else at the helm.

"I can't say who the other coach will be because I don't know."

Said McLeod: "I promised Hap I would give him an answer in two weeks."

Canada has asked the International Ice Hockey Federation to delete the word "amateur" from its constitution, thereby making the world tournament an open affair. Neither Emms nor McLeod felt this would go through.

Alternatively, Canada is asking permission to use "12 to 18" professionals in the lineup.

"If we aren't allowed either, we'll go back to the use of six professionals of which we have been assured," Emms said.

There are others, not on the national team, who Emms wants to see before leaving here for Toronto "within a couple of days."

Emms said he would like to see Johnny Bower, the 43-year-old Toronto goalie who retired at the end of last season, turn out for the national team—either to play or to help coach the goalies.

He also mentioned Tim Horton of Toronto, who also announced his retirement.

Check That Tackle

By STEWART LANG

Despite the warmer weather, weekend prospects for trout anglers remain fairly good, while the chances of tangling with a tackle-buster are improving for the people who chase salmon in the Vancouver Island waters.

This is the time of year to check that salt-water tackle because big spring salmon are cruising off our shores in increasing numbers and enough bluebacks are around to occasionally produce exciting flurries.

Around Saanich Inlet, jack-springs have been biting in Tod Inlet and in the vicinity of Willis Point and the Boulder. Another good bet has been the Bamberton shore to McCurdy Point.

For bluebacks, Willis Point, Indian Bay and Senanus Island areas have been good choices.

Near the Goldstream end of the Inlet, jacks have been snatching lures near the Stone House and Deep Hole.

Large springs, near the chinook classifications, are reported in Coles Bay.

★ ★ ★

Blues up to five pounds have been caught off Deep Cove, Arbutus Island, Coal Island, Porlier Pass and Active Pass.

Oak Bay fishermen are boasting about catches of springs up to 21 pounds during the past week with Cattle Point, Trial Island and Fiddle Reef waters producing best.

Halibut are being boated in The Gap.

Fishing deep with 12 ounces to one pound of weight has proved productive in Pedder Bay, where springs up to 28 pounds have been landed. Some husky springs, including the 29-pounder boated by Jerry Petrie, have been reported in the Becher Bay area.

A few springs, perhaps attracted by a large influx of herring, are off Little River and Bates Beach and a 35-pounder was caught off the Bell Buoy near Comox.

Blues have ended up in fish boxes off the end of Hornby Island during this past week making it a likely choice for the weekend, and limit catches have come in from the far side of Quadra Island. Springs up to 30 pounds have made lines sing near Copper Bluff and Quathiaski Cove.

★ ★ ★

On the freshwater side of the fishing scene, Prospect and Elk lakes have yielded up fair catches of both trout and bass.

Bass fishing is also reported to have picked up in many of the lakes on Salt Spring Island.

Trout up to four pounds have been taken in Quamichan Lake and Cowichan Lake has paid off for many anglers.

Cowichan River is still high but is gradually dropping. This gives promise to those who angle for brown trout in the upper part of the stream.

★ ★ ★

Great Central Lake has produced several big trout within the past week and Sproat Lake is rated as fair.

One glimmer of hope remains though for Sproat. A tugboat hand, trolling deep off the stern while towing log booms on the lake, came in with two six-pounders last week.

"Reliable" is the word to describe trout fishing near Campbell River, where lakes are still up due to the runoff and the water temperature is still cool enough for lively action.

Another report has it that a summer run of steelhead is moving up the Gold River.

NIBBLES: Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association qualifying derby is still under way ... a little over two weeks remain in which to weigh in a salmon and qualify for the fishoff to be held on July 6.

Pappy's Advice Benefits Beard

MIDLOTHIAN, Ill. (AP) — A lesson from his father helped send professional golfer Frank Beard into a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the Western Open golf tournament.

"It was just a simple thing," Beard said after shooting a five-under-par 66 Thursday to share the lead with Billy Maxwell.

"I'd taken a couple of weeks off to work on my game before the U.S. Open at Houston next week," Beard said. He went to his father, Ralph Beard Sr., a former club professional, for advice.

"My father and I were just messing around, and he spotted something I was doing wrong. I had my hands too low at the address. I made an adjustment and that was it."

ONE LONG ONE

He had only one long birdie putt, a 25-footer. All the others were eight feet or less, one from two feet after a four-iron shot. He missed four putts from six feet or less, one from 18 inches.

He and Maxwell had only a one-shot lead over two pro tour non-winners, Dick Rhyan and Rocky Thompson who scored 67s on the par-71 course.

Five others were tied at 68, including South African Gary Player and former Masters champion Bob Goalby.

Wayne Vollmer, 25, of Vancouver, had the best score of two Canadians after the opening round. He scored 37-35—72 to tie with 20 others, six strokes behind Beard and Maxwell.

Veteran Al Balding of Toronto shot a pair of 39s for a seven-over-par 78.

Nancy Richey Steps Toward Tennis Double

PARIS (AP) — Two hurdles today stood between Nancy Richey and a tennis peak that has not been conquered for 15 years —victory in the French championships two years running.

The United States Wightman Cup star faces Margaret Court of Australia in the women's singles semi-finals.

The final is Sunday and there's a prize of $2,000 for the winner.

The other semi-final today was between Ann Jones of Britain and Lesley Bowrey of Australia.

Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly of the U.S. was the last woman to win the French title for two straight years, in 1953 and 1954.

Miss Richey and Mrs. Court defeated Karen Krantzeke and Kerry Melville of Australia 14-12, 6-3 in the doubles.

Meanwhile, it is still going to be a tough job dislodging Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall from the top places in men's tennis.

The two Australian professionals have reached the French Open finals for the second straight year and will battle for the first prize $7,000 Saturday.

Before 10,000 fans on the centre court Thursday, Laver beat Tom Okker of The Netherlands 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, 6-4, and Rosewall eliminated Tony Roche of Australia 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Dorothy, Joan In Title Clash

Last year's former champion failed to stop the title bid of Dorothy DeGirolamo in the Victoria and District Ladies' Golf Association championship Thursday and another former champ was trying to perform the task today at Glen Meadows.

Medallist in this year's tourney and a former provincial titleholder, Mrs. DeGirolamo had her game under control in a battle of Gorge Vale clubmates in Thursday's semi-final round as she fashioned a 7-and-5 triumph over Shirley Naysmith, the 1968 winner.

Opposing Dorothy today in the 18-hole final at the Meadows was Joan Lawson, the former champ from Uplands who sidelined Colwood rival Florence Chapman 8 and 6.

In today's first-flight final, it was Lil Thirlwell of Uplands going against Gorge Vale's Margaret Fry,

Young Students Earn Top Grades on Track

The three Es—excitement, enthusiasm and excellence—replaced the three Rs for youthful students Thursday night as the track finals in the annual track and field meet for area elementary schools were staged at Centennial Stadium.

There was excitement aplenty among the estimated 3,000 people in the stands as well as among the young athletes. Many of the fans appeared to work as hard as the runners, who certainly must all have earned an "A" for their enthusiasm.

Excellence was evident all through the events as several new records were established and other marks survived only by a whisker while Doncaster and Lake Hill schools were collecting the major shares of victories.

SPRINT RECORDS

First of the new standards was set by Cindy Druce, a Braefoot sprinter who lowered the 85-yard dash mark for girls 11 and under to 10.6 seconds from the 10.8 set in 1964.

Monty Pittson, an 11-year-old from Willows, followed Cindy's pattern in the same event for boys, also clipping two-tenths of a second of the 85-yard record with a time of 10.5.

Lake Hill's Janis Turner chopped an even larger margin —three-tenths of a second— from the 85-yard mark for girls 12 and under as she broke the tape in 10.4. Cheryl Blevins of Glanford trimmed the girls' B dash record in the 12-and-under section from 10.7 to 10.5.

BATON DROPPED

There were times of elation and times of dismay in stands and on the track as fortunes fluctuated during the events to the screams and groans of the spectators.

There were groans turned to cheers among Doncaster supporters while the relay race for boys 11 and under was being contested. The groans came when Doncaster dropped the baton. The cheers followed when anchor runner Brian Marsh snatched up the baton and scooted home to first place.

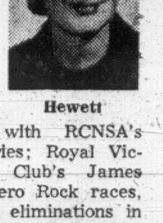
CANOES AT GORGE ... ... YACHTS AT PARTY

Variety in Boating

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Sailors and spectators will have a wide variety of events to choose from this weekend.



Hewett

Everything from the Victoria Canoe Club's annual Gorge race to the Oak Bay Tea Party's annual yacht race.

These two events are scheduled for Sunday, June 8th, along with RCNSA's Sailorette series; Royal Victoria Yacht Club's James Island and Zero Rock races, and the B.C. eliminations in Esquimalt Harbor for the single-handed representative to the Canadian Summer Games at Halifax.

Another important elimination will pit some of Victoria's top skippers in a round-robin competition to determine the Vancouver Island representative to the Mallory Cup area H semi-finals.

A sail-off Thursday and Friday evenings in Cadboro Bay will select a local representative to travel to Seattle later this month. All four of the teams are from Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

They include skipper Bob Grundison with crew Dick Moore and Ian Stewart, skipper Norman Marcus with David Carere and Geoff Arndt, skipper Doug Beer with Ken Pearce and John Boorman, and skipper Sid Halls with Rick McBride and Jeremy Hewett.

★ ★ ★

The competition here will be sailed in Cal 20's (Red Baron, Massilia, Tongariro, and Windless), with the semi-finals in Solings, and the finals in 5.5 metres in Michigan.

The Mallory Cup is a prestige trophy in North American three-man, small-boat racing. Two years ago, Victoria's Jack Woodward with crew Gordon Inglis, Gerry Anderson and Pete Townshend reached the North American finals, which were sailed during Expo in Montreal.

Last year, Sid Halls with crew Bob Grundison and Jeremy Hewett came third in the Seattle area H semi-finals.

The winner of the Saturday-Sunday round robin sponsored by Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, receives an expenses-paid trip to compete in the Canadian Games.

One representative from each B.C. yacht club is invited to participate in these eliminations, to be sailed in O.K. Dinghies.

Local entries are Royal Vic's Norman Marcus; RCNSA's John Ganton, with Doug Beer representing the Victoria area O.K. Dinghy fleet. Coming from Vancouver are Royal Van's Dean Ellis, and Hollyburn's J. Wills.

SHORT TACKS: Ladies competing in the Sunday canoeing contest down the Gorge will paddle a shortened course to the railway bridge and return . . . As well as the Vancouver entries, many local paddlers will be participating, among them Wilf and Kitsie Harper in the mixed and Ron Steele and Dave Thompson in the men's events . . . Anybody can enter . . . Registration continues at Craigflower Park Sunday morning . . .

Last weekend, while their husbands were drifting in the Swiftsure yachts, West Van and Royal Vic ladies held a team race in Cadboro Bay. Sailing Flying Juniors, the Victoria crews won by a score of 69 to 110¾ . . . Top crew was Marguerite Townshend and Willie Carere, with three firsts and two seconds . . . Second-placers Lyn Foxall and Joan Fraser from West Van had husbands on Foxee and Pippa, in the Juan de Fuca Race . . . Saturday June 7th has been set for the second race in RVic's Discovery Island handicap series . . .

Sailing yachts will have another chance to take revenge on Juan de Fuca Strait for last weekend's frustrations. RCNSA is sponsoring an invitational race on June 14 from Victoria to Port Angeles. Participants in this race are eligible for the return race on Sunday sponsored by the Turkey Head Sailing Association,

Overcall Establishes World Pacing Record

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Overcall, a six-year-old harness racing horse, Thursday silenced critics who said he couldn't go 1½ miles. He easily won the $50,000 International Pace for the United States at Yonkers Raceway and set a world record of 3:02 3-5.

A crowd of 23,068 watched Overcall, owned by Helen Buck of Far Hills, N.J., trot the last quarter-mile in 29 3-5 seconds to wipe out the record of 3:03 set by Tarquinius at Roosevelt Raceway in 1964. He finished 8¾ lengths ahead of Canada's Blaze Pick owned by Russell and Jean Miller of Dutton, Ont.

Overcall now has won six races in a row.

He used just one burst, rushing up from fifth place after 1¼ miles.

Overcall picked up $25,000 and increased his career earnings to $483,298.

He now is favored to sweep Yonkers' $150,000 International Pacing series. The second leg is the $50,000 Good Time Pace at 1¼ miles next Thursday.

Blaze Pick, driven by Keith Waples of Durham, Ont., took the lead at the start, but soon yielded it to Cardinal Garrison of New Zealand. The latter stayed in front, turning back challenges by Cardinal King, also of New Zealand, and Meadow Paige of the U.S. until Overcall zoomed up from fifth place and tuned the race into a rout.

Colwood Clouters On Spree

Colwood clouters had a field day in the Stuffy McGinnis Senior Men's Softball League Thursday night at Heywood Avenue as they pounded out a 14-5 triumph over Sooke Hotel.

Colwood yielded two runs to the hotel squad in the top half of the first inning, but came back to grab a 3-2 lead in the bottom half of the frame as Ron Griffis clouted a three-run homer.

That was the Colwood pattern most of the way as Terry Tweedy, Ray Mellings and Jack Rowe also blasted homers for the rampaging Colwood crew.

KRAANERG

Vancouver Girls Star In Ballet

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Premiere performance of Roland Petit's Kraanerg at Monday night's plush opening of the National Arts Centre in Ottawa had a two-fold interest for British Columbians, especially those who live on the Pacific Coast.

Forbes

Not because of its choreography. Although there is no doubt that will come in for a good share of discussion.

Rather because two Vancouver girls danced star roles in the ballet: Veronica Tennant, now of the Toronto national company, and Lyn Seymour of the Berlin Opera Ballet.

I've not met Veronica. But I can boast that I did know Lyn "away back when."

Over the years I've watched as she has grown from an eager, ambitious youngster into the star who so easily performed demanding acrobatic sequences in the second act of Kraanerg.

My first memory goes back to the '50s. The Sadlers Wells Ballet was appearing in Vancouver. Fabulous Margo Fonteyn was star ballerina. I crossed to the mainland for the final performance.

By then it has been announced that from a week's auditions a petite 13-year-old named Lynne Springbett had been chosen for a Sadlers Wells scholarship. She was to join the school in London the next year.

* * *

That evening this dainty little girl was in the theatre with her parents. At intermission I was introduced to her. And a more excited youngster I don't suppose you could have found in all British Columbia.

I remember asking where she would stay when she went to London. Her eyes widened and she told me with youthful pride that "Miss Fonteyn" was going to look after her.

Story was that when asked if there were any relatives in England with whom she could stay, the young dancer's mother worriedly answered in the negative.

Immediately Fonteyn said: "You must not worry. She will stay in my home. My mother will look after her."

"Little Lynne Springbett went to London the next year where her name was changed to Lyn Seymour.

She did stay in the Fonteyn home for a time. She trained in the Sadlers Wells school and when she was ready, made her premiere appearance with the ballet.

Then, to the enthusiastic plaudits of the critics, she went on to become one of its leading young ballerinas.

* * *

A few years back (because of what she claimed was "too much inaction") she tossed all this fame and acclaim overboard to join the Berlin Opera Ballet where she is now dancing.

The little Lynne Springbett with the sparkling eyes and the excited mannerisms of adolescence is only a memory now.

Instead, there is the sophisticated artist, sure of herself and of her dancing, even when it demands the amazing acrobatics of Kraanerg's second act.

I'm not the only one reading Lyn's name in reports of the opening of the National Arts Centre who would think back to a day when an excited 13-year-old first pointed her toes toward fame.

There are others in Victoria who remember and who still applaud Vancouver's Lynne Springbett.

* * *

When I was in Ottawa last September the National Arts Centre was in the final stage of construction and a subject for discussion wherever I went.

Some mourned disappearance of lawns and flowers that once marked the square below the national war memorial. Others would like to have seen the centre (if it had to be) in another part of Ottawa. Still others believed it was ideally situated for the performing arts.

Well, the centre is now a fact. Its doors are open. And I'd guess that the people of Ottawa will soon close ranks and that pride of attainment will overshadow the critical voices of the "agins."

CYANIDE DRUMS WASHED ASHORE

ST. MARY'S (AP) — Seven 112-pound drums of cyanide have been washed up on the Scilly Islands of southwest England in the last two months, police reported Friday. Naval authorities are trying to find the source, presumed to be a wrecked ship. Police said each drum contains enough poison to wipe out thousands of people.

Squamish in Grip of Fear As 'Sasquatch' Roams Area

SQUAMISH (CP) — Another chapter in the search for the legendary Sasquatch may be unfolding near this community 30 miles north of Vancouver.

Three housewives said today a prowler, which has kept the area in fear for the past three weeks, must be the legendary hairy beast supposed to roam B.C. forests.

Mrs. Jack Gratton, who lives in a home overlooking a heavily-wooded area, said the prowler broke into her home last Thursday while she was visiting her next door neighbor.

Mrs. Gratton said she has only had one glimpse of the hairy visitor, a rear view, about 100 yards away, but her boarder, Gordie Gerrier saw it face-to-face one night.

The housewives said their prowler has scratched at the outside windows, tore up the neighboring bush and lurked behind their places at night.

RCMP in Squamish, whom the women say are treating the case very lightly, have taken plaster casts of three footprints found at the scene and sent them to Vancouver.

Quebec Farmers Back West Wheat Subsidy

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec-based Union of Catholic Farmers Thursday expressed support for Prairie farmers' demands for annual government subsidies of $150,000,000 for wheat-growers.

The union also backed demands that the domestic price of wheat be fixed at $2.95 a bushel.

Union president Lionel Sorel told a news conference the suggested price would result in an increase in the price of bread of two cents a loaf and would be in effect a consumer subsidy to wheat farmers of $60,000,000 a year.

He said such subsidies should be only temporary measures until the federal government sets up an "aggressive" system for exporting beef and dairy products.

Mr. Sorel also attacked the Canadian Wheat Board for allowing feed grains to be sold in the west at lower prices than in the rest of Canada.

Eastern farmers, especially in Quebec, will suffer unless a national agricultural policy based on equal opportunity is established, he said.

Economic conditions unfavorable to farmers in the wheat trade had resulted in the possibility that one-third of Western Canada's wheat land would be converted to grazing uses.

If this transformation occurred, western beef, dairy and poultry farmers would have an advantage over their eastern counterparts because of lower feed prices in the west.

Mr. Sorel said equalization of the price of barley—now $1.02 a bushel in Eastern Canada and 50 cents a bushel in the west—would place eastern farmers in a more competitive position and would benefit western feed-grain producers.

The Mongers Of Britain Mong On

LONDON (AP) — There's a debate on among the mongers of Britain.

The National Federation of Ironmongers is considering a change in name to the British Hardware Federation because ironmongers don't mong much iron any more. It's mostly plastics.

The younger generation, and particularly the women, prefer to call it hardware.

There's little guarantee that the change will be made. Some ironmongers are iron-willed about change.

In Billingsgate, a big, brawny bloke wearing a derby, weighed out some haddock and said testily:

"I'm a fishmonger and I stay a fishmonger, not some kind of fish dealer or salesman or trader."

Over in Petticoat Lane, a whiskery chap with fruit, and some odd souvenirs, said:

"I'm a costermonger and I stay a costermonger. You can call me a barrow boy if you wish."

In Old English going back to the dim times, a monger is a dealer or trader.

Costers come from the old word "costard," meaning a big apple, which has nothing to do with the jazz-age dance of the same name.

Then there's the rumormonger.

He's still doing fine. Just read the gossip columns.

STRIPTEASE WELL SERVED

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Chilliwack Players' presentation of "Interview" was well received Thursday night by adjudicator Tom Kerr of Kamloops at the British Columbia One-Act Play Festival.

Kerr said the Chilliwack offering was well directed and that the group provided the strong vocal technique the play required.

He criticized the Duncan Players' production of "The Party" as not portraying the potential of the group.

Kerr said "Striptease," presented by the Vancouver Little Theatre group, was "well served by the players."

The festival continues through Saturday with three honor plays to be selected.

Uncertain Future Looms for Rock Ballroom Project

By PETER LAWSON

Accommodations for 300 dancers, pleasant surroundings and the best in local and imported rock bands.

Sound interesting?

A local resident, Eric Layte, has decided this is what Victoria needs and is intent on proving there is enough local support to merit such a nightclub.

For the past six weeks, Mr. Layte has been working on a scheme to open a public ballroom in town and has accomplished everything to the point where he now needs only backing to complete his dream.

He has set a goal of $25,000 but locally he has met only disappointment when he approached people for the necessary capital. He is informed there is no demand for this type of entertainment and yet every week more people search for a favorite hang-out.

•

Reggies on Government has been forced to remain closed during week nights for the past month, due to unfavorable response.

The original house band is no longer there, and Reg Young is now hiring local groups for weekend gigs. Tonight and Saturday, Society's Wish is playing, with hours from 11 to 3 a.m.

Mr. Young and his partner decided to close the club during the week because of a lack of patrons but lately business has picked up to the point they will have to open again to accommodate the growing crowds.

•

Talent Night at the Old Forge closed its first round off, after two genuinely talented young men had given the best performances.

Main prize went to Rod Guillespie, a rhythm and blues singer with a strong voice and plenty of stage grasp. He won $250 and an opportunity to perform professionally next week. Second place went to Cam White, local country and western vocalist.

Next round of amateur talent run-offs begins next Wednesday, presumably awarding the same prizes. Anyone is welcome to enter with no fear of embarrassment. Remember this is amateur competition and all entrants perform under the same conditions.

The Blue Room and Blue Requiem are combining sounds in a joint effort at the White Eagle Hall on Dock Street tonight at 8.

This is a combination dance-light show, with lights being presented by SPECTRA.

Admission is $1 and the dance will end at 12:30.

•

New owners of the A Go Go seem to have the proper combination to show a profit.

Since taking over they have increased business. The band is playing under less tense conditions, apparently due to the changed atmosphere of the club. Singer for the performing group, the Peppermint Circle, has apparently changed his plans and will stay for a while longer.

TAKEOVER STUDIED

BURNS LAKE (CP) — The regional district of Bulkley-Nechako is studying the question of taking over responsibility for control and prevention of air pollution, after nearby Fraser-Fort George and another regional district have done so.

Member municipalities, from Vanderhoof to Smithers, will be asked their views.

BUTCHART GARDENS. ROMANTICALLY ILLUMINATED—Starting Saturday, June 7, the gardens will be romantically illuminated every evening after dark and will be open every day, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. One of the world's most admired, most loved gardens. Developed from an abandoned cement quarry, they're actually six gardens in one—fabulous Sunken, Lake Garden featuring the spectacular "Ross Fountains", English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese and the great Stage Show Garden. Plus the Fuchsia Arbour, Show Greenhouse and the fascinating Gift Shop. Here's a thrifty idea. Since there is no extra charge to see the romantic night lighting, come early in the evening, enjoy the gardens by daylight, relax over a cup of coffee, then stroll through the gardens again after dark. Entirely different, unbelievably beautiful! The fabulous Sunken Garden and the spectacular "Ross Fountains" are so grand they alone are worth going to see. DELICIOUS LUNCHES, AFTERNOON TEAS, SERVED every day 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. You're only a few minutes drive to this renowned land of loveliness, so phone a friend, plan an outing now!

ROYAL LONDON WAX MUSEUM—In the Crystal Garden Swimming Pool building across from the back entrance of The Empress Hotel. See over 100 life-size Josephine Tussaud wax figures direct from London, England, including newly arrived scenes of President Richard M. Nixon of the United States and "The Martyrs of Hope" scene with John Fitzgerald Kennedy and Martin Luther King; Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. See the Famous of Yesterday and Today. The Hall of Famous People, The Chilling Chamber of Horrors and the Enchanted Fairyland. The Royal London Wax Museum has entertainment for the whole family. Open 9 a.m. - 10 p.m. including Sundays. 388-4461.

COWICHAN FOREST MUSEUM—"The biggest little train ride in North America". That is our firm claim, for where else can you board a real steam train on a narrow gauge track and travel through woods and over water past a unique display of old logging equipment once used to harvest the resources of our great forests? On foot you can wander along tree-lined paths where notices describe the mysteries of woodland growth. Thre is enjoyment here for young and old alike. Set on beautifully timbered lakeside grounds, this museum offers marvellous material for your picture album. Located on Highway [illegible], one mile north of Duncan. Open 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

UNDERSEA GARDENS—Located in VICTORIA'S INNER HARBOUR at CPR Wharf, open 9 a.m. 'til 10 p.m. More than 3,000 creatures of the deep in their natural habitat. Descend beneath the sea to a huge Underwater Theatre for Scuba Diver Shows featuring Giant Octopus, Herbie the Seal and voracious wolf eels. Clear water assured by special filtering technique.

SEALAND—Victoria's newest attraction. See the mysterious marine world above and below the sea: killer whale, seals, sea lions, sea birds, world's largest display of octopuses; Canada's largest display of salmon, wolf eels, hundreds of fascinating sea creatures. Remember, there's more to see at Sealand. Daily, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., on scenic Marine Drive at Oak Bay Marina.

FABLE COTTAGE—Dreamhouse Hideaway becomes visitors delight! Take advantage of this rare opportunity to visit one of the worlds most unusual homes. Situated on beautiful Cordova Bay just off Highway 17, a few minutes from city centre. Open 9.30 a.m. to dusk. Guided Tours.

Painting in Parks Program for Youth

Budding young Picassos will have a chance to develop their artistic technique under the trees in Beacon Hill Park again this year.

Children's Painting in the Parks classes, sponsored by the Federation of Canadian Artists for children six to 16, will run from July 2 to Aug. 7.

Classes are two hours twice a week and the registration fee of $12 per child covers the cost of art supplies.

The aims of the painting in the park classes are primarily "to introduce children to the wonderful satisfaction of painting as a hobby and to give youngsters a worthwhile activity to help fill the long summer hours."

Interested parents must preregister their young artists by June 20 and can obtain forms at any school or at the Painting in the Parks office, 203 Beechwood Avenue.

Pupils Protest

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP)—About 300 students of Paul Kane Senior High staged a one-day walkout Wednesday to protest what their student union president said were strict administrative procedures. They said three popular teachers at the school 10 miles northwest of Edmonton, were forced to resign.

Czech 'National Hero' Expelled For Charging Murder, Torture

By DAN MORGAN
The Washington Post

PRAGUE — Dr. Frantisek Kriegel, a leading Communist reformer, is purported to have told Czechoslovakia's Communist Central Committee right before his expulsion that those responsible for murder and torture in the 1950s, and economic crisis now, still retain their seats in the ruling party.

His remarks, in which he also defended his opposition to the legalization of the Soviet troops' presence here, resulted in his expulsion from the Communist Party on the spot after 38 years, and a bitter denunciation from Party Leader Gustav Husak.

The plenary session certified Czechoslovakia's return to the doctrine of democratic centralism and orthodox Marxism-Leninism.

In light of the rapid return of authoritarian control over party and state in the last few weeks, Dr. Kriegel's speech was seen as an act of courage. A text of what purported to be his opening statement was circulating widely in Prague at the highest level. It was also posted in various institutes at Charles University and on one wall downtown the inscription was chalked, "Bravo, Mr. Kriegel."

Under present censorship and tightening restrictions on dissemination of information it was impossible to authenticate the speech but it was judged to be authentic both by official and unofficial quarters.

NATIONAL HERO

Aside from charging conservatives with co-responsibility for the present crisis, Dr. Kriegel claimed that the invasion violated the Soviet Union's own definition of aggression as submitted as an adjunct to the United Nations Charter.

He said also that the Czechoslovak question, which the pro-Soviet leadership here wants to keep off the agenda of the Moscow Conference of Communist Parties, was highly pertinent and should be discussed there.

Dr. Kriegel, 61, who fought against Franco in Spain and later against Hitler, was one of those members of Alexander Dubcek's presidium seized by Soviet troops on the night of Aug. 21. He is something of a national hero. The Soviet authorities released him on personal demand of President Ludwig Svoboda, who on a number of occasions has refused to be bullied by Soviet threats.

KRIEGEL
. . . ousted by Reds

Dr. Kriegel, who is Jewish, was the target of "anti-Zionist" propaganda in the orthodox East European press last year. He was the first to be forced off the Dubcek leadership team.

According to the text circulating here, Dr. Kriegel, who heads a Prague hospital, noted that "until now no one has been dismissed from the central committee who had direct responsibility for the fact that dozens of people met an unworthy death at the hands of the hangmen," or for the fact that "thousands were condemned for long years of torture and prison on the basis of their accusations . . ."

Among those he said were responsible for present problems were former premier Josef Lenart, former deputy prime minister Otokar Simunek and Jiri Hendrych, a close protege of discredited party leader Antonin Novotny. Kriegel indicated that all were co-responsible for the present situation.

In the past few weeks a large number of party officials from the Novotny era have returned to high posts.

SHOCKED LEADERS

The text's reference to the 1950s appeared to touch on a report on the distorations of that period by leading Communist officials, which was completed recently but never released.

According to observers, the Kriegel speech sent the plenum into turmoil, shocked the leadership and forced an adjournment. It occurred at the moment when the party chiefs were laying down a new policy forbidding criticism of party actions before or after they are taken.

After meeting privately for a few minutes the 11-man ruling presidium returned and Husak, reportedly furious, announced that Kriegel's ouster not only from the central committee but also from the party had been proposed.

Though some remaining moderates thought the speech would rally support against the conservative deluge, only 23 voted against Kriegel disciplining and 18 abstained. The party body has more than 180 members.

Shortly afterwards five more liberals were expelled from the central committee.

The next day, in a nationwide television speech, Husak bitterly ridiculed Kriegel saying, "We will not kill anybody . . . but neither will we Kriegel them . . ."

Colwood Riders Win Show Awards

Duncan Rimmer, riding Sheba, won the senior aggregate when the Colwood Trail Riders held their annual club show Sunday at the Saanichton fair grounds.

Sally Meakes on Red and Hugh Ryder riding Cricket tied in points for the junior aggregate.

The Junior sportsman trophy went to Sandy Trickett, who rode Dusty. Roy Jewell was judge.

Winners of the various class events were:

Class C: Highly commended—Verity Williams, Norfolk House School; Sally Mortimer and Brian Copeland, Dufferin Crescent School, Nanaimo; Lois Russell, Ladysmith Elementary.

Before the Magistrate

Patrick A. Hawthorne, 23, of 2988 Tillicum, was fined $100 for the theft of six shuffleboard rocks and $300 for dangerous driving.

He was also prohibited from driving for six months.

Saanich Const. Norman Ellison said he chased the accused on Douglas Street, Finlayson and Gorge Road, May 24, and that Hawthorne drove in an erractic manner, nearly hitting a traffic island and another car. He accelerated to speeds near 85 m.p.h.

When the car was found later, the rocks, worth $5.50 each, were found in the car, and belonged to the Tillicum Club.

Genevieve Eng, 4115 Shelbourne, was fined $100 for shoplifting two books, three comics and a package of throat lozenges from a city drug store May 22.

Court was told she left the store without paying for the goods after shopping in the store with a four-year-old child.

"It's bad enough to steal without doing it in front of your own child," said Magistrate Ostler.

"It sets a bad example."

David Roblin, 3691 Wascana, was jailed 20 days after being convicted for intoxicated care and control of a motor vehicle.

Housing Squeeze Helped

The Victoria Labor Council heard about a Seattle experiment Wednesday night which tackles two housing problems and generates its own money to pay the costs.

Ashley McConnell, delegate from the B.C. Hydro bus drivers' union, suggested the plan might be even more successful in Victoria where a high proportion of older people live one and two to a house.

He said a community agency operates the Seattle program and it works this way:

The agency finances renovations to rundown houses occupied by one or two people. The renovations include adding a suite or small apartment.

The owner pays the cost of the renovations, at nominal interest, from rent the added accommodation provides.

Net result of the program: more accommodation to meet the housing shortage and restoration of houses on their way to being slums.

'Superb Rescue Work' Claims Aussie Captain

From AP-Reuters

SINGAPORE (CP) — Superb rescue work saved the lives of many sailors on the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans after a collision with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne in the South China Sea Tuesday, the captain of the Melbourne said today.

Capt. J. P. Stevenson told a news conference aboard the Melbourne an hour after it docked here today that all but one of the 199 survivors from the Evans were rescued within four minutes of the collision.

Meanwhile, both the U.S. and Australia announced that a joint preliminary investigation into the collision which killed 74 U.S. sailors will be held Monday at Subic Bay in the Philippines.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Kearsarge, with 196 survivors from the collision on board, arrived in Subic Bay today.

Three senior Australian officers flew from Sydney today to attend the inquiry into the collision which halted SEATO naval exercises involving 60 warships from six nations.

Stevenson said he will fly to the Philippines tonight for the inquiry.

The Melbourne, with a yawning gash across its bow and a buckled flight deck, crawled into Singapore harbor earlier today with its flag at half-mast.

Stevenson, 48, described the disaster 600 miles away and three days ago as occurring on "a clear moonlit night with very good visibility and a calm sea."

He said he was in physical control of the 25,000-ton carrier and on the bridge at the time of the collision.

"As on previous nights the ships were fully darkened and simulated wartime conditions and were steaming at 18 knots carrying out a zig-zag . . . designed to make the submarine attack more difficult."

Arthur Mayse

So far in this traveller's tale, I have reported to you on a city and its problem, with a bout of fishing sandwiched between. But the jet-scurry over a border that I hadn't crossed for a long time also gave me a chance to meet Americans as individuals in their own country.

Up here in Canada, it is easy to generalize about Americans, and easier still to monsterize them as I have heard so many Canadians do.

Yet go down among them, talk to them and listen to them, and any such notions become naive as the Canadian kid's fixed idea that every dweller below the line owns at least two late model cars.

We have our differences, but we also have our similarities.

The grim beldame who darted such looks and mutterings when her waiting-room seat was accidentally bagged while she was off jawing a ticket-clerk could be matched in Victoria or Montreal.

And who bragged loudest, the British Columbian newsman telling of trout this long, or his opposite number from Utah measuring off his state's trout with hands spread well apart?

As for our differences, the one that most impressed me was more subtle than such incidentals as accent or voting procedures. I can only define it as an American sadness that had not been in evidence when I last visited the United States.

★

The man across the table in the high-slung dining room had been talking about his town with a hearty enthusiasm that I liked.

I'd been dining late and alone when he joined me. The room was left to a few other late-comers, a band and a plaintive singer. Outside were the palms and the blue night.

We traded notes on cities and newspapers for a while longer. Then the silence that comes when strangers have run out of small-talk overtook us.

Finally I asked the question I'd previously avoided: "What do you think of the Vietnam war?"

For a moment my companion studied the brandy snifter cupped between his hands. Then he said, "How would you feel if you had to stand by and watch your mother-in-law driving your car over a cliff?"

He had made his point, but he sipped, and continued.

"I think the Vietnam war is one of the three worst disasters to involve my country," he said.

"The first was the war between north and south. It made a division that has never really healed.

"The second was Prohibition. It saddled us with organized crime.

"The third is Vietnam. It has divided us again. We can't win it, and I don't know how we can get out of it."

His own boy, he added grimly, was still small. Surely the war would be over before he reached draft age.

★

Twice, from other men in separate discussions, I heard tentative mention of the hydrogen bomb as the agent that might free the United States from her predicament. But the suggestion was made without heart or heat, and nobody present picked it up.

Whenever war was spoken of, or race riot or university protest, I sensed a weariness, as if those troubles had weighed to heavily for too long. But let other subjects intrude, and the buoyancy and lively interest at once returned.

Some of that interest centred on Victoria. I knew that Santa Barbara draws its share of winter vacationists from this city, but it surprised me to learn how many of those I talked with had visited here.

What did they like that Victoria offered? Well, everything they saw, including the extravagant green of landscapes we take for granted.

But the landmark that took their fancy was Victoria's elderly, unique Empress Hotel. When we eventually get around to building a convention centre, it mightn't hurt to keep that preference in mind.

Students Rescue Woman Scorned by Rose-Loving Hubby

By JOHN DRISCOLL

It's a good story, and the kind about university students that doesn't get into print very often these days.

It's about two girls from Trenton, Ont. and a Victoria woman who tried to drown herself in the Juan de Fuca Strait because she felt her husband loved his rosebushes more than her.

The girls, third year pre-med students vacationing with friends in Victoria, were walking along the Dallas Road beach Monday.

•

They saw a woman lying face down at the water's edge and rescued her.

When she had recovered, the distraught woman told the girls she was attempting to drown herself.

She and her husband had moved to Victoria from the United States six months ago, and while he loved the city she felt neglected.

•

The girls took her to their friend's home for coffee and a long talk. They then took her to a psychiatric clinic.

They talked to the woman's husband to tell him of her feelings.

They checked later with hospital officials to ensure than the woman was being enrolled in a socialization program.

The incident is undoubtedly true since it was related by a responsible hospital social services director who was involved and who identified herself.

The director did not want her name used because of hospital policy and the girls were reluctant to talk about the incident.

The students have since left Victoria.

Newspapers do not make it a practice to print stories without identifying at least some of the participants.

However, the students are unavailable and other names are not required.

•

The incident is a minor one compared to the riots and deaths on U.S. college campuses.

It does, however, illustrate a trait of young people often ignored: the ability to become involved and to follow up with maturity the events in which they become involved.

Everybody's Consolation Prize Winner

By STEVE HUME

First contest you've won in your life!

Just a little hard to believe at first, but there it is, a neatly-addressed letter from Florida or Alabama telling you you're one of the lucky consolation winners in the vacation contest you filled out the card for at the Jaycee Fair.

So welcome to the club. Consolation winner means you and everyone else who filled out a card in the Vacation Sweepstakes or the Sunticket Invitation contests for free holiday time in Florida or Las Vegas or New Orleans.

If you were super lucky maybe you made it as consolation winner in two or even three of the contests.

READ FINE PRINT

Bill Tyndall of the Better Business Bureau said today he has received over 130 calls from as far away as Duncan and Nanaimo querying the contests.

All three are strikingly similar. They promise the consolation winner a period of free days at hotels in major resort cities of the United States.

And they are legitimate operations.

But Tyndall urged that people who received consolation winners' brochures from Resort Hosts Internationale, Inc., Contest Corporations of America, Inc., and Vacation Sweepstakes Inc., should be careful to read the fine print.

According to the fine print, Tyndall says, consolation winners will find they haven't really won much.

REGISTRATION FEE

The free hotel time is probably legitimate, although no one has phoned to find out whether named hotels will honor the contest winners.

And there is a $15 to $25 registration fee to be paid — in advance, of course.

Consolation winners must also pay their own transportation to and from the resort city, and time restrictions limit visits to off-season when the areas are most uncomfortable in terms of heat and humidity.

The free coupons worth $150 in meal, drink and entertainment discounts prominently displayed in the brochures are standard offerings of the resort hotels, Tyndall says, and they are extremely difficult to cash.

"It's all legal," he said, "but it is an advertising gimmick designed to promote the off-season in the various resort cities, and individuals who have been told they are consolation winners should realize exactly what the set-up entails."

"SPOT OF TEA, LUV?" Getting into the jovial spirit of Oak Bay's weekend Tea Party are Paris Wright, 11, 1439 Mitchell, and Cathy Carter, 10, 2169 Beaverbrook, who will be "Tweedies" in the Saturday parade. Tweedies, by the way, are the younger denizens behind the Oak Bay Tweed Curtain. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

Throw Down That Coffee Cup, Join the Oak Bay Tea Party

By PAT DUFOUR

The Boston Tea Party turned the Americans from a tea to coffee-drinking people.

Oak Bay is hoping that its party will work in reverse.

All set for the annual event to be held Saturday and Sunday, Oak Bay Tea Party's co-ordinator Ted Gaskell said today supplies large enough to brew an ocean of the stuff have been laid on.

There's one snag. Even in terribly British Oak Bay, coffee still remains the prime favorite.

"However, we're hoping that people will really get in the mood this year and switch to tea ... at least for the weekend. And, of course, we'll have crumpets on hand, too, for those who wish to be really authentic."

SOME COFFEE

But, just in case Oak Bay still refuses to go completely British, Gaskell reports there'll also be lashings of coffee and soft drinks on hand at Windsor Park.

Long before tea became synonymous with the bulldog and Union Jack, its discovers had thought it the solution to drunkenness. As far back as 350 AD, Buddhist priests in China were praising it in a subtle attempt to combat intemperance.

One legend attributes the beginning of tea to Bodhidharma, or Daruma, a Budhist Saint.

He was mortified when he woke one day to find he'd fallen asleep while saying his prayers.

CAST DOWN EYELIDS

To make retribution, he cut off his eyelids and threw them on the ground. They took root, grew into a bush, the leaves of which, when dried and infused in hot water, produced a brew guaranteed to keep the sandman away.

Oak Bay Tea Party officials aren't taking any chances.

All the tea in China couldn't rival the ability of the two-day program of fun and games to keep Oak Bay residents and the many "foreigners" expected awake.

Festivities begin Saturday when a parade will leave Windsor Park at 10 a.m. en route to Willows Park where most of the weekend's activities will be centred. Many marine events have been arranged for Sunday, beginning at 1 p.m. with a display by the Aqua Ski Club.

YOUTH TO FACE TRIAL FOR ROAD FATALITY

Warren Green, a 19-year-old sailor, today was committed for judge and jury trial on charges of causing death by criminal negligence and impaired driving.

Bail was set at $4,000.

He was charged following an accident on the Old Island Highway, March 3, in which Verda L. Fawns, 19, of 441 Thetis Crescent, was killed.

Seven witnesses testified for the Crown during a preliminary hearing.

Criminals Face Bad Times Against New Police Tools

It's getting to the point where a criminal can't make a dishonest dollar without getting caught.

Some modern detection devices were on display this morning at the Red Lion Inn where 65 police officers from Washington State are holding their identification conference.

Devices included an international data processing hookup, closed circuit television, sophisticated cameras, tape recorders and copiers, and chemicals which will bring out fingerprints on almost any substance.

But what's coming in the future is even more frightening for criminals.

According to Warren Reid of Eastman Kodak the U.S. army has a frightening new camera that takes pictures of objects no longer there.

"They are taking pictures in Vietnam of tanks that left the scene 20 minutes earlier," Reid told the officers.

Reid said experimentation with lighography and laser beams has produced a device which takes a picture in four dimensions.

"By turning a portrait around you can see the front, side and back of a person's head."

Reid did not explain the principle behind these fantastic devices but said they would probably be available to the public in 5 or 10 years.

The officers, most of them police labratory, fingerprint and photography experts, were welcomed to Victoria by police chief John Gregory.

Ask The Times

Q. If I invest my money here and go to live in a foreign country, where do I file my income tax report, here, in that country, or both? T.D.

A. Income tax reports are filed in the country where you reside. If you are living abroad and, therefore, a non-resident of Canada, there is a 15 per cent withholding tax which is automatically levied by the federal government on monies going out of the country.

Uvic's Share Of Grants 'Disastrous'

$10.3M From Pot Of $65M

The University of Victoria's share of provincial operating grants this year was called "disastrous" today by acting president Dean R. L. Wallace.

He was commenting on the announcement of the division of $65 million for three British Columbia universities.

University of British Columbia will get $38,883,482; Simon Fraser University, $15.805,112, and University of Victoria, $10,311,406.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, in announcing the split of the budgeted $65 million, said the provincial government did accept the recommendations of the advisory board for the allocation of the total.

"The allocation deals a very crippling blow to the university's present operation, and shatters any aims for the future," said Wallace.

"I've had no time to consider all the details, but there is no doubt this is really disastrous.

"While, of course, we've had to hire new faculty members to look after the known increase in student enrolment, in many areas of the university it is now going to be necessary to operate with very reduced funds.

"We will actually have less money in certain areas than we had last year."

Brothers said the three universities would be paid 95 per cent of the recommended monthly allotments until November when a final decision would be taken concerning the ultimate distribution of the five per cent withheld.

FURTHER ADVICE

Brothers said Dean S. Chant, chairman of the advisory board, could then be asked for further advice if the actual fall enrolments appeared to vary with the advisory board's projections.

Brothers stated the operating grants represent an increase of 23 per cent over those provided in 1968-69.

(Capital grants, announced earlier, provided $6 million for UBC, $6 million for Simon Fraser and $3 million for Uvic, the total $15 million representing an increase of 25 per cent over 1968-69.)

The division of operating grants closely parallels a forecast made 16 days ago by Opposition Leader Tom Berger. He said UBC would get $38.9 million, Simon Fraser $15.6 million and Uvic $10.5 million.

He also said the UBC grant is $2.5 million less than the university needs and predicted it could force a major increase in tuition fees this fall.

Last year, UBC got $31.1 million, SFU $13.5 million and Uvic $8.2 million under the split announced by the government.

NEW DEPUTY MINISTER of forests in British Columbia is John S. Stokes, at present assistant chief forester of the B.C. Forest Service. He succeeds F. S. McKinnon who is to officially retire July 1 but who will continue as chairman of the Pollution Control Board. Stokes, 55, was born in Victoria and graduated from University of B.C. He first joined the forest service in 1939, went overseas with the air force, and returned in 1945. He became assistant chief forester in 1965.

Stretched Ferry Starts Sea Trials

The Queen of Esquimalt, cut in half to lengthen it 84 feet, began sea trials today and will begin regular service June 13.

The 426-foot vessel is now the biggest in the B.C. Ferry Authority fleet.

Work on the "stretched" ferry began in Burrard Drydock late in 1968. The vessel was cut in half and a new centre section added forward of the engine room.

Stretching the five-year-old Esquimalt was considered a cheaper alternative to building another ferry.

The alteration has added 55 cars and 200 passengers to her former capacity of 138 cars and 1,000 passengers.

She is also the fleet's first ferry with sewage-holding tanks that will eliminate flushing waste overboard, a pollution control messure called for by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

The Esquimalt will normally operate between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

Drug Prisoner Escapes Again

Police were searching today for an American who walked out of Oakalla prison farm near Burnaby Thursday afternoon.

David Bruce Hill, 27, of San Francisco, was sentenced May 30 in Victoria central court to eight months in jail on charges of possessing narcotics, escaping custody, and theft.

He was sent to Oakalla because he then suffered from infectious hepatitis.

Prison officials declined to say how he escaped but a Burnaby RCMP spokesman said Hill was working with a painting crew near the east gate of the farm.

He apparently left on foot by the open gate, unnoticed, about 3:30 p.m. He is not considered dangerous.

While in custody in Victoria late last month, Hill escaped through a hospital window while an RCMP guard was outside his room.

He was captured several hours later the same day and faced additional charges when he appeared in court. He pleaded guilty of all of them.

YOUTHS REWARDED FOR LAW AND ORDER

Three youths who caught two others smashing tombstones in Ross Bay Cemetery were presented with Respect for Law and Order Awards Thursday night by the Victoria Evening Optimist Club.

The awards were given at a dinner meeting to Tony Karlsson, 14, of 316 Beechwood; Steven Jansen, 13, of 1618 Pinewood, and Bruce McNaughton, 13, of 1820 Hollywood Crescent.

A police spokesman said it is the first time to his knowledge the awards have been given here. They are presented all over North America.

Police estimated damage to the tombstones at about $600.

Unionist Sees Tax Reforms As Block to Getting Rich

A Saanich delegate Thursday asked a labor convention not to advocate tax reforms which would rob poor men of the dream of becoming millionaires.

Tony Miller of Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees made an unsuccessful plea against a resolution to ask the federal government to implement the Carter report on taxation immediately.

"Many of us came here from Ireland and England to escape from taxation," Miller told the annual B.C. CUPE division convention.

"This is one of the few countries left where a man can start out with nothing and wind up a millionaire."

"If the Carter report is implemented it means we will never have a chance to get out of the grey mass of the working class," he said.

★ ★ ★

Miller's comments were denounced by Vancouver local 1004 delegate D. L. Werlin.

"I've never heard anything so ridiculous at a labor convention in my life," said Werlin.

"Let's quit kidding ourselves that we're all future millionaires.

"You could take all the future millionaires in this room and fit them on the head of a pin."

Werlin said the Carter report advocates that taxation should be based on an ability to pay but has never been implemented except for some of the negative aspects.

"There's an unwritten law that millionaires should not pay taxes," he said.

"The working man now pays 40 per cent of his income in taxes," said Werlin.

The convention endorsed the resolution by an overwhelming margin.

National CUPE president Stanley Little of Toronto addressed the convention and lashed out at critics who contend that labor is to blame for inflation.

★ ★ ★

"Wage increases have some effect on inflation," he said. "But when management doubles its profits why is it not being accused of causing inflation?"

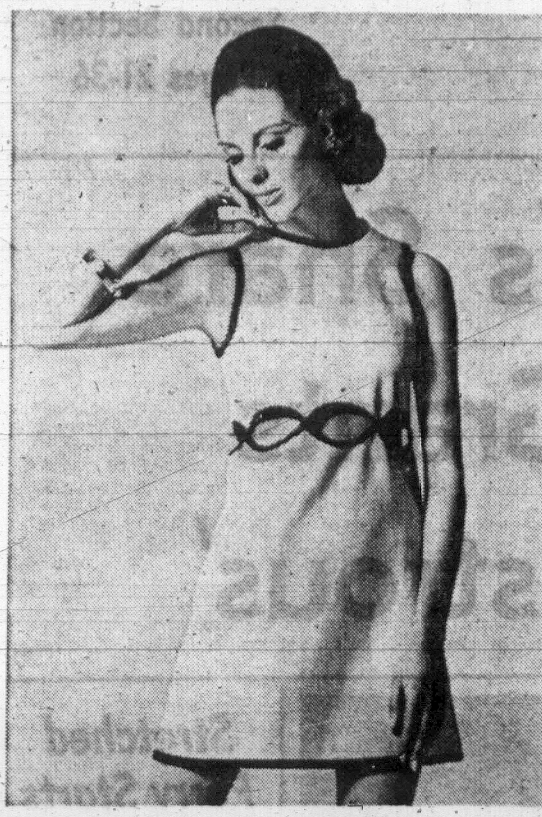
He called for a "dialogue between union and management under government auspices to see if we can find answers to the situation."

Little blasted what he called "discriminatory legislation" against public employees.

"In the public eye, the public employee is not supposed to disrupt services and cause inconvenience."

"After every one else's wages have moved we are permitted to say it's time you looked at us," he said.

"The rest of the labor movement should be disturbed at the lot of the public employee."



Cut-aways with a definite midriff interest accents this summer dress. Black seam binding outlines the ventilation at the waist, neck, hem and armholes of the white rayon linen fabric. The dress is an A-line skimmer.

Keep It Cool With Cut-Outs

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

There's a little less to this year's summer dresses. The bared trend is just right for the hot months, so designers are translating the so-called nude look into dresses with a little cut out here, more cut out there.

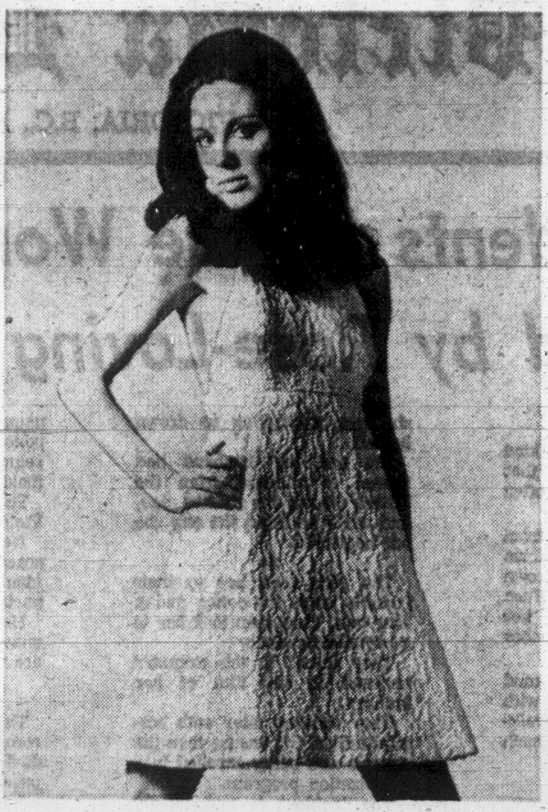
For daytime dresses, the cut-out translates as peek-a-boo lace in a simple shirt dress with short sleeves. Behind the lace, which is worked in contrast bands, a pastel liner shows through. The same effect is done in white crochet with a flounced hemline finishing the long-torso look.

A standard summer way to bare is sleevelessness, and although the general fashion trend is to sleeves, summer always brings many sleeveless dresses. Light blend fabrics simulate voile, as in an all-tucked skimmer, buttoned down the front, with a bow at the low band neckline. Polyester simulates ribbed ottoman in a sleeveless tunic skimmer, the armholes and collar banded in the same brown as the underskirt.

Dresses for the many leisure hours of summer not only come sleeveless but have all kinds of cut-out midriff effects. There are little white piques, piped in black, with skirt and bodice connected only by gilt rings at the points of scallops. One designer has a white rayon linen skimmer bound in black, the midriff cut out in a series of lozenges. Other versions of the midriff cut-out are shown by designers using strips of latticework or scrollwork to cover the area in a peek-a-boo style.

Summer cocktail and evening dresses naturally go farthest along the bared route. Many use the bared midriff idea, while others cover that area with fine net which is then embroidered with light jewelling, such as seed pearls, or appliqued with scrollwork embroidery.

Plunge necklines are popular with many designers. Some of them go as far down as the waist, although most of these have a pin, or lacing or some other fastening to adjust the plunge if you prefer. Some of the plunges are part of halter necklines, which mean the back is bared, too.



This summer cocktail dress daringly uses the bared look and the little bra dress for a cool, cool style. Made of white cotton brocade, the dress is high-waisted with a front panel pleat. The top is covered in front with the use of the built-in bra, but cut boldly away at the sides to a completely bared back.

Receives Charter

Mayor Hugh Stephen presented the official charter to the Greater Victoria Chapter of Parents Without Partners at the first annual banquet recently.

In his presentation address, Mayor Stephen commended the chapter for its ability "to stand on its own feet and because it was not asking for financial support from anyone."

Dr. Kenneth King, guest speaker, outlined his work in marital counselling in Edmonton.

Newly—elected president Cecil Drummond accepted the charter on behalf of the group.

Mayor Stephen presented a thank-you gift to outgoing president and founder of the local chapter, Mrs. Pamela McArthur.

Problems Solved For Bride-Elect

By PENNY SAVER

When I dropped into Jayne's house for a cup of coffee I was greeted by a very heavy scene. Alva was over and the diamond on her finger told me her fondest dream had come true—but she was far from happy. "I have a sentimental streak in me, Mrs. Saver," she explained. "All my life I've wanted a big traditional wedding. Now my chance—my only chance—has come and I learn that my parent's aren't able to help much. Mum's much too sick to do all that planning and worrying; Dad's finances are limited; I can keep on working to earn the money to put on a big wedding, but then I won't have the time to make all the arrangements—I can't afford to take time off work for fitting, for example. Worst of all, I don't know how to start." A week later I met Alva again and she was all smiles. She had found a shop that specializes in outfitting brides and with the sympathetic help of the proprietor was finding a solution to the problems that a week before had seemed insurmountable.

"I like to make appointments," said the proprietor of the shop when I talked to her later. "This way I can give a bride-elect all the time and attention she deserves. I will even meet with a girl in the evening if that is the most convenient time for her. I would advise a girl to come in at least three months before the wedding, but I have outfitted a girl in a week.

"I specialize in outfits for the bride, bridesmaids and the mother of the bride and I have outfits suitable for second marriages. I've been in the business for nine years now and have picked up quite a few hints on etiquette and so forth I can pass on.

"The seamstress who works with me is experienced too. Fit is very important in a wedding gown. After all, this is the bride's big day and she should be comfortable in her dress!"

Petite Sizes Too

The wedding dresses in her selection are lovely indeed. Short gowns begin at $45 and go up to $65 while long gowns range from $70 to $125. Even with alterations these prices can be afforded by the working girl. One gown I saw for $95 had a high bodice of lace and a detachable cathedral train topped with a satin bow. Petite sizes are available too, though they are a bit more expensive. One I saw for $105 was a Lagoda satin topped by an empire bodice and overskirt of Danish lace. The long detachable train was also of lace.

The shop makes headpieces and veils to order as well. These begin at $3.50. I saw one headpiece that was still in the making that was a sizeable bonnet that could be worn later as a hat once the veiling was removed. This creation in lace, seed pearls and net was only $10.

Bouquets are not forgotten either. Of course many girls want fresh flowers and these must be ordered from a florist, but the proprietor found many girls were enquiring about the paper bouquets she used for shop displays. These are amazingly realistic looking—I had to look twice to assure myself that they were indeed artificial—yet will last long after the wedding is past. Real fern is added at the last moment. I saw a bridesmaid's bouquet of pink roses and carnations for $5 while the most expensive bouquet they make is a huge bridal bouquet of roses at least two feet long and costing $10.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. if you would like to know where this shop is found.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Youth Revolt Ancient History

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A great deal has happened to our country lately, and the youth is blamed. We've been called everything from flower children to hippies. Everywhere you hear about protesters and draft dodgers, and adults are suspicious of any teen-ager with long hair.

I recently came across this quote from a worried adult:

"What is this world coming to? What will the world be like when the younger generation takes over? Will it be destroyed by individualism and lack of leadership? (Signed Socrates, 469 B.C.)" — Linda in Cedar Rapids

DEAR LINDA: And look what happened to Socrates' world — which was Greece! And they didn't regain stature again until Melina Mercouri made "Never on Sunday" and Jackie married Onassis.

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of a 22-year-old daughter, I would like to have some up-to-date information on present day dating customs.

My daughter has been dating a young man for several months. He's a college graduate and has a very good job. He invited her to go skiing, and then informed her that she would have to pay for her own lift fee. She thought this was rather odd, but she paid her own fee.

Then on subsequent dates he told her she should pay her own way.

She told him she thought he was being cheap. He said she was ignorant. And they quarreled.

Is the young man correct? Is it the custom now for girls to pay their own way when asked for a date? — Perplexed

DEAR PERPLEXED: The gentleman treats the lady, unless they have an understanding beforehand, and are saving for their mutual benefit. A man who would ask a girl for a date and then suggest she pay her own way is no gentleman. And a girl, to put up with it must be very hungry for company.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOUNG PHILOSOPHER: How's this: "The grand essentials to happiness in this life are (1) Something to do. (2) Someone to love. (3) Something to look forward to." — Joseph Addison

Sex Roles Collapse In Society

NEW YORK (AP) — Anthropologist Margaret Mead says a switch in sexual roles is in the offing and "men may actually discover they want to stay home to mind the children now."

Dr. Mead says such a development would be the first time in 10,000 years of human development that such a phenomenon had occurred.

Dr. Mead told a student gathering Wednesday that sexual roles "are beginning to break down" as a result of fathers minding children.

The anthropologist, who is also a Columbia University adjunct professor, and curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History, also theorized that young men and women have begun to wear "unisexual" clothing for two reasons:

"Young women are rebelling against being a sex object in order to get a husband," she said, "and boys are turning from drab business-like attire in order to rebel against any possibility of having to support a wife."

Student Turns Wood Worker

By SUSAN MAYSE

If you belong to the minority who don't want to live with serious, sober, and expensive traditional pieces of furniture, you have a problem.

The avant-garde furniture—plastic, cardboard, all kinds of wood—that you see in those decorating magazines is rare in Victoria stores, and when it's available it's priced high enough to take your breath away.

But since the appearance of "Davies and Scott — Modular Furniture" on the Victoria scene, the situation isn't so.

Plastics and cardboard aren't Stephen Davies' line, but what he can do with wood and a splash of paint here and there would reassure anyone that Victoria is not a lost cause for really up-to-date furnishings.

Steve Davies has been in the furniture-making business exactly six weeks. With no background of carpentry or interior decorating—three years of honors history at university wasn't much help — he decided that what he really wanted to do was build tables, chairs, desks, and all the other things people live with every day.

So Davies and Scott happened. Scott, he explains, is a friend who helped him at the beginning but soon returned home to Halifax.

Since then, he's been turning out pieces unique in Victoria, for friends, and for the few customers who've answered his ads on laundromat tackboards.

Modular furniture, he says, consists of building individual pieces up to form a unit. Usually, the pieces are of similar shape, size, or colour, and together form a pattern that creates the theme of a room or area.

Steve is quick to pass the credit for his imagination on to his wife Gwen.

Flair For Design

"Gwen has a terrific flair for contemporary design. We've been together three years, and she's always been able to tell me what's going to be happening about a year ahead with furniture," he said.

A favorite item he's been making is a small square coffee table, simple in basic design, but adapted in several different ways.

Some have been painted in concentric squares of contrasting colors, others are covered with cloth and fiberglassed over to form a durable but attractive tabletop.

The design, size and color of any piece he makes depends largely on whom he's making it for, he said.

"People tell me what they want, and I try to work it out as near to what they say as I can. Then we sit down and hash it out until we have something they want and I can build."

All Steve's work is done with hand tools. Although he says it would be convenient to have power tools, he doesn't really need them.

Steve and Gwen have been commissioned to decorate and furnish two homes—one apartment and one small house.

He will design and build the furniture, and Gwen's good eye for color will take care of the rest—walls, curtains, and upholstery.

Since he first realized he could build furniture, Steve said his mind has exploded with ideas.

"Since I started making things I've had about a million ideas. I think we could tackle just about anything somebody wanted."

Prices on Davies and Scott furnishings are heartwarmingly low. This, Steve explained, is because he uses "just plain wood"—solid materials but none of the specialized and costly woods like walnut, teak, or mahogany.

Slept On Newspapers

"I'm not trying to get rich. I'm building these things because I find it really rewarding. As long as we can stay alive on what I make, I'll be happy."

The whole thing really began a year and a half ago when he and Gwen moved into their first apartment after coming from Nova Scotia.

"The rent was so fantastically low that we took the place, but it was in dreadful condition," Gwen said.

"The first night we came up here we just had a candle and some newspapers to sleep on. I just about cried when I saw it, it was so awful, so we blew the candle out and went to a movie so we didn't have to look at it."

Obviously, some redecorating was in order. When Steve was hired as a child care worker at Seven Oaks (the job he quit to start his business), the whole apartment got a face lifting.

With paint, wood, and cloth they transformed the suite into a convincing testimonial to the couple's skill.

With Steve wielding saw and hammer and Gwen a needle and thread, they hope they can make their mark in the furniture and decorating field in Victoria.

Spock Says Parents Should Follow Instincts

By DOROTHY RICH

If you get nervous when you read books or hear experts expound on what to do with your children, you're not alone. Recently, I asked a group of parents to say honestly how they felt after reading some of these best-selling books of advice. Their answers were "guilty, nervous, uncomfortable."

You'd think that all this would make for better, more self-confident parents. Instead, it makes a lot of parents feel bad about what they should have done or what they're not doing now.

A mother sitting alone with a book that appears to have all the answers may also get the disquieting notion that only she gets these feelings of inadequacy. It's a relief to parents who get these feelings when they find out that other parents react this way too.

Certainly, making a parent feel inadequate is not what an advice-giver wants to happen. But there's no doubt that more experts need to work first on building a parent's self-confidence before telling him what to do.

Parents have been on the firing line long enough with all the "you're doing this or that wrong." It's time to tell parents what they're doing right. Bemjamin Spock has the right idea with the first sentence of his famous "Baby and Child Care." He tells new parents that they know more than they think they do.

Spock, speaking in Washington recently, is worried that parents today, besieged by experts on all sides, have lost confidence in their own judgments, their own instincts. He urged parents to stop over-intellectualizing and start following their good, old common sense.

Actually, parents are their children's most important teachers even when they don't want to be and even when they don't know it. A father playing patty cake with his two-year-old is teaching physical co-ordination without which a child has trouble reading.

A mother who lets her child divide a doughnut or help with dessert measurements is teaching math. Parents who encourage a child on a walk to bring back samples of rocks and leaves are teaching science. Most parents do all these things without thinking that they're teaching—but they are and this needs to be pointed out.

Perhaps a good way to do this is to have parents get together in small groups or PTA meetings to share some of the ways that work in their homes, to begin to look to each other and to themselves instead of just to the experts.

Unstable Stock Market Stimulates Art Sales

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Get out of the rut. Get into collecting art.

Martha Jackson, entrepreneur of a well-known art gallery, offers the advice. And not, she insists, just because she sells art.

"Modern life is so compartmentalized," Miss Jackson explained. "Collecting takes you out of the mold you're in, and lifts you into another world of a whole new group of people. Everyone should be interested in art. It keeps you from being bored."

Miss Jackson's comments came during an interview as we talked on the "whys" of the art boom, in which almost everyone is showing off an original or originals by somebody or other.

Besides bringing you in contact with a new group in your town, there are other dividends. Add the pure enjoyment of a good painting or sculpture. And there's the investment factor.

"People have confidence in art," said Miss Jackson, whose gallery bears her name. "If they need to sell, it is negotiable.

"We can gauge a lot of our business by what the stock market is doing. When the market is unstable, seesawing up and down, we sell beautifully. On a rising market, sales drop off. The money goes into stocks."

Miss Jackson, who's had her gallery since 1953 and introduced many an artist now famous, said that a lot of people are in the art market today for the same reason they're in the stock market—affluence.

"You can only spend so much on travel, buy only so many antiques," she said. "There just aren't enough places to spend it all, so people turn to art."

Some collect art because it's the "in" thing, she said. Some people purchase art simply to complete a decorating scheme. But others get bitten by the collecting bug and then art takes over. She knows one collector who long since has run out of room to hang works and they go under the bed, anywhere she can store them. She'll never forget the apartment she visited to find a Gaugin hanging in the bathroom.

Miss Jackson, a divorcee, was born in Buffalo, N.Y. She started her own collecting during World War II when her husband was stationed at Fort Meade. She began to tour museums and take courses at John Hopkins University. Her first purchase was a Marc Chagall wash which cost her $500. It's many times over that in value today.

She commends a similar training route for the uninitiated—read the art magazines, tour the galleries and museums, go back to school, for almost every college these days offers some courses in art.

Then go to a good gallery. If in doubt, she said, the gallery is easily checked through the Art Dealers Association of America, your local museum director, or the American Federation of Arts.

Discerning Parents Can Discover Child's Problem

Have respect for your child. Listen to what he has to say, think about it, and don't judge.

That's the advice psychiatrist John Wood, director of Saanich's mental health clinic gave 50 concerned parents Wednesday night.

Dr. Wood, who worked in Wisconsin before moving to Saanich recently, said the cause of a child's problem, whether insecurity, boredom or shyness, can be detected if parents are discerning enough.

Rebellion among Negro youths, for example, may be an expression of the unspoken anger and resentment which their parents have experienced.

He praised the Family Life Education Committee of Greater Victoria who are sponsoring the two-part workshop at the Howard Harris Building.

Next Wednesday he will discuss methods of helping a child cope with the problems he will face in the future.

"Most services in the community are directed toward children who are having substantial troubles today and very little effort is being provided by the community to help parents understand ways in which they can prevent difficulties from occurring," he said.

The workshop, he said, represented an attempt to identify and be prepared to deal with these difficulties.

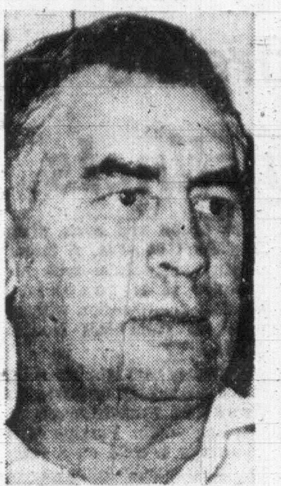
School Trustees Quit After Parents' Protest



OZERO
. . . after 4 years

BUDDEN
. . . abuse offended

LAKE COWICHAN — The residents of Lake Cowichan who had no school buses or janitors this time last week woke up today to find they had no school board.

The 25 bus drivers, school maintenance workers and janitors went back to work Wednesday after a six-day strike, and Thursday night five of the seven members of the board resigned.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said that he would today try to have the board members reconsider in the hope the resignations were made in the "heat of the moment."

He added that the district, in any case, won't be left without some sort of legal school administration.

SHOUTING CROWD

The strike, over severance pay differences with IWA local 1-80 was resolved shortly after a shouting crowd of parents overflowed the board offices Tuesday night demanding an end to it.

Cries of "scabs" were hurled at the trustees and teachers were accused of making strike breakers of students by making them clean the schools.

Chairman Lee Budden of Youbou, first to hand in her resignation, said: "Our efforts do not appear to be acceptable to a large and vociferous section of the community and our conscience directs that we can no longer serve the electorate under these circumstances."

Also resigning were Kathryn Sharp of Lake Cowichan, Fred Ozero of Lake Cowichan, Peter Gils of Honeymoon Bay and Bill Thompson of Youbou.

The two trustees who remain are William Sutherland, whose two-year term expires in December, and William Kompo, a trustee for six months.

The move came as a surprise and shock to board secretary Ron Kimak who said he would immediately apply for direction to the department of education. "Feeling ran pretty high during this period," Kimak said. "The board is defunct as of now.

"There are not enough trustees for a quorum. I don't really know what to say."

Mrs. Budden said the parents who came to the board office Tuesday did not come to inquire or learn about the board and union stands but "to yell at us. We don't have to take that kind of abuse."

Mrs. Budden, senior member of the board, has been serving as chairman for nearly three years and a member since July, 1963, Mrs. Sharp of Lake Cowichan has been on the board for six years, Ozero from Lake Cowichan has been a board member for four years, Thompson for nearly three. Giles took office in January.

Ferries between Swartz Bay and Fulford Harbor will continue to run every two hours, starting at Fulford at 6:30 a.m. and ending at 9:30 p.m.

Extra sailings will leave Swartz Bay Fridays and Sundays at 11:30 p.m. and Fulford Harbor at 10:30 p.m.

Kiwanis Not Welcome At Park It Supported

DUNCAN — Kiwanis Club members are upset at a pending decision by North Cowichan council to curtail use of Pioneer Park for their annual fund-raising carnival.

President Len Smith said Thursday the club had discussed a letter from the council that said "a change of policy" on use of the park for non-sports purposes was being considered.

"We have requested an immediate meeting with the Pioneer Park committee," Smith said. The Kiwanians were major investors in acquiring the park. "We put $9,000 into Pioneer and $11,000 into Macadam Park," another Kiwanis member said.

Ald. Margaret Robertson said the council was subject to complaints every year by other clubs who use the park and have to clean up after the carnival.

Smith said the club posted a $200 bond that was not forfeited for such use this year.

"There are nearly 600 boys who play soccer in these fields," Mrs. Robertson said. They got me out of bed early one Sunday morning in April after the last carnival and I had to get a crew down there to pick up glass and spikes and to fill in an 18-inch hole near the goalposts so they could play soccer."

She said a circus truck had barely missed crushing a sewer line.

"It's a safety hazard every year, and this year the ground was particularly wet," she said.

She said the Kiwanians were greatly appreciated for the service to the community through their ambulance service, school safety patrol and Kiwanis Village for senior citizens.

"But there are other people who use the park and maintenance and safety factors must be considered."

She said council is prepared to offer as an alternative the use of adjacent Cowichan exhibition grounds. "This is farther away from the main street and not as accessible to the public," Mrs. Robertson said.

"But carnival sounds help attract crowds. I hope we are able to come to some compromise. Nothing is final yet and we are open for discussion."

Pollution From Lagoon Ruled Out

DUNCAN — There is no threat of pollution despite the emission of solid matter from the city sewage lagoon into the Cowichan River, engineer Russell E. Potter said Thursday.

Potter identified the matter as dead algea floating on the surface. He said a sample had been taken and there was no odor.

Ald. Rois Harder, who also surveyed the situation, said an engineering report would be made and attempts instituted to stop the solid matter from leaving the lagoon.

Potter said it would be impossible for human waste to leave the lagoon because the sewage first undergoes skimming and vegetable oxidation which lasts many days.

Other investigators were Fish and Wildlife officials Arnie Willimas and Walter Latter. Latter said, "It is up to the provincial government to provide stronger legislation. If the legislation is changed then standards for sewage systems will also have to be upgraded."

OUTHOUSES TO RACE TUBS

A water race between Cowichan Bay outhouses and Nanaimo bathtubs will highlight the first annual Mill Bay Day June 15, publicity chairman Ella Hallet said Thursday.

It will be the first time in 62 years the community has held a celebration of this kind, she said.

Events will include Sabot races, skin-diving and spear-fishing contests, log-rolling and jousting, a mass swim-in, art show and treasure hunt.

Malahat and Saanich Indian bands will compete in canoe races. Band members also will serve Indian seafood dishes and display handicraft.

Man Acquitted In Rape Trial

NANAIMO — Noel Carifelle, 25, of Ladysmith, was acquitted of a rape charge in a B.C. Supreme Court trial here.

The all-male jury deliberated less than 35 minutes in the final spring assize case heard before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan this week.

HOME GARDEN

Geums Offer Long Bloom

By HILDA BEASTALL

Geums are old herbaceous perennials in our gardens in point of length of time they have been known under cultivation, yet today they are seldom seen. Useful for their long season of bloom, beautiful for their brilliant orange-red or deep yellow flowers, geums are also easy to grow.

The species from which our cultivated plants have been bred is native to Chile, probably in mountainous meadows for they stand our winters remarkably well.

The plants consist of handsome dark green basal rosettes of leaves from which several 18-inch stems of blooms rise. Stems branch freely so that many blossoms are open at one time.

Flowers are as large as a silver dollar, with many petals yet are not fully double. Centred with a mass of glistening gold stamens, the whole effect is of a freshly washed jewel, whether in the orange-red variety 'Mrs. Bradshaw' or rich yellow 'Lady Stratheden'. Another variety 'Prince of Orange' was around a few years ago.

Any cultivated soil with compost added will do for growing geums. They like sunshine, and given adequate water will continue sending up flower stems right into September from a May start.

One routine attention required by geums is cutting off old flowers before allowing them to form seed. Nothing is more exhausting for the plants and if the first batch of blooms is not removed, no more will be produced.

An enchanting relative of these tall guems is foot-high Geum Borisii, a hybrid of two European species with smaller, glowing orange flowers freely produced from early May to October.

A fine plant this for grouping in front of shrubs, for its neat, non-encroaching growth habits.

YOUR HEALTH

Chest Pains Are Usually Harmless

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Here comes one of many letters from people who are wondering why sometimes they have brief cramp-like pains that seem to be in the wall of their chest. The pain is most likely to come while the person is twisting the upper part of his body and perhaps has reached around to his back to scratch himself.

Fortunately, after some seconds the pain goes away. That pain is due to a spasm or cramp in a short section of the muscle that lies between two ribs—and it is as harmless as is a cramp at night in a leg muscle.

Sometimes a fairly severe pain in the right front chest wall is due to soreness in a muscle back of the breast—a pectoral muscle. I quickly suspect the nature of such a pain, especially if the patient comes in on a Monday morning. All I have to do to make the diagnosis is to pinch the pectoral muscle and to find it is sore and tender only on the right side (if the person is right-handed). Then I ask, "Did you paint or carpenter over the weekend?" And the person may say that he painted a room or a woman patient may say she papered a number of shelves. Usually then the pain is gone in a few days.

★ ★ ★

Another more common type of pain in the chest wall is in the front near the breastbone and is due to an inflammation in the joints between the front ends of the ribs and the sternum. Fortunately, the pain usually clears away after awhile without treatment.

The there are pains in the chest wall due to irritation of a spinal nerve at the point where it leaves the cord, and runs around the chest under a rib.

Sometimes one can show that a pain due to such a nerve injury is not due to anything wrong in the abdomen—simply by lifting up a fold of skin and underlying fat, and pinching it. When the doctor does this on the painful side the woman will say, "Ouch! Don't do that;" and when he pinches on the other side, the woman is not bothered. Obviously, then, her trouble is in the outer part of her abdominal wall.

Severe pain under the right shoulder blade, pain that comes occasionally, can be due to a diseased gallbladder, while pain under the left shoulder can be due to a diseased pancreas.

In a young man, distressing pain in the spinal column can be due to a beginning arthritis of the spine which commonly results in a rigid "poker spine."

Severe pain in the left side of the chest and perhaps left arm, which comes with exercise or anger, and stops with rest or the taking of a nitrite drug, is due to a narrowed artery in the heart.

★ ★ ★

Pain in the centre of the chest that comes with swallowing is likely to be due to some disease in the gullet. This may be diagnosable with an X-ray examination or the passage of an electrically lighted tube. Heartburn is sometimes felt as pain in the chest, and is due probably to the regurgitation or back-flow of stomach juice into an inflamed gullet.

Pain in the chest can be due to disease in a lung. Pain felt as a jab when the person takes a deep breath or coughs is likely to be due to pleurisy—an inflammation of the lining of the outer surface of the lungs or of the inner lining of the chest cavity.

Rarely, pain in the chest is due to a cancer of the lung, or a pneumonia, or some other disease of the lung.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Shannon Turned Tide After Wild Sea Duel

By BOB BOWMAN

Bowman

There was tremendous excitement in Halifax on June 6, 1813. The crucial battle of Stoney Creek, near St. Catharines, Ontario, was also being fought on the same day, but Halifax did not know about that.

The excitement was due to the arrival of HMS Shannon with USS Chesapeake in tow. It marked the end of a duel to the death at sea.

At the beginning of the War of 1812, the Royal Navy took a beating from the upstart Americans. Two British warships, Java and Guerriere, had been captured by USS Constitution after bloody battles at sea.

Captain Broke of the Royal Navy was in Halifax with his ship HMS Shannon and he vowed to get revenge.

Broke, unlike his name, was a wealthy man and always distributed any prize money for capturing American ships among his sailors.

He had one of the best trained crews in the navy. So the Shannon sailed from Halifax in March, 1813, looking for the Constitution.

During a two month search the Shannon captured 25 American ships, but was never able to find the Constitution.

However, Broke learned that another outstanding American warship, Chesapeake, commanded by Cptain Lawrence, was in Boston, so he sent a message: "As the Chesapeake appears now ready for sea, I request you will do me the favor to meet the Shannon with her and try the fortune of our respective flags. Choose your terms but let us meet."

Lawrence accepted the challenge immediately and sailed from Boston harbor accompanied by a number of pleasure craft carrying people who wanted to watch the sea battle.

Chesapeake had heavier guns than the Shannon but the British ship manoeuvred alongside her, and Broke's men managed to board her in heavy fighting.

The cruel battle along the decks was over in 15 minutes. Lawrence and 146 of his men were killed or wounded and Lawrence uttered the last words now famous in American naval history "Don't give up the ship."

Shannon lost 83 men killed or wounded, and Captain Broke suffered a severe head injury.

His victory over the Chesapeake helped to turn the tide in the war at sea which had been in favor of the Americans.

Fred jotted down the address in his little book. "128," he said. That's quite a number."

"Is it?" Sally shook her head. "It's just another number to me."

"It's eight times the product of its digits," her husband explained. "There can't be many three digit numbers like that."

Can you discover any others?

Thursday's answer: THIS was 5476 (square).

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Monte McCullough, age 13, of Shreveport, Louisiana, for his question:

What is a hoatzin?

In the bird world, eyelashes are rather rare. Plenty of birds have claws on their feet, but claws on their wings are even rarer than eyelashes. The hoatzin happens to be one of the rarest of rare birds. He has full sets of real eyelashes on both his upper and lower lids and when young, he has a claw on each of his wings.

The unbelievable hoatzin bird lives a quiet life by some lazy river in the South American tropics. He looks somewhat like a small, scrawny chicken, all dolled up in some rather fancy plumage. His greenish brown back is striped across with white bars and his chest is creamy white or reddish brown. He has a wide, longish tail of dark brown tipped with white and his small head is crested with a handful of floppy yellow feathers. He has very stout legs and strong claws on his feet. When you get close enough for a good look, you notice his remarkable eyelashes. You also notice that the hoatzin bird has an unpleasant, musky odor.

In his native Guyana, in South America, the hoatzin is known as the stinking pheasant. This may seem surprising when you recall that pheasants are related to peacocks, turkeys and barnyard chickens. These birds are classified as galliformes, or chicken-type birds. They have plump, chunky bodies, stout beaks for pecking and most of them make a living by scratching for scraps of food on the ground. The hoatzin is indeed classed with the pheasant, though he does less scratching then most of his galliforme relatives. However, he has several rare features that make it necessary to place him in a bird family all his own.

Musky Smell

The hoatzin's nest is a rough structure built from twigs and usually perched precariously on a low branch above his favorite river. The three to five buff-colored eggs are freckled with some shade or red or purple. You would expect the chicks to have claws on their feet but you would not expect to find claws on their wings. Nevertheless, a young hoatzin has a claw on each wing and he uses them to climb around on the surface of tree trunks and branches. Sometimes he falls into the water by accident and when scared he dives in on purpose. Then he swims under water and returns safely home by crawling up the tree trunk.

As he grows older, the hoatzin loses his handy wing claws. He travels mostly on foot, hopping along through the dense bushes as he forages for fruit and vegetables. Sometimes he takes to the air, but the effort required does not seem worth it. He must beat his short, stubby wings with all his might and the thrashing noise tends to attract the attention of hungry enemies. However, as a rule, the musky smell of the adult hoatzin tends to discourage those animals that have sensitive noses.

Scientists tell us that our feathery birds descended from scaly reptile ancestors. They have found fossils of bird-like creatures that lived millions of years ago in the days of the dinosaurs. These early birds had teeth and some had reptile-type claws on their wings. No modern bird has teeth, but the hoatzin does have wing claws, at least during his kindergarten days. And his ancestors were most likely close kinfolk of both the barnyard chicken and the lordly peacock.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Wendy Van Otten, age 14, of Peoria, Illinois, for her question:

Why do bulls charge at the sight of red?

For ages, everybody thought that bulls hated anything colored red. This is why he lowered his head and charged the colorful cloak of the matador — or so people believed. But now we know better. Modern researchers have tested the vision of a great many animals. They have proved that the bull is color blind. So are many other animals. For example, color TV is wasted on our cats and dogs. Like the bull, they see objects only in shades of grey.

This news leaves us wondering why DOES a bull charge a waving red rag or cloak. The answer to this lies in the cantankerous character of the average bull. The bad-tempered fellow is always eager for a fierce fight with horns and hoofs. When he sees a moving object, be it a man, a flag or a moving cloak, he gets ready for action. Without waiting to size up the situation sensibly, he lowers his shaggy head and charges, hoping that the moving object is worth tearing and stomping into defeat. If you attend a rodeo, you notice that the fierce bulls charge horses and cowboys when no red is in sight.

5 DEATHS AND FUNERALS

STARKIE—In Victoria on Wednesday, June 4, 1969, Mr. William Starkie of 847 Dunsmuir St. Mr. Starkie was born in Lancashire, England and had resided in Cloverdale and Surrey, B.C. prior to taking up residence in Victoria in 1968. He is survived by one son, Jack, of North Surrey, B.C.

Major C. Smith will conduct the funeral service on Friday, June 6, 1969, at 10:30 a.m. from Chaplin's Funeral Chapel followed by cremation.

WELDON—In Victoria, B.C., after a lengthy illness, Mr. Waymon Hulet Weldon, age 89 years. Born in Georgia, U.S.A., and had been a resident of Saseenos, B.C. for the past 18 years, residing at 2060 Harbourview Road. Survived by his loving wife, Helen, at home; sister, Mrs. Amy Core, Sun Valley, California; nieces and nephews. The late Mr. Weldon served with the 14th Cavalry during the Spanish American War and was a pioneer in the Francois Lake district of B.C.

Service will be held in the Sands Funeral Chapel of Heather, Colwood, B.C. on Monday, June 9, 1969, at 1:00 p.m., Rev. Norman Archer officiating. Interment in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, relatives and neighbors who gave their kind messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in our bereavement of our beloved husband and father. A special thanks to Drs. W. W. Kendrick and Dr. R. S. Conn and staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Our extreme gratitude to Padre J. A. Roberts and the pallbearers of the Britannia Branch No. 7 R.C.L. who assisted at the service; also to Thomson & Irving for their guidance and thoughtfulness.
—Mrs. Frances Fairless and Family

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand was sent us by a reader in Madison, Wis. He didn't say how the hand was bid except to state that North was dealer and they only reached six spades.

Opening lead—♥ K

We can visualize any number of bidding sequences and that in the box is our guess as to how it went when the hand was played.

North's Blackwood four no-trump is typical good player bidding. Good players like to use Blackwood any time they have a good hand. North has a good hand and expects to go to six or seven in view of his partner's jump response to the one-club opening.

When South shows just one ace, North realizes that he is flying blind in a fog. Some North players might look at those two little hearts and settle for five, others would go to six on the theory that South would have to have the king of hearts or that a heart might not be led.

An expert would not use Blackwood with the North hand. He would simply raise the two-spade bid to three to see what South would do next. Of course, he wouldn't worry about the bidding dying below game.

South would merely continue to four spades. He had already served notice that he held a big hand but if North held the wrong cards for him four might well be the limit.

Now North would show that he was interested in a slam by bidding five diamonds, whereupon South would be able to bid five hearts to show first-round control of that suit. The five-heart bid would be enough for North. He would jump right to seven spades.

NEW OFFERING!!
SURROUND YOURSELF
WITH PRESTIGE,
QUALITY AND COMFORT
FOR $43,50

1,744 sq. feet of luxury living in an unsurpassed setting of tall trees, spreading shrubs, lush lawns and expensive view of Georgia Straits featuring snow capped Mt. Baker.
The architect designed home is not "way-out" in appearance but is the type you would refer to as "good-looking," or as one which reflects "good taste." The ranch style spreads handsomely over the 100 foot wide sloping home site presenting an appealing blend of God's creation and man's design. If you are considering a home in the $40,000 Price bracket, you won't find better value on the Victoria Market today!
See this home with me. You will appreciate the full wall feature fireplace in the huge living room, the dining room where family gatherings leave space to spare, the seaview, labour saving kitchen and the "sink-in" wall to wall carpets. Three bedrooms are as big as many living rooms and—oh so many more features.
Call me now — lets talk about your next home! There's a no cost bonus too! A well appointed year round guest cottage with a dozen uses. All this for just $43,500.
Money tied up in your present home? Don't let that stop you.— Use "D. F. H. Guaranteed Sale Service."

WALKING MILES FOR MORALS

TORONTO (CP) — Now it's a march to publicize decency.

More than 1,000 high school students will participate Saturday in a Miles for Morals march through the city to show their concern about increasing immorality.

"We're out to show the adults not all the kids are dropouts and hippies," said Marilyn Minaker, 19, co-chairman of the march.

"We decided to put on as big a demonstration as possible to get as much attention as the hippies. We're trying to get across our point about most kids today and propagate decency."

Spaniards of Famous Descent Taken With Vancouver Island

PORTRAIT of explorer Quadra presented to the Maritime Museum by Spanish government is examined by descendant Miquel de la Quadra, also an explorer. With him is Maria Guardia, a Barcelona newspaperwoman.

A direct descendant of the illustrious explorer Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra now knows why his ancestor tried so hard to save Vancouver Island for Spain.

Miquel de la Quadra, who arrived here Thursday with a party of Spanish travel agents and newspaper men, saw for the first time the island the famous explorer gave up to Capt. George Vancouver in 1792.

"It's beautiful," he said. "I don't know why he (Quadra) ever gave up this place."

The 36-year-old television producer, writer and historian, was so impressed he plans eventually to send his son to Vancouver Island to finish his education.

"He is only 2½ years old now," he said, "But when he's older I will send him here."

NO DESCENDANTS

Quadra was surprised there were no descendants of Capt. Vanvouver living on the island. He would like to have met them.

Like his ancestor, Quadra is an explorer. He has explored the upper reaches of the Amazon River for three years and the Easter Islands.

He has also covered, for several Spanish newspapers, the fighting at the Belgian Congo, Vietnam, Santo Domingo and Biafra.

He has written first-hand articles on Siberia and Mongolia.

The Spanish group is guests of the provincial government and Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Premier Bennett invited them to the province after he visited Spain last year.

PRESENTED PORTRAIT

The premier was presented Thursday with a portrait of Quadra and sword like the one the 18th century explorer wore.

Ron Worley, deputy minister of travel, was presented with a sword made by the famous sword makers of Toledo.

Among members of the group was Luis Abeco Gomez, Duke of Badajoz and Viscount d'La torre. He is married to a member of the Borbon family and his wife is the daughter of Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne.

The duke said he was especially interested in visiting Victoria.

"You see, my wife is the granddaughter of Queen Victoria's daughter Victoria Eugenia and the Spanish King Alphonso XIII," he said. "And this city is named after Victoria."

The Duke felt that both Canadians and Spaniards should know a little more about each other.

"When we get back to Spain, we will certainly do all we can to tell our people about Canada," he said. "This province has a great future."

TENNIS CLASSES SET TO GO

Victoria City junior tennis classes begin June 30 for boys and girls 10 to 18.

Classes will be Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 1:30 p.m. at Beacon Hill Park courts and will last for six weeks with two, 45-minute sessions per week.

Everyone must bring his own racquet.

Similar classes for young people in Esquimalt will be held at Bullen Park and in Saanich at Gyro Park, Reynolds Road, and Hyacinth Park.

Registration for all sessions is $4 per student and $3 for additional registrations to a maximum of $10 per family. Closing date for applications is June 18.

Places of registration are: Victoria parks office, City Hall; Esquimalt, municipal hall; Saanich, parks department, municipal hall.

Adults can improve their tennis game or learn to play at a five-week session 6:30-8:30 p.m., Tuesday and Friday nights, Beacon Hill Park.

Day Was 'D' Hour Was 'H' —25 Years Ago

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — The sun shines brightly out of an unbroken blue sky. A faint on-shore breeze pushes gentle wavelets on to the sloping sands inhabited by nothing more fierce than sand flies.

But the small group of men walking slowly on the beach see it only as weather for which Dwight Eisenhower would have given his right arm.

For they see it all through the wrong end of a 25-year long telescope when the German Army replaced the sand flies, when the weather was cold and blowing, when the rough sea was made to vomit in and the sands to die on and when Supreme Commander Eisenhower made the decision to go anyway.

For this is Juno. Up there is Sword and down here is Gold and Omaha and Utah. Twenty-five years ago they were part of Overlord launched by Neptune.

The day was D and the hour was H.

This package of gobbldegook names wrapped up the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's fortress Europe. They were dreamed up by faceless men in backrooms who plan such things and send somebody else to carry them out.

Trained for H-Hour, D-Day

Doing the carrying on Juno that day were 15,000 Canadians who had trained in Scotland and England for months with nothing more on the military agenda than what to do at H-Hour, D-Day on Juno.

Before that day, Juno was simply an anonymous stretch of sand perhaps half a mile wide at low water and complicated in some spots by rocky ledges.

In 1944 it was even more complicated at all spots by nasty German surprises aimed at explosively ripping the guts out of man or machine which came near.

Behind all this was the German army dug in with concrete pillboxes packed with heavy and light guns to rake the beach and the approaches. No wonder Axis Sally, the sexy-voiced propagandist of the German radio, could croon a parody of "I double dare you to come over here."

One of the first men who took that dare was Tony Storrs, now a retired admiral and director of marine operations for Canada's department of transport.

But, 25 years ago, he was commanding minesweepers to clear the sea.

On the beach today he recalls: "We had to sweep 10 channels, two for each beach, all the way from Piccadilly Circus (code name for an anomymous wave in the English Channel) to the beaches.

"We never lost a ship and none that stayed within the lanes hit a mine." Storr's minesweepers, and 31st Canadian flotilla and others attached to British and American units, were popping mines to the surface with their streamed paravanes while the troops were getting their final instructions aboard the landing ships.

Some Prayed, Some Gambled

In British ports the Canadians of the Third Division, who were to go in at Juno, were on assault vessels like the Queen Emma, the Invicta and the Duke of Wellington preparing for D-day.

Some prayed, some wrote last letters home, some gambled they would't be needed on the other side.

The most conservative estimate was that one man in 10 would not cross the beaches alive and if you were the 10th, goodbye Charlie.

Then it was cancelled.

Moon and tide were right but the weather forecast wasn't. Everything was off to the sixth and the let down was terrific. With the Americans, the British, the French, the Poles, the Norwegians, and the Dutch, the Canadians waited.

Seasickness made the waiting worse as the clumsy overloaded troopers and the flat-bottomed barges lurched and rolled in the chop.

More than ever, green-faced troops wanted H-hour to roll around and get it over with. At last they were off down Storr's mine-cleared channels first in two convoy lanes, then five, then ten.

Around the laden troop ships nipped the destroyer and corvette escorts. Among them Canada's Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan, Restigouche.

Others nearby were the Big Boys of the bombarding force.

Overhead went the bombers to soften up the areas beyond the beaches and the planes carrying paratrooper or towing troop-filled gliders.

To the first Allied troops to land on the armored continent the mystery of it all was how this huge armada of 200,000 men in 5,000 ships, 700 of them warships, could assemble and cover 100 miles of open water without the German's knowing about it.

Security Wasn't All That Tight

Standing on the beach today. Brigadier Douglas Cunningham who commaned the 3rd Division, 9th brigade, that day had his own theory.

"It was security," he said. "Not a thing leaked and we had air power so that anything that came over the staging areas in southern England was shot down."

HOUSING COSTS gave the consumer price index another nudge upwards in May, according to figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Rise was not quite as sharp as in April.

Poultry Price Slips While Beef Soaring

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index edged upward to 124.9 points in May from 124.6 in April, chiefly because of advances in the cost of housing, recreation and reading.

The increase of two-tenths of one per cent in the month placed the index-based on 1961 prices as 100 points—4.7 per cent above the figure for May, 1968.

Food, weighted second in importance after housing in the all-items index, nudged ahead by less than one-tenth of one per cent.

BEEF SOARS

Higher prices for beef and some fresh vegetables and fruit outweighed declines for poultry, pork and other meats. Beef prices went up by 2.4 per cent in the month.

Spring clothing and shoe sales contributed to a decline of four-tenths of one per cent in the clothing index, which was 2.6 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The May increase was slightly higher than in the previous two months. The index remained at 122.6 throughout January and February, went to 123.2 in March and 124.9 in April.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiles the measurement of prices with a monthly survey of about 300 items of consumer goods and services representative of purchases by families living in cities with populations of 30,000 and more.

The base of 1961 prices as 100 points was introduced early this year. On the previous base of 1949 prices as 100, the May index was 161.4, up from 161 in April, 159.2 in March and 158.4 in January and February.

HOUSING MAIN CAUSE

The statistics bureau attributes the May increase largely to housing, which accounts for almost one-third of the all-items index, and widespread advances in the admission charged by movie houses during the month.

All other items increased slightly except clothing, which dipped because of sale prices on several items.

The housing index, which includes costs of shelter and household operation, rose four-tenths of one per cent in the month and was 5.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Prices of new houses advanced by two per cent in May and cost of repairs by 1.4 per cent as prices for building materials and labor wages increased. Rents edged up slightly, with the biggest increases in Calgary and Halifax.

China Reports New Fighting

HONG KONG (Reuters) — At least one Chinese border frontier guard was killed and 16 other Chinese were kidnapped in recent Sino-Soviet border incidents, the New China news agency reported today.

The agency, monitored here, was quoting a Chinese foreign ministry note delivered to the Russian embassy in Peking which also claimed "several hundred tanks, armored cars and vehicles" were used in the new incidents along the frontier between the two countries.

The foreign ministry charged that firing on Chinese positions was still continuing at the disputed Chenpao Island where bloody clashes took place in March.

In Moscow, a Soviet government said today the Sino-Soviet border situation was "absolutely quiet."

The agency quoted the statement as saying the Russians were using heavy artillery and machine-guns on the island in the Ussuri River which forms the border at that point.

The Soviet Union also was accused of sending bombers, fighters and reconnaissance planes to carry out provocations and reconnaissance over Chinese territory.

The incidents, described in the protest note, were said to have taken place in both the northern and western sectors of the Sino-Soviet border in April and May.

The statement said a serious incident also took place May 2 in the Sinkiang Uighur autonomous region in northwestern China.

A large number of Russian soldiers backed by tanks intruded into Sinkiang and penetrated Chinese territories by about four miles, it said.

BY LAND AND AIR

The Chinese note accused the Soviet Union of intruding into the Chinese territories both by land and air.

The incidents took place from the eastern section of Heilungkiang province to the western section in Sinkiang province, the protest note said.

Russian soldiers were accused of seizing weapons from the Chinese border guards and of beating up Chinese herdsmen, the note said.

NEWS BRIEFS

D-Day Ceremony?

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today he would discuss with Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube the question of an annual ceremony on Parliament Hill marking the anniversary of D-Day.

Against China Tie

WASHINGTON (CP)—A petition said to be signed by more than 12,000 persons and urging the Canadian government to "renounce the idea of establishing diplomatic relations with Chinese Communists," was presented today to Ambassador A. E. Ritchie.

D-Day General Dies

YATTENDON, Eng. (UPI) —Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey, who led the British Second Army in the invasion of Normandy, died today on the 25th anniversary of D-Day. He was 72. Dempsey fought off the most vicious counter attacks against the D-Day invasion mounted by the German forces under Field-Marshall von Rommel at Caen.

Prosperity Gap Widens Yearly

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor productivity in Canada is falling behind the United States at a rate that threatens "our entire national unity", says the Engineering Institute of Canada in a brief to the Senate science committee.

Per capita production in the U.S. now is $1,400 above Canada and will be $3,000 higher by 1979 unless radical changes are made in Canadian economic policy.

The productivity gap and higher rates of unemployment in Canada had produced an "increasing . . . social restiveness . . . and growing economic conflict between the provinces and the federal government; growing pressures on the unity of the nation."

NATIONAL OUTPUT

Because of Canada's deteriorating competitive position in national output, economic "or job-generating" objectives should take precedence over all others in government planning.

All social problems were more acute in the U.S. than in Canada because of the denser population there, and Canada should simply exploit the expertise developed by Americans in coping with these issues.

Methods of alleviating air pollution would be developed in the United States before Canada and Canadians should adopt these techniques, not waste time trying to develop their own.

LIST THIRD PRIORITY

Transportation problems should be a third priority after economic and social issues, with emphasis on transportation in northern regions.

Running heavy equipment over frozen muskeg in the North eventually produces deep, water-filled troughs in summer, the report says. These could be used by "high-speed muskeg barges" as efficient transport routes.

The brief, prepared after a two-year study by education, business and industrial leaders, says greater attention must be given to developing computer technology.

This was essential for technological progress and could become a service industry with strong export potential.

The greatest number of worthwhile technological inventions were by "backyard inventors" and greater incentives should be provided to ensure their efforts continue.

Canada should also give more attention to research into methods of weather control aimed at "warming-up" the climate. This would be of great assistance to the forestry and agricultural sectors.

A national objectives committee should be established to define goals and set priorities.

Food Stores Warned By Basford

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford warned Thursday night he will name any storekeeper found by his department's inspectors to be gouging Vancouver shoppers because of a chain-store labor dispute.

In a Commons adjournment debate, Mr. Basford also warmly endorsed a call by Leon Weinstein, president of Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd., for a consumers boycott of steaks and roasts to force down prices.

The Vancouver minister said such a boycott would be in line with recommendations of the special parliamentary committee on consumer prices, which had urged consumer pressure to keep prices in line.

But he said it could work only in a free, competitive market and this was not the case in Vancouver where about 100 chain stores are closed by a labor dispute.

He urged those stores still open to use restraint and not take advantage of the situation.

Regular inspections of stores still open were being made by 55 departmental inspectors in B.C., and Mr. Basford said he would not hesitate to name those found to be gouging consumers.

100 Bases Shelled By Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnam war exploded into heavy combat in the last 24 hours, with Viet Cong mortar and rocket attacks on more than 100 southern allied bases and towns and as many as 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops killed in ground fighting.

At least 35 Americans were reported killed and more than 100 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were said to be light, and damage from the shelling also was described as light.

There was speculation that the sharp increase in shelling was intended to influence the conference between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu on Midway Island Sunday.

A spokesman for the U.S. command commented: "It's just a little bit more pressure to perhaps cause the meeting at Midway to come up with some sort of concession. It is to let the participants at Midway and the world know they are still capable of shooting off a lot of rockets even though the majority didn't do much."

Allies Battle Over Who Won War

Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — Bilingualism created problems here today at the main Canadian ceremony celebrating the 25th anniversary of the D-Day landings.

And at the same time there was some allied resistance at apparent attempts by the French to upstage what is basically an Anglo-American-Canadian show.

Language trouble came when Canadian ambassador to Paris Paul Beaulieu, chief speaker at the ceremony at the Canadian cemetery of Beny-sur-Mer, spoke almost entirely in French.

Many of the Canadian veterans—there were about 1,000 including wives—were shocked when they heard him.

FULL CREDIT

And those who spoke some French were shocked even more when he appeared to give French troops an equal credit for the landings along with the Canadian, British and Americans.

One veteran said: "He speaks 90 per cent French while only 10 per cent of those buried here are even French-Canadians."

A former senior officer who asked not to be named called the apparent reference to equal forces "disgraceful."

And a man decorated for bravery on the beaches called it "an insult."

Beaulieu said afterwards he had spoken in French because that is the language of the country and as a diplomat he used it.

THE KEY PART

His speech was 111 lines long and 18 were in English. Beaulieu called these 18 lines "the key part" and said he used English there as a gesture to the many veterans present from Canada.

In the 18 lines he said those buried in the cemetery did not die in vain and the anniversary is an occasion to remember them.

The ambassador denied giving equal credit to the French for the landings.

He had used the French word Egalement in referring to the troops of the four countries—a word which many translated as meaning "equal."

But Beaulieu said its real meaning is "including" or "as well as."

This translation would make his speech read: "These (Canadian) fighters made up a part of an allied army of five divisions including American, British and French troops."

(The five divisions were two each from Britain and America and one from Canada. A token force of French also landed with them.)

Beaulieu said it would be hardly diplomatic for an ambassador to refer to troops of the host country as only a token force and he had included them with the allied divisions without intending to mention numbers.

Meantime allied resentment at the French upstaging stems from France putting in overpowering numbers of troops in some of the joint events.

At a march past on the America Utah Beach Thursday the French marchers vastly outnumbered both the Canadians and the British.

The tiny contingent of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry stationed in Germany — about 100 men—had to march only two abreast apparently to spread themselves a bit.

The French were marching

Ladies Night at the Bath Has It's Day in Public

ISTANBUL (AP) — It was ladies' night at the Turkish bath, but the wives at the International Chamber of Commerce convention didn't know they'd be pinups in the Turkish papers.

While their businessmen husbands attended to convention business Wednesday, about a dozen wives from as many countries got a Turkish-style scrubbing in one of the fashionable baths in this metropolis.

As they lay on the big marble stone washing themselves and being scrubbed by Turkish women, they were oblivious to the women photographers covering the bath party for the local press.

The next day, photos in color and black and white appeared in the newspapers showing the naked ladies in a variety of positions.

It caused quite a stir at the convention.

"Tasteless and unconscionable invasion of privacy," is what ICC Secretary-General Walter Hill called it.

John Millington, director of Times-Life Books, said; "I can only speak from a point of sorrow that our lovely visit in Istanbul . . . should be tarnished by such an invasion of personal privacy."

Mrs. Judd Polk of New York, one of the ladies whose picture was published, wouldn't discuss it.

"No comment," she snapped.

Not all the ladies were upset.

"It's okay with me," said Mrs. Hugo Timonen of Finland. "I was at that Turkish bath with my daughter. No, we don't mind at all."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Again Slip

The New York market tumbled to a sizable loss after starting with a minor gain. Toronto followed, moving into its fifth consecutive day of decline.

AT TORONTO final volume was 5,784,000 shares compared with 6,647,000 Thursday.

In industrials, Home B dropped 4⅜ to 64, Home A 3⅛ to 69⅛, Canadian Breweries 2⅛ to 12 and TransCanada Pipe-Lines 2 to 41½.

Fibre rose 2½ to 18¾, CHUM A 1½ to 19½ and Block Bros. ¼ to 8⅜.

Yellowknife Bear was down 1¼ to 13½, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 12¾ and International Mogul ½ to 23. Placer was up 1½ to 41.

Chieftain lost 1⅛ to 12¾, Reserve ¾ to 20 and Canadian Gridoil ¾ to 22.

AT NEW YORK the market dropped in reaction to a raise in the broker loan rate to 8½ per cent from 7½ per cent by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Prices near the close included Standard Oil Ohio, up 3¼ at 98¼; Occidental Petroleum, off 1 at 40¼; Benguet, off 1⅛ at 27½, and Chrysler, off 1⅛ at 48⅜.

AT MONTREAL—After wavering at the open, most prices slid during heavy afternoon trading.

Papers, weighed by apparent profit-taking, sagged most.

In banks, Commerce was up ¼ to 20½ and Nova Scotia ⅛ to 23⅞ while Royal was off ½ to 21½. Montreal was unchanged at 15⅛.

Among industrials, Canadian Hydrocarbons declined 1⅝ to 33⅝. International Nickel 1 point to 40⅞, Wabasso ¾ to 20 and Consolidated-Bathurst ½ to 26. Canadian Breweries was off ⅝ to 13½ after trading 168,747 shares while Donohue was unchanged at 11⅛.

Reitman's rose 1¼ to 20½, Alcan ⅝ to 32½, MacKinnon ¾ to 24 and Viau ¾ to 15.

British Columbia Telephone slipped 1 point to 74 and Brazilian Light ¾ to 20 while International Utilities picked up ⅞ to 44.

In senior mines and oils, Dome Pete was off 1½ to 102 and Pacific Pete ¾ to 41 while Placer was up 1½ to 41 and Triad 25 cents to 6.00.

AT LONDON prices were generally lower in dull trading.

Leaders to show falls of up to six pence included ICI, Fisons, and Glaxo, while Courtaulds and Dulop fully recovered initial losses.

The termination of merger talks between Unilever and Allied Breweries lifted Unilever 7½d but pushed Allied 10½d down.

Another sharp fall in the dollar premium contributed to widespread losses in dollar stocks.

Canadian oils came in for further profit-taking, with Dome 5 points lower. Banks declined with Toronto Dominion 1s 6d lower.

In United States issues, Standard Oil N.J. fell 2¼ and American South African gained 4 points.

AT VANCOUVER a special sale of 400,000 Integrated Wood Products shares helped push the trading volume to more than 3,000,000 shares before noon.

Integrated was listed for the first time today. It hit a low of $6.50 and was trading at $8.12 before noon.

Prices were mixed in other trading activity. Anuk in the mines gained .14 to $1, Capri dropped .06 to $1.41 and Largo slipped .10 to $1.88.

Among the industrials, Whonnock Lumber added .25 to $23 and House of Stein was up .75 to $12.25. Driver Development lost .37 to $7.50.

United Bata in the oils was up .25 to $12 and Syracuse lost .15 to $6.65.

Accountant Wants Professional Court

OTTAWA (CP) — A Chicago accountant has recommended establishment of a court to take action against any accountant violating the principles of his profession.

Leonard Spacek, chairman of a Chicago accounting firm, said there is such divergence of opinion within the profession regarding the role of the accountant and the methods he should follow that it has become almost impossible to judge performance.

CPR

Finding cheaper ways of moving goods around may be the last area with the potential of achieving major cost reductions in North American business, P. E. Cariere, assistant to the chairman and president of Canadian Pacific, said Wednesday in Istanbul.

He said these costs now range from a low of about 10 per cent of sales in the machinery industry to a high of 30 per cent in the food industry.

He told the 22nd congress of the International Chamber of Commerce that in the United States transportation of goods from plants to markets has been estimated to cost between $50 and $75 billion annually.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) Trade was txtremely light at the close of the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Flax and rapeseed were generally fractionally easier on thin buyer interest. Exporters continued inactive.

Feed grains were steady, with light domestic shipper trade in barley.

Small exporter buying strengthened rye fractionally. Offers were light.

Sale of 60,000 bushels of flax and 75,000 of rapeseed to Japan was confirmed overnight.

Volume of trade Thursday was 882,000 bushels of flax, 684,000 of rapeseed, 450,000 of rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices slipped about one cent Friday on the Board of Trade. Other grains and soybeans prices were mixed to lower.

Corm showed some activity, but trading in other pits was slow.

Wheat came under some selling pressure, influenced by a drop of about one cent on the Kansas City market. Commission houses were active in mixed trading, mostly selling.

Corn showed some activity, ally lower, dropped to about one cent or more below Thursday's prices and then made some recovery near the close.

Oats were mixed and rye was fractionally lower in light trading.

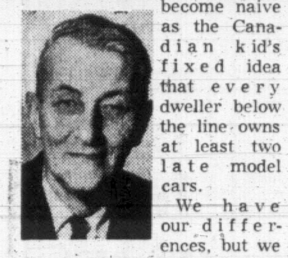
Arthur Mayse

So far in this traveller's tale, I have reported to you on a city and its problem, with a bout of fishing sandwiched between. But the jet-scurry over a border that I hadn't crossed for a long time also gave me a chance to meet Americans as individuals in their own country.

Up here in Canada, it is easy to generalize about Americans, and easier still to monsterize them as I have heard so many Canadians do.

Yet go down among them, talk to them and listen to them, and any such notions become naive as the Canadian kid's fixed idea that every dweller below the line owns at least two late model cars.



We have our differences, but we also have our similarities.

The grim beldame who darted such looks and mutterings when her waiting-room seat was accidentally bagged while she was off jawing a ticket-clerk could be matched in Victoria or Montreal.

And who bragged loudest, the British Columbian newsman telling of trout this long, or his opposite number from Utah measuring off his state's trout with hands spread well apart?

As for our differences, the one that most impressed me was more subtle than such incidentals as accent or voting procedures. I can only define it as an American sadness that had not been in evidence when I last visited the United States.

★

The man across the table in the high-slung dining room had been talking about his town with a hearty enthusiasm that I liked.

I'd been dining late and alone when he joined me. The room was left to a few other late-comers, a band and a plaintive singer. Outside were the palms and the blue night.

We traded notes on cities and newspapers for a while longer. Then the silence that comes when strangers have run out of small-talk overtook us.

Finally I asked the question I'd previously avoided: "What do you think of the Vietnam war?"

For a moment my companion studied the brandy snifter cupped between his hands. Then he said, "How would you feel if you had to stand by and watch your mother-in-law driving your car over a cliff?"

He had made his point, but he sipped, and continued.

"I think the Vietnam war is one of the three worst disasters to involve my country," he said.

"The first was the war between north and south. It made a division that has never really healed.

"The second was Prohibition. It saddled us with organized crime.

"The third is Vietnam. It has divided us again. We can't win it, and I don't know how we can get out of it."

His own boy, he added grimly, was still small. Surely the war would be over before he reached draft age.

★

Twice, from other men in separate discussions, I heard tentative mention of the hydrogen bomb as the agent that might free the United States from her predicament. But the suggestion was made without heart or heat, and nobody present picked it up.

Whenever war was spoken of, or race riot or university protest, I sensed a weariness, as if those troubles had weighed to heavily for too long. But let other subjects intrude, and the buoyancy and lively interest at once returned.

Some of that interest centred on Victoria. I knew that Santa Barbara draws its share of winter vacationists from this city, but it surprised me to learn how many of those I talked with had visited here.

What did they like that Victoria offered? Well, everything they saw, including the extravagant green of landscapes we take for granted.

But the landmark that took their fancy was Victoria's elderly, unique Empress Hotel. When we eventually get around to building a convention centre, it mightn't hurt to keep that preference in mind.

Students Rescue Woman Scorned by Rose-Loving Hubby

By JOHN DRISCOLL

It's a good story, and the kind about university students that doesn't get into print very often these days.

It's about two girls from Trenton, Ont. and a Victoria woman who tried to drown herself in the Juan de Fuca Strait because she felt her husband loved his rosebushes more than her.

The girls, third year pre-med students vacationing with friends in Victoria, were walking along the Dallas Road beach Monday.

●

They saw a woman lying face down at the water's edge and rescued her.

When she had recovered, the distraught woman told the girls she was attempting to drown herself.

She and her husband had moved to Victoria from the United States six months ago, and while he loved the city she felt neglected.

●

The girls took her to their friend's home for coffee and a long talk. They then took her to a psychiatric clinic.

They talked to the woman's husband to tell him of her feelings.

They checked later with hospital officials to ensure than the woman was being enrolled in a socialization program.

The incident is undoubtedly true since it was related by a responsible hospital social services director who was involved and who identified herself.

The director did not want her name used because of hospital policy and the girls were reluctant to talk about the incident.

The students have since left Victoria.

Newspapers do not make it a practice to print stories without identifying at least some of the participants.

However, the students are unavailable and other names are not required.

●

The incident is a minor one compared to the riots and deaths on U.S. college campuses.

It does, however, illustrate a trait of young people often ignored: the ability to become involved and to follow up with maturity the events in which they become involved.

Everybody's Consolation Prize Winner

By STEVE HUME

First contest you've won in your life!

Just a little hard to believe at first, but there it is, a neatly-addressed letter from Florida or Alabama telling you you're one of the lucky consolation winners in the vacation contest you filled out the card for at the Jaycee Fair.

So welcome to the club. Consolation winner means you and everyone else who filled out a card in the Vacation Sweepstakes or the Sunticket Invitation contests for free holiday time in Florida or Las Vegas or New Orleans.

If you were super lucky maybe you made it as consolation winner in two or even three of the contests.

READ FINE PRINT

Bill Tyndall of the Better Business Bureau said today he has received over 130 calls from as far away as Duncan and Nanaimo querying the contests.

All three are strikingly similar. They promise the consolation winner a period of free days at hotels in major resort cities of the United States.

And they are legitimate operations.

But Tyndall urged that people who received consolation winners' brochures from Resort Hosts Internationale, Inc., Contest Corporations of America, Inc., and Vacation Sweepstakes Inc., should be careful to read the fine print.

According to the fine print, Tyndall says, consolation winners will find they haven't really won much.

REGISTRATION FEE

The free hotel time is probably legitimate, although no one has phoned to find out whether named hotels will honor the contest winners.

And there is a $15 to $25 registration fee to be paid — in advance, of course.

Consolation winners must also pay their own transportation to and from the resort city, and time restrictions limit visits to off-season when the areas are most uncomfortable in terms of heat and humidity.

The free coupons worth $150 in meal, drink and entertainment discounts prominently displayed in the brochures are standard offerings of the resort hotels, Tyndall says, and they are extremely difficult to cash.

"It's all legal," he said, "but it is an advertising gimmick designed to promote the off-season in the various resort cities, and individuals who have been told they are consolation winners should realize exactly what the set-up entails."

Throw Down That Coffee Cup, Join the Oak Bay Tea Party

By PAT DUFOUR

The Boston Tea Party turned the Americans from a tea to coffee-drinking people.

Oak Bay is hoping that its party will work in reverse.

All set for the annual event to be held Saturday and Sunday, Oak Bay Tea Party's co-ordinator Ted Gaskell said today supplies large enough to brew an ocean of the stuff have been laid on.

There's one snag. Even in terribly British Oak Bay, coffee still remains the prime favorite.

"However, we're hoping that people will really get in the mood this year and switch to tea ... at least for the weekend. And, of course, we'll have crumpets on hand, too, for those who wish to be really authentic."

SOME COFFEE

But, just in case Oak Bay still refuses to go completely British, Gaskell reports there'll also be lashings of coffee and soft drinks on hand at Windsor Park.

Long before tea became synonymous with the bulldog and Union Jack, its discoverers has though it the solution to drunkenness. As far back as 350 AD, Buddhist priests in China were praising it in a subtle attempt to combat intemperance.

One legend attributes the beginning of tea to Bodhidharma, or Daruma, a Buddhist Saint.

He was mortified when he woke one day to find he'd fallen asleep while saying his prayers.

CAST DOWN EYELIDS

To make retribution, he cut off his eyelids and threw them on the ground. They took root, grew into a bush, the leaves of which, when dried and infused in hot water, produced a brew guaranteed to keep the sandman away.

Oak Bay Tea Party officials aren't taking any chances.

All the tea in China couldn't rival the ability of the two-day program of fund and games to keep Oak Bay residents and the many "foreigners" expected awake.

And, just in case, there's Festivities begin Saturday when a parade will leave Windsor Park at 10 a.m. en route to Willows Park where most of the weekend's activities will be centred. Many marine events have been arranged for Sunday, beginning at 1 p.m. with a display by the Aqua Ski Club.

YOUTH TO FACE TRIAL FOR ROAD FATALITY

Warren Green, a 19-year-old sailor, today was committed for judge and jury trial on charges of causing death by criminal negligence and impaired driving.

Bail was set at $4,000.

He was charged following an accident on the Old Island Highway, March 3, in which Verda L. Fawns, 19, of 441 Thetis Crescent, was killed.

Seven witnesses testified for the Crown during a preliminary hearing.

Criminals Face Bad Times Against New Police Tools

It's getting to the point where a criminal can't make a dishonest dollar without getting caught.

Some modern detection devices were on display this morning at the Red Lion Inn where 65 police officers from Washington State are holding their identification conference.

Devices included an international data processing hookup, closed circuit television, sophisticated cameras, tape recorder and copiers, and chemicals which will bring out fingerprints on almost any substance.

But what's coming in the future is even more frightening for criminals.

According to Warren Reid of Eastman Kodak the U.S. army has a frightening new camera that takes pictures of objects no longer there.

"They are taking pictures in Vietnam of tanks that left the scene 20 minutes earlier," Reid told the officers.

Reid said experimentation with lighography and laser beams has produced a device which takes a picture in four dimensions.

"By turning a portrait around you can see the front, side and back of a person's head."

Reid did not explain the principle behind these fantastic devices but said they would probably be available to the public in 5 or 10 years.

The officers, most of them police labratory, fingerprint and photography experts, were welcomed to Victoria by police chief John Gregory.

Ask The Times

Q. If I invest my money here and go to live in a foreign country, where do I file my income tax report, here, in that country, or both? T.D.

A. Income tax reports are filed in the country where you reside. If you are living abroad and, therefore, a non-resident of Canada, there is a 15 per cent withholding tax which is automatically levied by the federal government on monies going out of the country.

Uvic's Share Of Grants 'Disastrous'

$10.3M From Pot Of $65M

The University of Victoria's share of provincial operating grants this year was called "disastrous" today by acting president Dean R. L. Wallace.

He was commenting on the announcement of the division of $65 million for three British Columbia universities.

University of British Columbia will get $38,883,482; Simon Fraser University, $15,805,112, and University of Victoria, $10,311,406.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, in announcing the split of the budgeted $65 million, said the provincial government would accept the recommendations of the advisory board for the allocation of the total.

"The allocation deals a very crippling blow to the university's present operation, and shatters any aims for the future," said Wallace.

"I've had no time to consider all the details, but there is no doubt this is really disastrous.

"While, of course, we've had to hire new faculty members to look after the known increase in student enrolment, in many areas of the university it is now going to be necessary to operate with very reduced funds.

"We will actually have less money in certain areas than we had last year."

Brothers said the three universities would be paid 95 per cent of the recommended monthly allotments until November when a final decision would be taken concerning the ultimate distribution of the five per cent withheld.

FURTHER ADVICE

Brothers said Dean S. Chant, chairman of the advisory board, could then be asked for further advice if the actual fall enrolments appeared to vary with the advisory board's projections.

Brothers stated the operating grants represent an increase of 23 per cent over those provided in 1968-69.

(Capital grants, announced earlier, provided $6 million for UBC, $6 million for Simon Fraser and $3 million for Uvic, the total $15 million representing an increase of 25 per cent over 1968-69.)

The division of operating grants closely parallels a forecast made 16 days ago by Opposition Leader Tom Berger. He said UBC would get $38.9 million, Simon Fraser $15.6 million and Uvic $10.5 million.

He also said the UBC grant is $2.5 million less than the university needs and predicted it could force a major increase in tuition fees this fall.

Last year, UBC got $31.1 million, SFU $13.5 million and Uvic $8.2 million under the split announced by the government.

NEW DEPUTY MINISTER of forests in British Columbia is John S. Stokes, at present assistant chief forester of the B.C. Forest Service. He succeeds F. S. McKinnon who is to officially retire July 1 but who will continue as chairman of the Pollution Control Board. Stokes, 55, was born in Victoria and graduated from University of B.C. He first joined the forest service in 1939, went overseas with the air force, and returned in 1945. He became assistant chief forester in 1965.

Stretched Ferry Starts Sea Trials

The Queen of Esquimalt, cut in half to lengthen it 84 feet, began sea trials today and will begin regular service June 13.

The 426-foot vessel is now the biggest in the B.C. Ferry Authority fleet.

Work on the "stretched" ferry began in Burrard Drydock late in 1968. The vessel was cut in half and a new centre section added forward of the engine room.

Stretching the five-year-old Esquimalt was considered a cheaper alternative to building another ferry.

The alteration has added 55 cars and 200 passengers to her former capacity of 138 cars and 1,000 passengers.

She is also the fleet's first ferry with sewage-holding tanks that will eliminate flushing waste overboard, a pollution control messure called for by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

The Esquimalt will normally operate between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

Drug Prisoner Escapes Again

Police were searching today for an American who walked out of Oakalla prison farm near Burnaby Thursday afternoon.

David Bruce Hill, 27, of San Francisco, was sentenced May 30 in Victoria central court to eight months in jail on charges of possessing narcotics, escaping custody, and theft.

He was sent to Oakalla because he then suffered from infectious hepatitis.

Prison officials declined to say how he escaped but a Burnaby RCMP spokesman said Hill was working with a painting crew near the east gate of the farm.

He apparently left on foot by the open gate, unnoticed, about 3:30 p.m. He is not considered dangerous.

While in custody in Victoria late last month, Hill escaped through a hospital window while an RCMP guard was outside his room.

He was captured several hours later the same day and faced additional charges when he appeared in court. He pleaded guilty of all of them.

YOUTHS REWARDED FOR LAW AND ORDER

Three youths who caught two others smashing tombstones in Ross Bay Cemetery were presented with Respect for Law and Order Awards Thursday night by the Victoria Evening Optimist Club.

The awards were given at a dinner meeting to Tony Karlsson, 14, of 316 Beechwood; Steven Jansen, 13, of 1618 Pinewood, and Bruce McNaughton, 13, of 1820 Hollywood Crescent.

A police spokesman said it is the first time to his knowledge the awards have been given here. They are presented all over North America.

Police estimated damage to the tombstones at about $600.

Unionist Sees Tax Reforms As Block to Getting Rich

A Saanich delegate Thursday asked a labor convention not to advocate tax reforms which would rob poor men of the dream of becoming millionaires.

Tony Miller of Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees made an unsuccessful plea against a resolution to ask the federal government to implement the Carter report on taxation immediately.

"Many of us came here from Ireland and England to escape from taxation," Miller told the annual B.C. CUPE division convention.

"If the Carter report is implemented it means we will never have a chance to get out of the grey mass of the working class," he said.

★ ★ ★

Miller's comments were denounced by Vancouver local 1004 delegate D. L. Werlin.

"I've never heard anything so ridiculous at a labor convention in my life," said Werlin.

"Let's quit kidding ourselves that we're all future millionaires.

"You could take all the future millionaires in this room and fit them on the head of a pin."

Werlin said the Carter report advocates that taxation should be based on an ability to pay but has never been implemented except for some of the negative aspects.

"There's an unwritten law that millionaires should not pay taxes," he said.

"The working man now pays 40 per cent of his income in taxes," said Werlin.

The convention endorsed the resolution by an overwhelming margin.

National CUPE president Stanley Little of Toronto addressed the convention and lashed out at critics who contend that labor is to blame for inflation.

★ ★ ★

"Wage increases have some effect on inflation," he said. "But when management doubles its profits why is it not being accused of causing inflation?"

He called for a "dialogue between union and management under government auspices to see if we can find answers to the situation."

Little blasted what he called "discriminatory legislation" against public employees.

"In the public eye, the public employee is not supposed to disrupt services and cause inconvenience."

"After every one else's wages have moved we are permitted to say it's time you looked at us," he said.

"The rest of the labor movement should be disturbed at the lot of the public empoyee."

Day Was 'D' Hour Was 'H' —25 Years Ago

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — The sun shines brightly out of an unbroken blue sky. A faint on-shore breeze pushes gentle wavelets on to the sloping sands inhabited by nothing more fierce than sand flies.

But the small group of men walking slowly on the beach see it only as weather for which Dwight Eisenhower would have given his right arm.

For they see it all through the wrong end of a 25-year long telescope when the German Army replaced the sand flies, when the weather was cold and blowing, when the rough sea was made to vomit in and the sands to die on and when Supreme Commander Eisenhower made the decision to go anyway.

For this is Juno. Up there is Sword and down here is Gold and Omaha and Utah. Twenty-five years ago they were part of Overlord launched by Neptune.

The day was D and the hour was H.

This package of gobbeldegook names wrapped up the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's fortress, Europe. They were dreamed up by faceless men in backrooms who plan such things and send somebody else to carry them out.

Trained for H-Hour, D-Day

Doing the carrying on Juno that day were 15,000 Canadians who had trained in Scotland and England for months with nothing more on the military agenda than what to do at H-Hour, D-Day on Juno.

Before that day, Juno was simply an anonymous stretch of sand perhaps half a mile wide at low water and complicated in some spots by rocky ledges.

In 1944 it was even more complicated at all spots by nasty German surprises aimed at explosively ripping the guts out of man or machine which came near.

Behind all this was the German army dug in with concrete pillboxes packed with heavy and light guns to rake the beach and the approaches. No wonder Axis Sally, the sexy-voiced propagandist of the German radio, could croon a parody of "I double dare you to come over here."

One of the first men who took that dare was Tony Storrs, now a retired admiral and director of marine operations for Canada's department of transport.

But, 25 years ago, he was commanding minesweepers to clear the sea.

On the beach today he recalls: "We had to sweep 10 channels, two for each beach, all the way from Piccadilly Circus (code name for an anonymous wave in the English Channel) to the beaches.

"We never lost a ship and none that stayed within the lanes hit a mine." Storr's minesweepers, and 31st Canadian flotilla and others attached to British and American units, were popping mines to the surface with their streamed paravanes while the troops were getting their final instructions aboard the landing ships.

Some Prayed, Some Gambled

In British ports the Canadians of the Third Division, who were to go in at Juno, were on assault vessels like the Queen Emma, the Invicta and the Duke of Wellington preparing for D-day.

Some prayed, some wrote last letters home, some gambled they would't be needed on the other side.

The most conservative estimate was that one man in 10 would not cross the beaches alive and if you were the 10th, goodbye Charlie.

Then it was cancelled.

Moon and tide were right but the weather forecast wasn't. Everything was off to the sixth and the let down was terrific. With the Americans, the British, the French, the Poles, the Norwegians, and the Dutch, the Canadians waited.

Seasickness made the waiting worse as the clumsy overloaded troopers and the flat-bottomed barges lurched and rolled in the chop.

More than ever, green-faced troops wanted H-hour to roll around and get it over with. At last they were off down Storr's mine-cleared channels first in two convoy lanes, then five, then ten.

Around the laden troop ships nipped the destroyer and corvette escorts. Among them Canada's Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan, Restigouche.

Others nearby were the Big Boys of the bombarding force.

Overhead went the bombers to soften up the areas beyond the beaches and the planes carrying paratrooper or towing troop-filled gliders.

To the first Allied troops to land on the armored continent the mystery of it all was how this huge armada of 200,000 men in 5,000 ships, 700 of them warships, could assemble and cover 100 miles of open water without the German's knowing about it.

Security Wasn't All That Tight

Standing on the beach today Brigadier Douglas Cunningham who commaned the 3rd Division, 9th brigade, that day had his own theory.

"It was security," he said. "Not a thing leaked and we had air power so that anything that came over the staging areas in southern England was shot down."

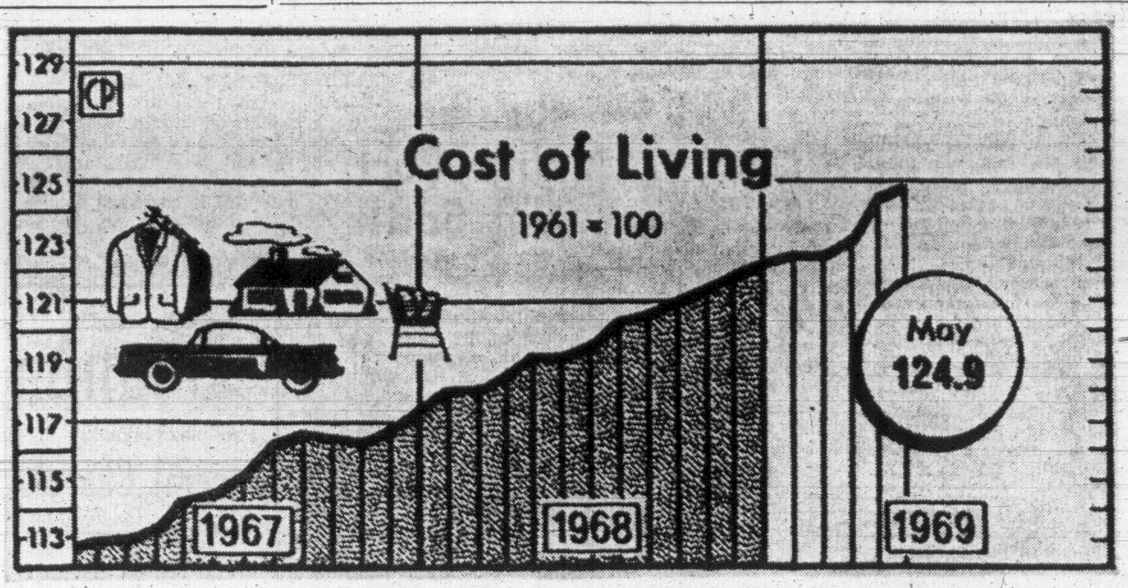
Canada Not Keeping Up With U.S. Production



—CP Wirephoto

HOUSING COSTS gave the consumer price index another nudge upwards in May, according to figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Rise was not quite as sharp as in April.

Prosperity Gap Widens Yearly

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor productivity in Canada is falling behind the United States at a rate that threatens "our entire national unity", says the Engineering Institute of Canada in a brief to the Senate science committee.

Per capita production in the U.S. now is $1,400 above Canada and will be $3,000 higher by 1979 unless radical changes are made in Canadian economic policy.

The productivity gap and higher rates of unemployment in Canada had produced an "increasing . . . social restiveness . . . and growing economic conflict between the provinces and the federal government; growing pressures on the unity of the nation."

NATIONAL OUTPUT

Because of Canada's deteriorating competitive position in national output, economic "or job-generating" objectives should take precedence over all others in government planning.

All social problems were more acute in the U.S. than in Canada because of the denser population there, and Canada should simply exploit the expertise developed by Americans in coping with these issues.

Methods of alleviating air pollution would be developed in the United States before Canada and Canadians should adopt these techniques, not waste time trying to develop their own.

LIST THIRD PRIORITY

Transportation problems should be a third priority after economic and social issues, with emphasis on transportation in northern regions.

Running heavy equipment over frozen muskeg in the North eventually produces deep, water-filled troughs in summer, the report says. These could be used by "high-speed muskeg barges" as efficient transport routes.

The brief, prepared after a two-year study by education, business and industrial leaders, says greater attention must be given to developing computer technology.

This was essential for technological progress and could become a service industry with strong export potential.

The greatest number of worthwhile technological inventions were by "backyard inventors" and greater incentives should be provided to ensure their efforts continue.

Canada should also give more attention to research into methods of weather control aimed at "warming-up" the climate. This would be of great assistance to the forestry and agricultural sectors.

A national objectives committee should be established to define goals and set priorities.

Food Stores Warned By Basford

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford warned Thursday night he will name any storekeeper found by his department's inspectors to be gouging Vancouver shoppers because of a chain-store labor dispute.

In a Commons adjournment debate, Mr. Basford also warmly endorsed a call by Leon Weinstein, president of Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd., for a consumers boycott of steaks and roasts to force down prices.

The Vancouver minister said such a boycott would be in line with recommendations of the special parliamentary committee on consumer prices, which had urged consumer pressure to keep prices in line.

But he said it could work only in a free, competitive market and this was not the case in Vancouver where about 100 chain stores are closed by a labor dispute.

He urged those stores still open to use restraint and not take advantage of the situation.

Regular inspections of stores still open were being made by 55 departmental inspectors in B.C., and Mr. Basford said he would not hesitate to name those found to be gouging consumers.

Poultry Price Slips While Beef Soaring

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index edged upward to 124.9 points in May from 124.6 in April, chiefly because of advances in the cost of housing and recreation.

The increase of two-tenths of one per cent in the month placed the index-based on 1961 prices as 100 points—4.7 per cent above the figure for May, 1968.

Food, weighted second in importance after housing in the all-items index, nudged ahead by less than one-tenth of one per cent.

BEEF SOARS

Higher prices for beef and some fresh vegetables and fruit outweighed declines for poultry, pork and other meats. Beef prices went up by 2.4 per cent in the month.

Spring clothing and shoe sales contributed to a decline of four-tenths of one per cent in the clothing index, which was 2.6 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The May increase was slightly higher than in the previous two months. The index remained at 122.6 throughout January and February, went to 123.2 in March and 124.9 in April.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiles the measurement of prices with a monthly survey of about 300 items of consumer goods and services representative of purchases by families living in cities with populations of 30,000 and more.

The base of 1961 prices as 100 points was introduced early this year. On the previous base of 1949 prices as 100, the May index was 161.4, up from 161 in April, 159.2 in March and 158.4 in January and February.

HOUSING MAIN CAUSE

The statistics bureau attributes the May increase largely to housing, which accounts for almost one-third of the all-items index, and widespread advances in the admission charged by movie houses during the month.

All other items increased slightly except clothing, which dipped because of sale prices on several items.

The housing index, which includes costs of shelter and household operation, rose four-tenths of one per cent in the month and was 5.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Prices of new houses advanced by two per cent in May and cost of repairs by 1.4 per cent as—prices for building materials and labor wages increased. Rents edged up slightly, with the biggest increases in Calgary and Halifax.

China Reports New Fighting

HONG KONG (Reuters) — At least one Chinese border frontier guard was killed and 16 other Chinese were kidnapped in recent Sino-Soviet border incidents, the New China news agency reported today.

The agency, monitored here, was quoting a Chinese foreign ministry note delivered to the Russian embassy in Peking which also claimed "several hundred tanks, armored cars and vehicles" were used in the new incidents along the frontier between the two countries.

The foreign ministry charged that firing on Chinese positions was still continuing at the disputed Chenpao Island where bloody clashes took place in March.

In Moscow, a Soviet government said today the Sino-Soviet border situation was "absolutely quiet."

The agency quoted the statement as saying the Russians were using heavy artillery and machine-guns on the island in the Ussuri River which forms the border at that point.

The Soviet Union also was accused of sending bombers, fighters and reconnaissance planes to carry out provocations and reconnaissance over Chinese territory.

The incidents, described in the protest note, were said to have taken place in both the northern and western sectors of the Sino-Soviet border in April and May.

The statement said a serious incident also took place May 2 in the Sinkiang Uighur autonomous region in northwestern China.

A large number of Russian soldiers backed by tanks intruded into Sinkiang and penetrated Chinese territories by about four miles, it said.

BY LAND AND AIR

The Chinese note accused the Soviet Union of intruding into the Chinese territories both by land and air.

The incidents took place from the eastern section of Heilungkiang province to the western section in Sinkiang province, the protest note said.

Russian soldiers were accused of seizing weapons from the Chinese border guards and of beating up Chinese herdsmen, the note said.

100 Bases Shelled By Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnam war exploded into heavy combat in the last 24 hours, with Viet Cong mortar and rocket attacks on more than 100 southern allied bases and towns and as many as 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops killed in ground fighting.

At least 35 Americans were reported killed and more than 100 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were said to be light, and damage from the shelling also was described as light.

There was speculation that the sharp increase in shelling was intended to influence the conference between President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu on Midway Island Sunday.

A spokesman for the U.S. command commented: "It's just a little bit more pressure to perhaps cause the meeting at Midway to come up with some sort of concession. It is to let the participants at Midway and the world know they are still capable of shooting off a lot of rockets even though the majority didn't do much."

Allies Battle Over Who Won War

Special to the Times

CAEN, Normandy — Bilingualism created problems here today at the main Canadian ceremony celebrating the 25th anniversary of the D-Day landings.

And at the same time there was some allied resistance at apparent attempts by the French to upstage what is basically an Anglo-American-Canadian show.

Language trouble came when Canadian ambassador to Paris Paul Beaulieu, chief speaker at the ceremony at the Canadian cemetery of Beny-sur-Mer, spoke almost entirely in French.

Many of the Canadian veterans—there were about 1,000 including wives—were shocked when they heard him.

FULL CREDIT

And those who spoke some French were shocked even more when he appeared to give French troops an equal credit for the landings along with the Canadian, British and Americans.

One veteran said: "He speaks 90 per cent French while only 10 per cent of those buried here are even French-Canadians."

A former senior officer who asked not to be named called the apparent reference to equal forces "disgraceful."

And a man decorated for bravery on the beaches called it "an insult."

Beaulieu said afterwards he had spoken in French because that is the language of the country and as a diplomat he used it.

THE KEY PART

His speech was 111 lines long and 18 were in English. Beaulieu called these 18 lines "the key part" and said he used English there as a gesture to the many veterans present from Canada.

In the 18 lines he said those buried in the cemetery did not die in vain and the anniversary is an occasion to remember them.

The ambassador denied giving equal credit to the French for the landings.

He had used the French word Egalement in referring to the troops of the four countries—a word which many translated as meaning "equal."

But Beaulieu said its real meaning is "including" or "as well as."

This translation would make his speech read: "These (Canadian) fighters made up a part of an allied army of five divisions including American, British and French troops."

(The five divisions were two each from Britain and America and one from Canada. A token force of French also landed with them.)

Beaulieu said it would be hardly diplomatic for an ambassador to refer to troops of the host country as only a token force and he had included them with the allied divisions without intending to mention numbers.

Meantime allied resentment at the French upstaging stems from France putting in overpowering numbers of troops in some of the joint events.

At a march past on the America Utah Beach Thursday the French marchers vastly outnumbered both the Canadians and the British.

The tiny contingent of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry stationed in Germany — about 100 men—had to march only two abreast apparently to spread themselves a bit.

The French were marching

Ladies Night at the Bath Has Its Day in Public

ISTANBUL (AP) — It was ladies' night at the Turkish bath, but the wives at the International Chamber of Commerce convention didn't know they'd be pinups in the Turkish papers.

While their businessmen husbands attended to convention business Wednesday, about a dozen wives from as many countries got a Turkish-style scrubbing in one of the fashionable baths in this metropolis.

As they lay on the big marble stone washing themselves and being scrubbed by Turkish women, they were oblivious to the women photographers covering the bath party for the local press.

The next day, photos in color and black and white appeared in the newspapers showing the naked ladies in a variety of positions.

It caused quite a stir at the convention.

"Tasteless and unconscionable invasion of privacy," is what ICC Secretary-General Walter Hill called it.

John Millington, director of Times-Life Books, said: "I can only speak from a point of sorrow that our lovely visit in Istanbul . . . should be tarnished by such an invasion of personal privacy."

Mrs. Judd Polk of New York, one of the ladies whose picture was published, wouldn't discuss it.

"No comment," she snapped.

Not all the ladies were upset.

"It's okay with me," said Mrs. Hugo Timonen of Finland. "I was at that Turkish bath with my daughter. No, we don't mind at all."

INTERIM LISTING

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Again Slip

The New York market tumbled to a sizable loss after starting with a minor gain. Toronto followed, moving into its fifth consecutive day of decline.

AT TORONTO final volume was 5,784,000 shares compared with 6,647,000 Thursday.

In industrials, Home B dropped 4⅝ to 64, Home A 3⅛ to 69⅛, Canadian Breweries 2⅛ to 12 and TransCanada PipeLines 2 to 41½.

Fibre rose 2½ to 18¾, CHUM A 1½ to 19½ and Block Bros. ¼ to 8⅜.

Yellowknife Bear was down 1¼ to 13½, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 12¾ and International Mogul ½ to 23. Placer was up 1½ to 41.

Chieftain lost 1⅛ to 12¾, Reserve ¾ to 20 and Canadian Gridoil ¾ to 22.

AT NEW YORK the market dropped in reaction to a raise in the broker loan rate to 8½ per cent from 7½ per cent by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Prices near the close included Standard Oil Ohio, up 3¼ at 98¼; Occidental Petroleum, off 1 at 40¼; Benguet, off 1⅛ at 27½, and Chrysler, off 1⅛ at 48⅜.

AT MONTREAL—After wavering at the open, most prices slid during heavy afternoon trading.

Papers, weighed by apparent profit-taking, sagged most.

In banks, Commerce was up ¼ to 20½ and Nova Scotia ⅛ to 23⅞ while Royal was off ½ to 21½. Montreal was unchanged at 15⅛.

Among industrials, Canadian Hydrocarbons declined 1⅝ to 33⅝. International Nickel 1 point to 40⅞, Wabasso ¾ to 20 and Consolidated-Bathurst ½ to 26. Canadian Breweries was off ⅝ to 13½ after trading 168,747 shares while Donohue was unchanged at 11⅛.

Reitman's rose 1¼ to 20½, Alcan ⅝ to 32½, MacKinnon ¾ to 24 and Viau ¾ to 15.

British Columbia Telephone slipped 1 point to 74 and Brazilian Light ¾ to 20 while International Utilities picked up ⅞ to 44.

In senior mines and oils, Dome Pete was off 1½ to 102 and Pacific Pete ¾ to 41 while Placer was up 1½ to 41 and Triad 25 cents to 6.00.

AT LONDON prices were generally lower in dull trading.

Leaders to show falls of up to six pence included ICI, Fisons, and Glaxo, while Courtaulds and Dulop fully recovered initial losses.

The termination of merger talks between Unilever and Allied Breweries lifted Unilever 7½d but pushed Allied 10½d down.

Another sharp fall in the dollar premium contributed to widespread losses in dollar stocks.

Canadian oils came in for further profit-taking, with Dome 5 points lower. Banks declined with Toronto Dominion 1s 6d lower.

In United States issues, Standard Oil N.J. fell 2¼ and American South African gained 4 points.

AT VANCOUVER a special sale of 400,000 Integrated Wood Products shares helped push the trading volume to more than 3,000,000 shares before noon.

Integrated was listed for the first time today. It hit a low of $6.50 and was tradin at $8.12 before noon.

Prices were mixed in other trading activity. Anuk in the mines gained .14 to $1, Capri dropped .06 to $1.41 and Largo slipped .10 to $1.88.

Among the industrials, Whonnock Lumber added .25 to $23 and House of Stein was up .75 to $12.25. Driver Development lost .37 to $7.50.

United Bata in the oils was up .25 to $12 and Syracuse lost .15 to $6.65.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) Trade was extremely light at the close of the Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Flax and rapeseed were generally fractionally easier on thin buyer interest. Exporters continued inactive.

Feed grains were steady, with light domestic shipper trade in barley.

Small exporter buying strengthened rye fractionally. Offers were light.

Sale of 60,000 bushels of flax and 75,000 of rapeseed to Japan was confirmed overnight.

Volume of trade Thursday was 882,000 bushels of flax, 684,000 of rapeseed, 450,000 of rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices slipped about one cent Friday on the Board of Trade. Other grains and soybeans prices were mixed to lower.

Corn showed some activity, but trading in other pits was slow.

Wheat came under some selling pressure, influenced by a drop of about one cent on the Kansas City market. Commission houses were active in mixed trading, mostly selling.

Oats were mixed and rye was fractionally lower in light trading.
